CLOSE VOTE SEEN

By JOHN MIKA

The byelection campaign in sprawling Cariboo constiteuency is tougher than most to assess.

The riding is three times the size of Vancouver Island with far fewer voters than there are in Oak Bay.

It's impossible to survey all sectors in a few days in a riding where the voter density averages barely more than three to a square mile.

But the atmosphere of the byelection campaign is strongly reminiscent of the 1957 federal election which surprised everyone by rejecting an aging but apparently unbeatable Liberal government.

As then, there is a surface current running in the government's favor but there are numerous signs of a strong undercurrent that could dash it against the rocks Monday when the ballots are cast.

Almost everyone in the riding assumes that Attorney-General Robert Bonner will win — but not many are saying they will vote for him.

'ARROGANCE'

Instead, there is a general condemnation of government "arrogance"; for the byelection call itself; for running an outsider rejected in his own area; for a carrot-and-stick platform; for previously ignoring the riding's complaints even while it consistently returned Socreds since 1952.

There is a general lack of conviction in Mr. Bonner's repeated recitation of the imminent and vast economic developments just over the horizon.

Listeners are vaguely uneasy with the current dip in the riding's recent prosperity (only two weeks ago an entire shift of 50 workmen were laid off at a Williams Lake plywood plant and more are feared), and calls for financial restraint.

RESPECT FOR DENT

At the same time, there is a general respect for the New Democratic Party nominee, Hartley Dent, who—in a familiar Diefenbaker stance—bases his appeal entirely on a proven concern for ordinary people.

Even some Socred organizers, who are fiercely proud of the unique character of Cariboo residents, have exhibited an admiration for Mr. Dent that was only partly hidden.

Two of them told me how, as an Anglican minister, he drove around his sparsely - settled parishes on a motorbike, dressed against the cold in leather jacket, gauntlets and goggled helmet while spark-plugging the work that built five new churches.

Mr. Speare also was credited with this type of Cariboo individuality as an efficient but folksy hospital administrator—but it can't be inherited by Mr. Bonner in a three-week visit.

A very interesting aspect of the campaign is the inverse approach each side is taking, given the character of the two main contenders.

City-slicker Mr. Bonner dresses in boots, dude slacks, sports shirt and windbreaker for whirlwind visits to the farthest outposts of the community in order to lean on a corral rail and chat with cowboys or shake hands with miners.

Country character Mr. Dent spends most of his time walking house-to-house in urban subdivisions dressed in a business suit or attending meetings.

OVERCOME RESISTANCE

The Socred campaign is based almost entirely on two things.

Overcoming resistance to an "outsider" by the well-advertised forays into the hinterland and an organized concentration on Quesnel—with 30 per cent of the riding's 12,547 registered

330 Arrests As Looting Breaks Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said today that more than 330 persons were arrested Friday night and early today in connection with Grey Cup eve trouble.

They said that 180 persons alone were arrested during a four-hour melee in the downtown core of the city when an estimated 5,000 persons ran amuck.

Mayor William Rathie said the vast majority of the rioters were Vancouver people and not out-of-town fans here for today's Grey Cup football game.

LIT FIRES

During the melee, gangs of people of varying ages battled police, beat up bystanders, ripped down Grey Cup decorations, lit fires, smashed windows, and looted stores and cars.

Police cleared the bulk of the rioters early today by using 14 snarling police dogs. A similar Grey Cup riot in 1963 was controlled and stopped sooner by the earlier use of the dogs.

Mayor Rathie said the dogs were not called in until the last moment because of the vast crowd of innocent onlookers who police did not want to take the risk of injuring.

The dogs were controlled on long leashes and allowed to lunge forward at unruly elements in the crowd.

130 ON DRUNK LIST

In magistrate's court today, 130 persons were on the drunk list and 200 others faced charges of unlawful assembly and other counts resulting from Grey Cup eve.

Many of the drunks were released with a suspended sentence when the court was told they were arrested prior to the rioting.

Police said the jail was so full that a number of persons arrested were released on their own recognizance. But they were warned that if they did not appear for court today warrants for their arrest would be issued.

During the height of the riot, the mob pelted paddy wagons with beer bottles amid a rain of garbage and other missiles thrown from hotel windows and fire escapes.

Police blamed stabbings, beatings and car accidents in other parts of the city on the night's mood.

The crowd was drawn to the heart of the city by the first ever night-time Grey Cup parade, re-scheduled from the

Australian Voters Back War Policy

SYDNEY (Reuters) — The Liberal- Country coalition headed by Harold Holt received endorsement of its policy of sending troops to Viet Nam today when it was re-elected in Australian elections.

Incomplete returns under Australia's preferential voting systems indicated Prime Minister Holt had won an increased majority on the House of Representatives

INCREASES MAJORITY

Unofficial results with only two seats left to be decided showed the coalition parties with 79 seats in the 124-seat Parliament. The coalition has been in power for 17 years.

The Opposition Labor party, which opposed the Australian Viet Nam commitment, had 42. There was one Independent.

In the last Parliament the coalition had 71 seats — 52 Liberals and 19 Country Party members. There were 52 Labor members and one Independent.

About 95 per cent of the 6,000,000 eligible voters went to the polls. Voting is compulsory in Australia.

Holyoake Returned To Power

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)— Prime Minister Keith Holyoake's National party swept back into power in New Zealand today with a net loss of one seat after a hard-fought campaign in which the country's involvement in the Viet Nam war became the major issue.

The Social Credit party, which patterns itself after its Canadian counterpart, elected one member, breaking the 23-year-old domination of Parliament by the National and Labor parties.

Unofficial figures at the conclusion of counting showed the National pary had elected 44 members to the 80-seat house, the Labor party 35, and the Social Credit 1.

In the previous Parliament the National Party held 45 seats and Labor 35.

GIRL QUINTUPLETS BORN IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Quintuplet girls, all "beautiful, perfect babies," were born prematurely today to a pretty 22-year-old former kindergarten teacher and her law school husband.

A spokesman at Magee Women's Hospital said the babies' chances of survival were "about 10 per cent."

The quints, born 2½ months prematurely to Mrs. Patti Aranson, a small, attractive brunette, ranged in weight from one pound seven ounces to one pound 12 ounces. They were born within a 10-minute period between 2:41 a.m., EST, and 2:51 a.m.

The father, Michael, also 22, said his wife had taken "no drugs, no hormones" during her pregnancy.

AS TENSION MOUNTS

Jordan Arms Border Towns

JERUSALEM (UPI) — King Hussein, under pressure from rioters in his own country and extremists in other Arab nations, today ordered arms given to "front-line Jordanian villages on the border with Israel.

The 31-year-old king's actions came as fresh demonstrations against him were reported in the Jordanian sector of Jerusalem. According to reports, the anti-Hussein demonstrations broke out during the funerals for two youths reported killed in rioting Friday in the old city of Jerusalem.

The anti-Hussein riots which have swept the country since an Israeli "retaliatory" attack on three Jordanian villages Nov. 13 are backed mainly by Syrian and the Cairo-based Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

OVERTHROW URGED

Broadcasts in Damascus and Cairo and some Arab leaders denounced Hussein for allegedly taking a soft position toward Israel. They charged he withheld weapons from villagers on the border, failed to retaliate with force against the Israeli raiders and called on the Jordanian armed forces and people to overthrow Hussein.

Hussein has been forced to use his crack Arab legionnaires to quell riots in Jerusalem, Ramallah, Nablus, Hebron and other cities on the west bank of the Jordan River captured during the 1948 Arab-Israeli war.

Radio Amman reported that Hussein put into effect today a previously announced measure — the drafting of all Jordanian men between the ages of 18 and 40 to bolster the armed forces in event of further troubles with Israel.

The broadcast said the army "has taken immediate measures to put the conscription into effect." It said "military training camps will be opened in all areas and that necessary arms for these camps will be provided."

BONN CRISIS ENDS

Major Parties Join Forces

BONN (CP) — Leaders of West Germany's two major political parties—the Socialists and the Christian Democrats—decided today to form a new government to replace that of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

Kurt Georg Kiesinger, the Christian Democratic candidate for chancellor, told reporters he hopes a new government can be formed next week. The deal is subject to the approval of the representatives of the two parties in the Bundestag.

The agreement was announced by Will Rasner, Christian Democratic floor leader in the Bundestag (lower House).

Kiesinger and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, the Social Democrat leader, were at his side.

Brandt said he would inform Erich Mende, who as head of the Free Democratic party would become the leader of the only opposition to the new government.

Together the Socialists, and the Christian Democrats would command 447 of the 496 votes in the Bundestag. The Free Democrats have the other 49.

Nothing was said about who would be the ministers in the new government. Formal negotiations will begin Monday. Meetings of the party delegations in the Bundestag have been called for Monday to give their approval to the deal made today by the leaders.

Kiesinger's leadership has been challenged by individual Socialists, in part because he was a member of the Nazi party and active propagandist for Adolf Hitler's reich.

It was not certain whether Brandt would take a cabinet job, or prefer to stay in Berlin.

Agreement Near: Smith

SALISBURY (CP) — Rebel Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia met British Commonwealth Secretary Herbert Bowden today and said afterwards he had fresh proposals to put aimed at solving the year-old crisis started when his all-white regime seized independence.

Smith said he was satisfied that if progress could be made in the next few days Britain would not have to take the issue to the United Nations. He said, to him, agreement was near on things that mattered.

THEY'LL WALK MILES FOR JUST CUP OF MILK

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

In Korea, milk is worth its weight in gold.

In the strife-torn country where last year the average income was less than $100, milk and other nourishing foods are at a premium.

Koreans will walk miles, do almost anything to obtain a cup or two of milk for themselves or their children.

Yet for Canadians to provide any number of Koreans with milk costs very little money, and less effort.

The Times Share With Asian Children Fund, and similar funds, give more fortunate Canadians the chance to aid Koreans with milk, barley, warm clothing and educational assistance.

Contributions to the fund may be sent, care of the Victoria Daily Times, or made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas Street.

Game Farm Retained In Natural State

The 17-acre city-owned game farm at Beaver Lake will remain free of commercial development.

Victoria city council agreed Friday the property should be retained, at least for the present, in its wild state.

Discussions will continue with Saanich on the future of the property.

Ald. Robert Baird suggested the property be dedicated as a park to prevent any possibility of commerical development.

But Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow pointed out such a move would be committing all future city councils to a decision which could be regretted.

Ald. Edgelow stressed the property is not a park "and never has been."

"It's just a piece of property the city owns in Saanich," he added. "Before we do anything with it we should give serious consideration to its commercial value."

Ald. Hugh Stephen said he appreciated Ald. Bairds fears that commercial development might take place, but said nothing could be built on the property without the city's permission.

"The city is well protected," he said. "It is our land and we control its use."

Probation Term For Student In Drug Case

A fourth-year University of Victoria student who last week pleaded guilty to possessing marijuana was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for two years Friday.

Kathleen Wendy Tobin, 20, of 2150 Cadboro Bay Road, had spent the past 10 days in jail awaiting sentence.

She was arrested Oct. 29 after an RCMP officer and Oak Bay policeman visited her apartment early in the morning and found a matchbox of the narcotic as well as nine cigarettes containing the drug in a paper bag in a closet.

A DISSERVICE

"Needless to say there are a number of laws which do not find favor with certain people," he said.

"And unfortunately many persons who do not approve of certain legislation, and who are influential persons who should know better, are quite vocal in their disapproval in a manner which is calculated to give comfort, support and encouragement to those who are inclined to disobey such laws and who admire and are impressed by the law's detractors.

In Vancouver, said the magistrate, where the narcotics problem is increasingly serious, magistrates have been expressing themselves forcibly on the contempt "so-called liberal thinkers" have voiced for narcotics legislation.

Of Miss Tobin, a senior student majoring in psychology and sociology, he said, "she now realizes one does not change the law by breaking it."

DETERRENT

The deterrent factor in sentencing was an important aspect, said the magistrate, but there was no evidence yet of a threatening situation locally involving drugs.

Each case must be decided on its own circumstances and he was convinced further imprisonment would do more harm than good in this instance.

Miss Tobin was placed on a $500 good behaviour bond for two years, a sentence that was not to be taken as a precedent, said the magistrate.

Before sentencing, Dr. Charles Gregory, a psychiatrist called by defence counsel Louis Lindholm, said he thought Miss Tobins' experiment with marijuana stemmed from an intellectual curiosity and possibly as a sought-after release from tension.

Because marijuana is the least addictive and least toxic, she probably thought it would be the least harmful to try, he said.

It is a mistake to treat heroin and marijuana in the same vein, said Mr. Lindholm.

"Isn't there a great danger that a person who experiments with marijuana might want to experiment with something else later on?" asked the magistrate.

usual morning of the game in an effort to prevent rioting similar to that in 1963.

But the move failed and police complained that the night parade "drew just about every rowdy in the city into an area of a few blocks."

'PUNK ELEMENTS'

The crowd was singing and happy during the parade, watched by an estimated 150,000 persons, but what police called "unk elements" turned ugly after the last marching and mobile parade units passed.

They surged into the street at the scene of the 1963 riot and the battle began.

Police said later that they are preparing for more trouble tonight after the game.

"We will have the same number of men — about 200 — on duty and will use the same plans as we did Friday night," said Deputy Police Chief John Fisk.

. . . CLOSE VOTE IN CARIBOO

voters—which has traditionally favored the government.

The NDP campaign has introduced an entirely new technique to the riding with a vengeance.

About half of the 2,300 new listings on the voters list since the Sept. 12 election were put there as a result of an organized registration drive by the NDP and most of these can be expected to favor it.

The actual increment to the list was only 909 because some 1,400 redundant names have been scratched off.

The NDP has thrown in almost as many MLAs as the Socred cabinet ministers that have entered the campaign. Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin), for instance, spent more than a week touring remote reservations to speak for Mr. Dent among his fellow Indians.

10 PER CENT OF VOTE

The Indians have almost 10 per cent of the total vote and the intensive NDP drive among them may improve their traditionally low turnout enough to overcome the government oriented support they have shown in the past.

But the most dramatic difference in election tactics was initiated by a team of organizers —including the 21-year-old son of national NDP deputy leader David Lewis from the Vancouver-Burrard constituency who engineered the defeat of Socred whip Bert Price and former mayor Tom Alsbury Sept. 12.

With military precision, about 100 enthusiastic NDP workers under their direction have conducted the first comprehensive door-to-door canvass Cariboo has ever seen.

PERSONAL APPEALS

They have covered the urban polls—which account for more than half of the registered voters —three times, leaving campaign literature and a personal appeal for support at each home.

Just as the 1957 Conservative organization did, the NDP campaigners are working all-out right down to the wire. Their final canvass was scheduled to be carried out today and tonight will see the windup rally in Williams Lake with Mrs. Margaret (Ma) Murray speaking for Mr. Dent.

The Socreds, on the other hand, began slowing down personal efforts after last weekend when they felt Mr. Bonner's carpet-bagger tag was wearing out, and they peaked Wednesday night in Quesnel when Mr. Bennett gave one of his better performances.

SPENT $10,000

Both sides have used advertising extensively, but the Socred campaign is much heavier, and estimates suggest they have spent about $10,000 to the NDP $4,000.

There is a negative value to the organizational equations that favors the NDP.

Both have brought in from outside some of their best organizers, but only in the Socred camp are there visible signs of real friction between the "backroom boys" and the local constituency officers who sit out front as the ostensible decision-makers.

This influx of outsiders, coming on top of the resentment of Bonner that initially infected even the core of the Socred local group, has created great and possibly divisive strains within their effort.

The same situation appears to have had a different pact on the NDP local group, which seems eager to have help now it sniffs the tantalizing odours of a victory feast after years of humble pie.

Returning officer E. G. Woodland said this has been the most discussed election in the riding since he took on the post in 1952—and he says it is due to the NDP house blitz more than any other factor.

EXCITEMENT

"There's a great deal of excitement and I think the turnout will go to 70 per cent if there is no blizzard," he said. It was slightly over 60 per cent Sept. 12.

There are three other candidates but none are considered serious contenders.

Strongest of these is Liberal Lee Skipp, a well-known lawyer, who is expected to push the party's Sept. 12 popular vote from 10 per cent to 15 per cent, perhaps as high as 1,500 ballots.

His increase is expected to come mainly from the 55 per cent share obtained by Mr. Speare 2½ months ago.

The Free Trade Party candidate, Ladner lawyer-farmer Gerard Geoeujon, is expected to chalk up an "oddball vote" of several score at the most.

Independent Richard Mullins, a Williams Lake teacher who arrived from Australia two years ago and has personally attacked Mr. Speare for "betrayal" by resigning the seat, is not expected to do much better than the more colorful Mr. Ggoeujon.

The NDP obtained about 35 per cent of the vote—a major increase—when Mr. Dent ran for the first time in the general election this fall.

The concensus is that simple self-interest will push a smaller majority, however reluctant, behind the government candidate because he is a cabinet minister and because Mr. Bennett might take vengeance if his team's "home run hitter" is struck out.

But this is a different ball game than the one between the Speare and Dent teams a few weeks ago.

There are a lot of new ballot-holders and more of them are expected to turn out this time because it's a crucial game.

The NDP have used a new and potentially powerful strategy while there's a certain amount of snappishness in the Socred dugout where some feel the owners should never have ordered the contest with a substitute star.

The NDP undoubtedly still is the underdog, but if it can increase its popular vote in Cariboo by more than 5 per cent—boosting it over the 40 mark—the other factors may give it a close win.

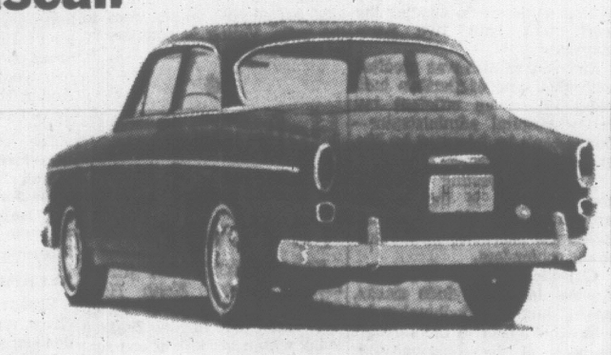
So you've actually got your wife convinced that you save money by trading cars every two or three years.

You rascal.



Why don't you cut that out.

There are cars that will hold up longer than two or three years, as you well know.

A Volvo will hold up quite a bit longer than two or three years.

In Sweden, where there are no speed limits on the highways and over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads, Volvos are driven an average of eleven years.

Keep a Volvo just six years and you'll make out. That'll give you three years to pay for it, three years to put money in the bank after you've paid for it.

A Volvo will give you something else you may never have experienced before: performance and economy. Volvos run away from every other compact in their class...yet deliver over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

And if you're concerned about having a six year old car sitting in the driveway, don't be. Your neighbors won't notice its age any more than you will. Volvos aren't given a new look every year. So you're not stuck with an older look every year.

Besides, your neighbors won't be wondering why you have a six year old car in the driveway.

150,000 WATCH PARADE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Grey Cup parade Friday night was people.

There were 33 floats, and more bands, fireworks and a few other incidental attractions. But mostly it was people — more than 150,000 of them according to a police estimate; all crowded along 20 city blocks for the first night-time Grey Cup parade in history.

As one celebrant shouted as the crowd surged across the parade route between floats in the belief it was all over, "This is a participants' parade."

There was the pert Saskatchewan blonde who leaped aboard a police motorcycle, lifted his grinning patrolman's helmet and planted a warm kiss on his bald head.

There was the Saskatchewan fan who hit the parade route as he struggled toward his hotel with two heavy suitcases. He found they made a good viewing platform.

There were the rival fringe-paraders toting hastily-lettered placards reading "Go Ottawa Go" and "The East Plays Dumb Football."

There was the frightening pressure of too many bodies in too few square feet in front of the display windows of a department store, where only protective timbers kept the plate glass intact.

COLORFUL, NOISY

The parade itself was colorful, noisy — and unduly long because of breaks for television commercials. Parade marshals and police were hard-pressed to keep the route open, and more than a few toes felt the pressure of motorcycle tires.

The parade took almost two hours to pass the reviewing stand occupied by Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mayor William Rathie.

Although police were kept busy clearing watchers from traffic light standards and overhanging store canopies, there were few incidents of law-breaking during the parade itself — described by police as one of the quietest ever.

There was no theme to the parade, and no judging of floats. But linking it all together was music with a decidedly Scottish air — provided by no fewer than 15 pipe bands, including one composed entirely of Indians.

There was a massive five-car Canadian Centennial train with bilingual placards, a "blue ice" Eskimo-Indian float from the Northwest Territories, Edmonton's Klondike Kids motorcycle squad on rented machines and Miss Grey Cup — Dale-Ann Young of Toronto — in an open convertible.

Air Strike Settlement Details

MONTREAL (CP)—Terms announced today of the settlement proposal in the Air Canada strike by 5,200 machinists would give the union members a wage boost of 20 per cent over 26 months and seven per cent in added fringe benefits.

Statements issued in Ottawa by the International Association of Machinists and in Montreal by Air Canada said the top rate for mechanics will jump to $3.97 from $3.17.

Members were to vote today on ratification of the proposals, which would end the strike begun Nov. 14.

Terms of the tentative settlement, reached in negotiations Thursday, provide for a wage increase of 12 per cent, plus 12 cents for mechanics entitled to top rate, retroactive to Nov. 1 of this year, another five per cent Nov. 1, 1967, and three per cent July 1, 1968.

An adjustment in classifications adds four per cent to the total and other fringe benefits add another three per cent to make a total of seven per cent.

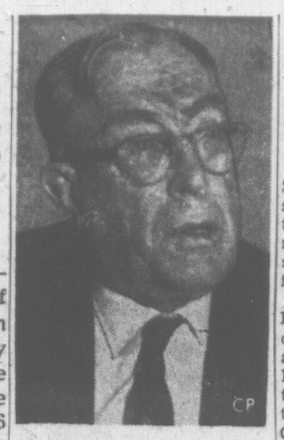
Included in the terms are three weeks vacations after five years and four weeks after 15 years. The last contract, which expired Oct. 31, provided three weeks after 10 years and four weeks after 20 years.

Air Canada also would assume the full cost of health insurance next year. It now pays 50 per cent.

GET EXTRA HOLIDAY

An additional statutory holiday would bring the total to nine, the new day being St. Jean Baptiste Day in Quebec, and the August civic holiday in other parts of Canada.

An Air Canada spokesman said the adjustment in classification was a proposed move to reduce the time which a machinist must serve to reach the top rate. Under the old contract this was 12 years, including four years' apprenticeship. This now would become eight years.



FORMER adjutant-general of the Canadian army and critic of defence policy, Maj.-Gen. Wilfred H. S. Macklin, 66, died in a Toronto hospital Friday. He was admitted six weeks ago with a liver ailment. After his retirement in 1954, he became one of the first senior officers to advocate unification of Canada's three services.

Clemency Sought For Unionists

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Federation of Labour said Friday it will seek clemency from the federal justice department for four trade union leaders jailed on contempt charges arising from labor injunctions.

Federation secretary Ray Haynes said the move was the only course left open to labor. Sentence appeals for the four unionists were rejected by the B.C. Appeal Court last week.

Paddy Neale, Vancouver and District Labour Council secretary, and Tom Clark, vice-president of the International Woodworkers of America, were sentenced to six months.

Arthur O'Keefe, former business manager of the Electrical Workers' Union, received four months and Boilermakers' union chief Jeffrey Power received three months.

The four were jailed for violations of Supreme Court injunctions against picket line demonstrations at the Lenkurt Electric Co. plant in suburban Burnaby last May.

Plane Hunt Fruitless

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCAF Search and Rescue officials said Friday night there was no trace of a Saskatoon couple missing since Thursday in their small plane on a Grey Cup flight to Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy James Brown, the parents of six children, took off from Cranbrook at noon on a two-hour flight to Penticton. Their eventual destination was Vancouver, where they were to attend the Grey Cup game.

Rescue activities were being co-ordinated from Penticton, 150 miles east of here, but a spokesman said efforts were hampered by poor weather and high winds in the mountainous area.

Two Albatross aircraft, a Labrador helicopter, a Dakota DC-3 and two Naval trackers were combing the area, but the weather conditions reduced their effectiveness.

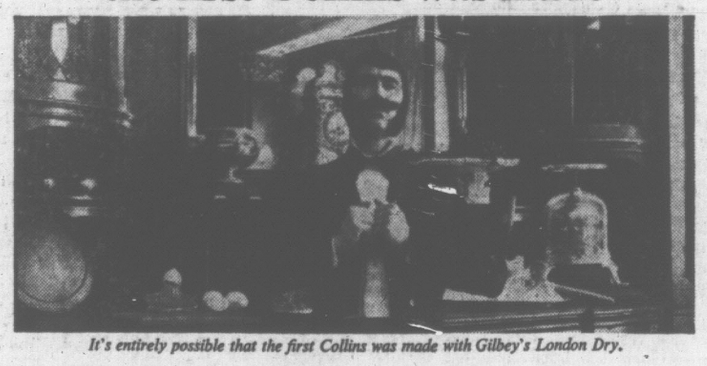
Gilbey's reveal how the first Collins was made



It's entirely possible that the first Collins was made with Gilbey's London Dry.

HOW WAS THE first Collins made? It was made by the Headwaiter at a London restaurant. Not surprisingly, his name was Mr. Collins. It's entirely possible that he mixed the drink with Gilbey's London Dry Gin because this gin has been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years. Its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean tasting drink.

Original Tom Collins

My name is Mr. Collins,
Headwaiter at Limmers
Corner of Conduit Street,
Hanover Square
My chief occupation is filling of brimmers
For all the young gentlemen frequenters there.

Tallest of all the "brimmers" made by Mr. Collins was a mixture of gin, lemon juice, sugar and 'charged' water. Today, it is know the world over as the Tom Collins.

Speedy Tom Collins

Today of course you can mix your Collins much more speedily. Where Mr. Collins had to squeeze fresh lemons you can use frozen lemonade. And where Mr. Collins had to crack his ice from the block you can take yours straight from the freezer. But you still begin with Gilbey's London Dry. Its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean tasting drink.

You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean tasting drink. This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

A Bank for Asians

THE ASIAN DEVELOPMENT Bank held its inaugural meeting in Tokyo this week, culminating five years of effort by Asian countries to obtain a central financial aid agency which would concentrate on economic development plans specifically tailored to meet the needs of that area.

There is little doubt in anyone's mind that the main reason for the ADB is political. It could not likely have come into being unless the United States had pledged financial support — $200 millions over five years—and the support would not have been forthcoming unless the United States had seen a hope that the bank would help to stabilize Asian countries and thus help to block the spread of communism.

Despite the political overtone, which was enough to keep the Soviet Union out after that country had initially expressed interest, there is still a good possibility that the ADB can be a force in building up regional unity in Asia. Counterbalancing the United States to some degree is Japan, which is also subscribing $200 million in capital, and whose Mr. Takeshi Watanabe has been elected first president. The Japanese are anxious, as Prime Minister Sato declared at the inaugural ceremonies, to see "the peoples of this region aspire in unison to carve out their own future."

If, as many observers believe, there is a new feeling of independence in Asia, a belief that Asians must work out Asian problems themselves, mistakes and all, the new bank could be a strong force in the mobilization of capital which is so urgently needed in the underdeveloped countries. It may be difficult, however, for Western supporters of the bank—including Canada as well as the United States and several European countries — to avoid the temptation to meddle. There is a strong prejudice, for instance, against use of funds subscribed by capitalist countries for "socialist construction" even though in the context of a local situation state ownership of a production or transportation facility might be in the best interests of the people.

One of the greatest pitfalls the bank itself will have to guard against will be the dissipation of its funds in endeavors beneficial only to a few people, a tough problem in those Asian countries where corruption is common in public life. A number of delegates at the opening meeting stressed the necessity of developing sound economic principles, integrity and strict lending criteria. Without these the funds of the ADB could rapidly disappear into the pockets of Asian promoters and exploiters without ever advancing the development of the area.

In relation to the task ahead of it, the ADB is almost pitifully underfinanced—only $75 millions for its first year of operation—but it can make a solid contribution to a better life for millions of Asians if it is wisely administered.

Behind the Statistics

THERE ARE TWO MAIN CATEgories of unemployed. Those who are "between engagements" as it is expressed in theatrical terms, and those who have given up looking for work for one reason or other.

The first group consists of persons who have lost their job but confidently expect to get another; the second are the discouraged who have given up hope and are prepared to eke out an existence on welfare without ever working again. In most countries, however, they are all classed as unemployed in the official statistics and their numbers are a reflection of the state of the economy.

Now, however, the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics has decided not to include the "discouraged" jobless in its unemployment reports. The argument is that this hard core of out-of-work people cannot be reached by any employment incentive program and therefore is not a significant factor in measuring economic progress. On the other hand, critics of the new statistics, including non-government members of the bureau's board of advisers, say the hard-core unemployed should be retained in jobless totals to give a true picture of conditions. They maintain that unemployment is actually several percentage points higher than the figures show.

To exclude a section of the population from official statistics on the grounds that these persons are unemployable, for psychological rather than physical reasons, may seem practical and realistic. It also seems to be a grave confession of the failure of a great industrial society to utilize its human resources—to make a place for people in a world which is increasingly being taken over by machines.

Wider Grounds for Divorce

IN ITS 98-PAGE BRIEF TO THE Senate-Commons special committee, the United Church of Canada has spelled out in detail its case for divorce law changes covering marriages which have broken down irreparably.

The church, with other religious denominations as well as lay groups, is not breaking new ground in this approach to the issue. It is merely lending added weight to the arguments previously advanced.

Once again the point is made that changes in the law are not sought to permit divorce on frivolous grounds. Before a decree absolute was granted, the couple involved would be required to explore all avenues of reconciliation. But when the partnership is irreparably broken, the brief points to the fact that "the dead marriages become festering sores in our society and a threat to the sanctity of marriage."

The brief draws further attention to the hypocrisy and abuse of the law which results from maintenance of a law which, with few exceptions, permits divorce only on proof of adultery.

It must seem to most Canadians that the case for amendment has been adequately proved over the years by church, legal and other reputable bodies. These responsible bodies do not seek to coerce Canadians who reject divorce on religious grounds. But for others not bound by such considerations, the cruelty and inadequacy of the existing law becomes increasingly intolerable — a point which members of Parliament, who can pass the suggested amendments, should appreciate.

Peace Pipe at Cowichan

MR. ARTHUR LAING HAS visited the Cowichan Indians, left them with a promise of housing to remove the worst conditions there and reminded them that improvement is a two-way street.

Better homes are unquestionably a top priority for the reservation and the minister's five-year program should help to provide them. But how good the housing remains will be a matter for the residents themselves. Maintenance will be their responsibility.

The results of the meeting between Mr. Laing and the representative Indians will not be immediately apparent. The house building program is to be spread over five years. But, with good faith on both sides, the situation of the Cowichans should be substantially relieved and their ability to make further progress materially increased by improvement of the home environment.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Try a ramble around the trails at John Dean Park, Mt. Newton.

There is still a riot of color there. Some of the dogwood trees are holding their multi-hued leaves, as also are some of the willows, while the alder catkins and cones stand out in abundance.

Going down to the pond there are many little western yew seedlings. This is one of the few places where they can be found in large numbers.

When you get to the pond, look in the water for it is very rich in both animals of minute size as well as many kinds of algae.

A little dip net will show you the backswimmers. This little creature hangs downward with its long legs extended like a pair of oars. They are very active creatures and when they dive to the bottom will carry a film of air down with them. They are predacious, but their young are preyed upon by many other creatures and often the adults will prey on their own larvae.

These animals act like the spiders. They clutch their prey and suck the juice from their bodies.

In your net you may find some cyclops. To the naked eye it will seem to be a little white speck darting through the water. These minute creatures produce two kinds of egg, the summer ones which form rapidly and develop quickly and the resting eggs usually formed in the cold season or in time of drought. They can lie dormant for years.

Unsettled Weather Warning Raised by Council

THE third annual review of the Economic Council of Canada is a warning of unsettled weather ahead. But it is more of an alert than a prediction; the barometer has begun to move but its message is uncertain. The future is likely to remain clouded until more data is in; particularly the readings of the U.S. economy on which the president's annual budget message to congress is based.

Western

It became clear earlier this year that the Canadian economy was experiencing an "unsustainably rapid rate of over-all growth" which threatened both price stability and our ability to compete in foreign markets. This was the more serious because productivity growth was not accelerating; on the contrary it appeared to be slowing down. In this situation, the government instituted policies of restraint. Unfortunately—and this is a recurring theme in the report —there is always a time lag between the implementation and impact of policies.

Slower Growth Rate

Latterly, there have been some signs that the North American economy is adjusting to a slower rate of growh. But is this anything more than a temporary phenomenon? The council warns of the possibility that the levelling off may be followed by a new strongly expansionary surge "in circumstances (as compared to 1963) in which there would now be less slack and greater risks of more substantial price and costs pressures."

What then is Mr. Mitchell Sharp to do? His problem is not so much with the "mini-budget," which is designed primarily to take care of increased old-age pensions, as with policy for the uncertain time ahead. In effect, the report is a warning that he must be prepared to act as soon as the main trend becomes reasonably clear because the time lag can vitiate policy.

Something must, however, be done for housing. (Since the report went to the printers the government has introduced amendments increasing by $1 billion the amount of loans which may be insured under the act.) The reason is that the fall-off in housing construction attributable to lack of mortgage money has produced shortages in fast-growing cities likely to push up rents and living costs, thus stimulating further wage demands and more inflation.

It seems difficult at first glance to reconcile a counsel of restraint with a demand for more residential construction. But it is in part a question of balancing two controls: a little less pressure on the monetary, a little more on the fiscal lever. Furthermore the home-building force is not identical with that engaged in other construction. Finally the emphasis in the council's report is on the supply side of the economic equation which means, among other things, better manpower policies and a more aggressive search for immigrants.

Construction Queried

The council is, in fact, very critical of the reliance placed by government throughout this decade on housing as an economic regulator. It goes further and assigns to governments a "major contribuing role as a destabilizing element in the over-all construction situation." In the period 1964-65, for example, the rise in government construction outlays (aggravating demand pressures) was no less than 30 per cent — as compared to one per cent in 1963-64. As the industry is not greatly exposed to foreign competition, it is conspicuous for greater-than-average cost and price increases and may set a pattern in this regard for other industries.

Outside Influences

Three highly detailed chapters of the report deal with our price and cost experience and policies for stability. It emerges clearly from the council's analysis that many of our costs and prices are determined from abroad and hence not subject to Canadian control. Over the long term, movements in this country tend to conform with those in the United States. But it is important that adjustments should be smooth so that we may avoid recurrent exchange crises and harsh correctives. It is also important that our competitive industries should not be endangered by inflationary pressures generated in the non-exposed sectors (for example, construction and services).

The council, after careful examination of experience in other countries, finds little hope for Canada in an "income policy" which involves the setting of general targets and action to secure their attainment, or in relatively simpler wage-price guidelines. Ideally, wages should advance with productivity but in practice productivity is extremely difficult to measure. Any failure of this economy to conform with the guidelines has the effect of discrediting them in the eyes of the public. An incomes policy may have some initial effect but is often followed by a wage-price explosion. Appeals for voluntary restraint are not usually effective and in most countries have had to be supplemented either by the threat or actual use of sanctions against offenders.

In Canada any such threat would be "hollow" for the simple reason that our federal government has no power to impose controls. We have other problems; for example, guidelines appropriate for Ontario might be unrealistic for Nova Scotia. Again heavy foreign demand might be pushing up profits and incomes of export industries. Would this be permissible, and how would it be explained to the public, when other prices and profits were being kept down?

Basic Instruments

Main reliance in the report is on the basic instruments of fiscal and monetary policy. The council believes that they have been used too exclusively in the past for the correction of minor, short term fluctuations and might be employed more effectively "to stabilize larger economic fluctuations over longer periods." But, whatever their imperfections, they remain the indispensables to be supplemented by a variety of new and improved policies on the supply and planning side.

For the better co-ordination of policies, the council recommends regular autumn meetings of finance ministers. They should have at their disposal more information and they should have it earlier. Dr. Deutsch hopes to set an example with the annual review which surveys the middle and long term prospects. The economic white paper, now appearing with the budgets should be published months earlier for the guidance both of the ministers and general public. (This would doubtless necessitate a supplement at budget time.) In addition, the dates of publication of the annual surveys of capital investment intentions should be advanced for the same reason.

The emphasis here is not simply on closed meetings of ministers; it is on public discussion. Dr. Deutsch wants an "open season" of economic argument before the appearance in the spring of federal and provincial budgets. He also favors a standing joint committee of the two Houses to conduct hearings on these various reports; very much as the committee on the public accounts now deals with reports of the auditor-general.

Independent Research

But the Economic Council is not charged with the analysis of immediate economic trends and prospects. For this purpose, it would like to see the emergence in Canada of an independent research institute to provide, through periodic published reviews, an objective basis for discussion of current economic conditions including price and wage developments. This would be so organized as to be independent either of government or of any special interest.

As compared with its predecessors, this is a very detailed report and there may be an inconsistency in two of its noteworthy observations. Thus the council draws attention (Page 132) to the fact that collective bargaining this year was influenced far more than usual by very large settlements in the public sector (e.g. the Seaway and Longshoremen's disputes). But when treating of demands for wage parity with the United States, it is considerably less emphatic. While pointing to the great productivity gap between the two countries and warning that things cannot be changed overnight, the report also comments: "It is apparent that the Canadian economy is able to support a limited number of parity situations." The argument and the publicity surrounding it, need not, in the council's view be a "cause for undue alarm."

Difficult To Measure

The reasoning seems to be that settlements involving government achieve much more publicity than those involving wage parity, freely negotiated. One would suppose, however, that the achievements of the steel workers would be reasonably well-known throughout the union movement and that one demand would lead fairly speedily to another. There are of course great differences in the productivity of different industries but, as the council has elsewhere cautioned, productivity is very difficult to measure. It also appears to be a highly suspect argument to union negotiators.

FROM WASHINGTON

By CHARLES BARTLETT

Possibilities Seen for a Milder Chinese-U.S. Climate

THE slight flexing of the Johnson Administration's policy on Red China and the UN is certain to raise concerns among the Soviets, who have shown recent signs of apprehension that the Americans and Chinese may become friends.

These apprehensions were sharpened in early September when the Red Chinese Foreign Minister, Chen Yi, declared to a group of Japanese parliamentarians, "I am not too pessimistic about U.S.-China relations. You Japanese are very uneasy about the present state of Chinese-American relations. I am also uneasy but I feel that this problem can be solved."

Chen's words intensified a suspicion circulating within the bloc that Peking may be setting the stage for a move toward more cordial relations with Washington. Bloc diplomats have expressed concern, in conversation with Westerners, that Washington will try to "exploit" the Sino-Soviet split.

There have been insinuations that the CIA is agitating the rift through clandestine channels and that a tacit understanding already exists between the Chinese and Americans. A leading Polish newspaper, Trybuna Ludu, has questioned the "real intentions of Chinese policy vis-a-vis the United States."

The fact is that Washington has not taken even a first step toward playing the two Communist giants against each other. Some argue that the American role has been too straight and that the Soviets would feel more pressure now to negotiate the war in Viet Nam and other aspects of the cold war if Washington appeared to be driving for closer dealings with Peking.

Tricky

But this would be an extremely tricky game for which the administration's policy-makers have little stomach. The Sino-Soviet conflict is clouded with many nuances — a very few even suspect that it is all a gigantic hoax contrived to push the West off balance. It is not at least the clean-cut kind of dispute into which an outsider might intrude easily.

The key argument against this game is the point that no meaningful dialogue between Washington and Peking can take place, or even be faked, until the Chinese reso[illegible] their internal struggle between those who want to wage revolution into the indefinite future and those who want to settle realistically down to the task of confronting China's problems.

Victory in this struggle will fall in the end to the realists because the problems are bound to prove more durable than Mao's doctrines. But this victory may take time. A wise Chinaman told a French reporter last year that "someone reliable" from the Central Committee will succeed Mao and that it doesn't really matter who he is. "They are all reliable," the Chinaman explained, "or they wouldn't be there."

But when the realists finally do take the reins, the Chinese will be anxious to puncture the ring of isolation that has settled around them. As they start looking for friends, the United States may well prove to be a likelier candidate than the Soviet Union.

The Communist split is compounded of many divergences that will fade with time. But it springs also from an historic, persisting conflict. Since 1567 when two Cossacks made their way into Peking, the Russians have been relying on soft governments to press their way across Asia. They ravaged Manchuria as recently as 1946. Chinese and Soviet troops are faced off now at many points along their 3,000 miles of common border.

The record of American relations with China is an agreeable one by comparison. The Red Guards' purge of their nation's past cannot obliterate the record of the "Open Door" policy and the close wartime alliance.

The Red Chinese have dismissed President Johnson's overtures as "a smokescreen for the intensified containment of China." But even Mao, interviewed 23 months ago by Edgar Snow, expressed hope for improved relations with the U.S. He noted that it would take time and be unlikely to occur while his generation was alive.

But They Do Meet

For 11 years the American and Red Chinese ambassadors have met intermittently in Warsaw. The talks have been stiff and unyielding but the willingness of both sides to sustain the awkward ceremony is propitious.

American officials are unwilling to play the Chinese against the Russians because their earliest hope of peaceful relations lies with the latter. But everyone is now agreed that at this point in history, the Chinese clearly hate the Soviets more than they hate us.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

It was just a small election but results of the Bavaria state vote were a cause of widespread concern.

A new super-nationalist party, far to the right and described by some as neo-Nazi, made an impressive showing and helped throw the West German political scene into further confusion.

The National Democratic party scored its gains in the same district where Hitler began his climb to power in the early 1930s. Two weeks earlier the NDP also made a surprising showing in the Hesse State elections.

Over-all winner in the Bavaria election was the wing of the Christian Democrat party led by Franz Josef Strauss, who helped dump Ludwig Erhard as chancellor and nominate one-time Nazi Kurt George Kisienger as his successor.

The major national parties continued their negotiations during the week to find a formula for a new coalition government.

Kiesinger said today he hopes to be able to set up a government next week with the Social Democrats, the second-ranking party.

The political situation in neighboring Denmark was also unstable following a general election which cut the majority of Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag's ruling Social Democratic party.

With 69 of the 175 seats in the Danish Parliament, Krag said he would attempt to form a four-party "popular" coalition government.

Biggest gains in the election were scored by the leftist Socialist Peoples party which doubled its representation to 20 seats.

Political changes of another kind came to Spain, where Gen. Francisco Franco paved the way for his retirement, after ruling as an absolute dictator for 27 years since the end of the Spanish civil war.

Constitutional changes proposed by France to be voted on in a national referendum Dec. 14 provide for limited democracy under a monarch.

A new post of premier will be created apart from the king who will be chief of state.

Franco did not let it be known who he will choose to be the first monarch, but the choice appears to be between Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, 28, grandson of the last king, and his father, Don Juan, a 54-year-old exile in Portugal.

Franco also proposes to allow more religious freedom in the country, where Roman Catholicism is the only approved church, but he will continue the ban on political parties. Opposition groups such as the moderate Socialists and Christian Democrats are expected to be driven underground.

Voters in Australia and New Zealand went to the polls today in general elections marked by bitter campaigns over Viet Nam.

Prime Ministers Harold Holt of Australia and Keith Holyoake of New Zealand stood on their policy of support for the U.S. position and provision of a limited number of troops for the war. Both were expected to win re-election, despite wild anti-conscription demonstrations at Holt's closing meetings.

Britain and Rhodesia were making last-ditch efforts this weekend to solve the deadlock precipitated by Premier Ian Smith's unilateral declaration of independence a year ago.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson sent Commonwealth Secretary Herbert Bowden to Salisbury for negotiations. Wilson has stated he will call for a UN-backed program of sanctions against Rhodesia if Smith does not back down and give constitutional guarantees to the coutry's Negro majority.

Wilson also took the unusual step of appealing for support to Prime Minister Balthazar Vorster of South Africa, who has said his government will continue to ignore economic boycotts against Rhodesia. Large-scale trade between Britain and South Africa is at stake in the dispute.

Nothing Can Stop Process of Change In the Tory Party

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—Their individual furies exhausted, their emotions spent, the power brokers of the Conservative party this past week enjoyed a cooling off period, following their dramatic confrontation at the party's annual meeting.

The strategy of the Camp group now is to let tempers settle, then in early January to seek a meeting with John Diefenbaker to discuss the convening of a leadership convention for October, 1967. By then, they hope, even the most ardent Diefenbaker supporters, having spent the Christmas parliamentary recess in their home ridings, will have come around to the view that the voting public in this country overwhelmingly supports a change in political leadership.

Newman

Meanwhile, the Camp supporters will attempt to work out some kind of compromise with the Diefenbaker diehards which would allow the old chief to leave with honor. "If only for the reason," says one of the Camp partisans, "that unless we treat Dief with compassion, half the party might walk out with him, and it then wouldn't be worth inheriting."

Crunch Issue

Although leadership remains the crunch issue, many thoughtful Conservatives are beginning to realize that much deeper reforms will be required to make the party once again a serious contender for federal power. Because the only test of success in Conservative ranks over the past decade has been blind loyalty to John Diefenbaker, Canadian Conservatism has lost its sense of identity. Enlightened policy orientation and organizational and intellectual ability will have to be revived as criteria for advancement, if the party is to thrive. The rural, old-stock, status-quo traditions of the Diefenbaker years will have to be traded in for policies and personnel who can deal with the nation's urban, contemporary concerns.

Some of the more ardent Diefenbaker loyalists in the party have been telling the old chief that he should call Dalton Camp's bluff, and agree to a leadership convention, with himself as a candidate. They cite the declaration of loyalty drawn up by Gordon Churchill (and signed by 71 of the caucus' 96 members) as clear evidence that the man from Prince Albert could retain his leadership.

ALVIN HAMILTON
. . . anchored to future

This is dubious logic. For one thing, the delegates to any leadership convention would be virtually the same group of Tory party members, who came here for last week's annual meeting, and demonstrated conclusively that they want a change. Even caucus support for a renewal of Diefenbaker's leadership would by no means be a foregone conclusion. Pressure against some of the MPs who signed the Churchill declaration has already started from their constituencies, especially those which through redistribution have taken on a much more urban flavor. The rank-and-file in the party are interested in the power they might share as the result of the Conservatives' return to office, and they are now convinced that this is impossible as long as the party is led by John Diefenbaker.

Three men are emerging as potential conciliators in the Camp-Diefenbaker dispute. They are: Alvin Hamilton, the Diefenbaker loyalist whose devotion to policy matters has anchored him firmly in the Conservative party of the future; Eddie Goodman, the Toronto lawyer who so brilliantly and impartially conducted the crucial session on the leadership confidence vote at last week's convention; and Arthur Maloney, who fought such a valiant rearguard action as the Diefenbaker-backed candidate for the party presidency.

PREMIER ROBARTS
. . . palpable presence

Even some of the most enthusiastic supporters of Dalton Camp's putsch now pay homage to Maloney. "I disagree with the reasoning that inspired Arthur's candidacy," says Brian Mulroney, the bright young Montreal lawyer who was one of Camp's chief strategists, "but he fought magnificently throughout, and covered himself with glory."

Another significant development during the week was Ontario Premier John Robarts' speech, delivered on Wednesday to the Montreal Advertising and Sales Executives' Club. His advocacy of fuller recognition of the French-speaking minority in his province (plus his recently expressed agreement to a full review of Canada's constitution) is gradually renewing an Ontario-Quebec Conservative axis, which if fully realized, would form an irresistible combination at the Conservative leadership convention. His frequent denials notwithstanding, John Robarts has become the palpable political presence against whose stature all of the Tory hopefuls must now measure themselves.

Firm Step

It will take months, not weeks, for the Conservatives to work out their internal difficulties. But the process of change is under way, and nothing can stop it. "What the party did at its annual meeting," says one of the most responsible Conservatives in the country, "was to take a very firm and courageous step to give the future generation an opportunity to make a meaningful contribution, before the party is led to extinction by the generations of the past."

"Perhaps," he adds, "a few bitter people, clinging to power by their fingernails, will be able to destroy the party. Certainly they will try. I do not believe they will succeed."

India Is Reconsidering Its Nuclear Power Role

By WARREN UNNA
The Washington Post

NEW DELHI — A group of intellectuals has just completed this country's first seminar on nuclear weapons and foreign policy and the consensus was that if India didn't start making a nuclear bomb now she should at least keep her technology geared to a weapons program for the time that she might.

After a week-long closed meeting the seminar reported that "the majority stressed that a power gap had already emerged between India and China which could be bridged only by building up a powerful deterrence of some kind."

Although the seminar long had been planned by the Indian School of International Studies here it actually was held not long after China had announced she had tested not only another nuclear device but a missile carrier as well.

And while the seminar's participants were discussing going nuclear here in New Delhi, India's diplomats at the United Nations were balking at signing an international agreement against nuclear proliferation on the argument that it served mainly to advantage the five nuclear "haves and discriminated against" the nuclear "have nots."

Hasn't Resources

On the official record, both Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Vikram Sarabhai are dead opposed to India going nuclear. They insist that India simply hasn't the resources to both try and develop this hard-pressed nation and go into the fabulously expensive atomic energy business as well.

Although they don't say it publicly, they certainly must realize that the aid-giving nations on whom India still is very much dependent might ask "what gives?" If India were to take their largesse with one hand and spend it on "luxurious nuclear gimmicks" with the other.

Despite this appealing logic of their leaders, more and more Indians are beginning to chafe at the increasing nuclear threat from Communist China.

The major opposition Jan Sangh Party, an Orthodox Hindu group, urges that India go nuclear in its manifesto for next February's five-year general elections. The Praja Socialist Party, the most liberal and intellectual of India's socialist factions, urges the same. So do a number of leaders in Mrs. Gandhi's own Congress Party. At the opening of the nuclear seminar, Vice President Zakir Husain referred to the "national decision" not to go nuclear and emphasized that by doing so India would only be adding to the international threat to mankind.

But the speaker following him, Pandit H. N. Kunzru, president of the Indian School of International Studies, said just the opposite: "It is necessary for India's protection as well as for the protection of Southeast Asia that India should increase its military power and go in for nuclear weapons. This might appear distasteful and contrary to our old beliefs and traditions. But if our freedom is in danger, what is the use of economic development?"

Sisir Gupta, the American-educated research director of the Indian Council of World Affairs, was equally emphatic in an interview the other day. "It is precisely because we are poor that we need this kind of thing," he said. "The prestige in it is fantastic. And I don't see how in 50 years' time the people here are going to be consoled with the prestige which comes from a good standard of living."

No mention at all was made of President Johnson's remark at a Bangkok dinner on Oct. 30: "We have already declared that nations which do not seek national nuclear weapons can be sure that they will have strong support if they need it, against any threat of nuclear blackmail."

The reason the president's remarks haven't been impressive here was hinted at by M. S. Rajan, the director of the School of International Studies.

"We always say our security lies in the fact that the great powers will intervene. But a situation over a hilltop in the Himalayas (a reference to the Chinese invasion in 1962) is not such a great incident for all that attention," Rajan, a no-bomb man himself, declared.

"Would another country really drop a nuclear bomb on China once she had dropped one on us? Even so, could it be done quickly enough to be of much good to us?" A top official in the Indian Ministry of External Affairs asked me not long ago.

No 'Umbrella'

Perhaps this explains why India until now has preferred to work for a world disarmament treaty which would force all the nuclear powers to shed their weapons. It also may explain why India really has never pressed the Soviet Union and the United States to come together on some sort of nuclear "umbrella" guarantee.

Despite all the misgivings about India's own security against China — and they are increasing — no responsible leader in India's government today seems willing to sacrifice economic development to defend India from communism within in order to develop a nuclear complex to protect India from communism without.

Measure of Irresponsibility Shown by Airline Machinists

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — The Air Canada strike offered an interesting lesson in trade union irresponsibility that is worth the public's while to note, because it was against the public that this irresponsibility was directed. What happened was that after the Air Canada machinists went on strike and forced the company to suspend service, various regional air carriers expanded their charter operations to provide emergency service between Canadian cities normally served by Air Canada.

Waring

They were entirely within their legal rights in doing this. Their licences from the Air Transport Board permit them to operate on a charter basis between Canadian points not served by Air Canada, and when Air Canada suspended its service the door became wide open for charter operations along Air Canada's domestic routes.

Canadian Pacific Air Lines continued its normal DC3 jet service between Montreal and Vancouver with stops at Toronto and Winnipeg. It did not ask ATB to authorize extra flights. CPA is known to be in a tight equipment position. It did request, and received, temporary permission to carry domestic passengers on domestic legs of international flights, as between Montreal and Toronto, Vancouver and Calgary, and Vancouver and Edmonton.

That left a huge volume of business — passengers, mail, express and freight — clamoring for air transportation, and it was to meet this demand that the regional carriers entered the picture.

A trans-Canada service was patched together. Eastern Provincial Airways handled the Atlantic provinces, Quebecair funelled traffic into Nordair which carried on to Toronto and to link up with Winnipeg's Transair, which carried on westward to hook up with Pacific Western Airlines at Edmonton and Calgary for the run to Vancouver. Austin Airways served northern Ontario, while other small air services assumed new roles as main line feeders.

The striking union, the International Association of Machinists, protested that the ad hoc charter operations constituted strike breaking, and that the ATB was a party to strike breaking.

Second, sources here close to the situation said the union brought pressure to bear on PWA to dissuade the Vancouver-based regional carrier from participating in the emergency service.

With all its planes grounded, Air Canada was being badly hurt financially. U.S. and overseas competitors were picking up Air Canada business. Ottawa Roughriders prepared to get to the Grey Cup by Eastern, a U.S. line. But the union was not content. It sought to halt east-west air service by the regional carriers, and in so doing, it tried to turn the strike against Air Canada into a strike against the Canadian people.

This was the union's responsibility — and the measure of its irresponsibility.

Should the Young Teach The Young How to Behave?

By ART STOTT

No doubt like a lot of other people in this community, I find myself looking two ways when incidents of extremely bad behaviour occur among the young of this region.

Stott

My first reaction is to grow angry and say: "Let's crack down on these punks."

Then a crackdown takes place. I reverse my emotional collar, breathe deep the air of Christian charity, consider the kids who have landed in the pokey and say: "What can we do for these unfortunates? How can we help restore them to decent society."

My original righteous indignation and my succeeding "nice-Nellyism" seem a little contradictory to me. They're the same kids in both cases, each with individual differences.

From what I have read and what I have heard, I'm convinced that there is no single cause of what we call juvenile delinquency and that there is no single cure. Generalities in analysis or in treatment are of strictly limited value.

It is also my conviction that people of my age don't get through to the youngsters causing trouble and getting into trouble. We live on the same globe but in different worlds. We often use the same words but we speak different languages.

Under these circumstances, it has seemed to me that the most practical approach to the delinquency question might eventually be made by the generation which includes the delinquents. That statement requires qualification, also. I'm told that the young people who don't get into trouble are as remote from the hard core young "hoods" as is an older generation.

At the same time they share to some degree a vernacular and words have the connotation common to them among age groupings. The youth of both, moreover, should tend to avoid the fairly normal hostility of the young toward the viewpoints and attitudes of the adult. Both know that "the old man" is a square, though in some cases where the relationship between a father and his children is agreeable, he's a pretty good square, while where the relationship is bad, he's a miserable so-and-so.

I have been told, also, that the influence of the peer group is important—that it matters to a kid whether or not he's accepted or liked by those of his own years and is recognized by them for his particular characteristics and accomplishments.

On this basis, a local organization led by people short years out of their teens for teens who found it difficult to conform to the usual adult-modelled development system seemed to have some promise. I have had no direct connection with the local organization, but I understand it was not strong financially. I have wondered, on occasion, if it knew where it was heading or what its purposes were, other than to provide a roof under which some people in their teens could assemble and talk.

Now, as a newspaper reader, I'm informed that a few odd balls have wrecked the joint. I don't know whether the vandalism was attributable to liquor or whether destructive young people followed an old stereotype to use the excuse of being liquored-up to smash things.

I'm told that when some of the boys suspected of causing the damage returned later to watch the non-destructive members clean up the mess, that the latter were soft in their impeachment. "It's a pity," one of the clean-up crew is reported to have told one of the suspected marauder, "that you had nothing better in your mind than this."

The soft approach may have been more effective than a punch in the nose might have been. With some, quiet censure accomplishes more than physical violence.

But at all events, this setback doesn't convince me that the hopeful approach to improving the behavior of the misbehaving young isn't through action by the age group concerned. But I'm left wondering if our young people, those who don't get into trouble and the ones we expect to take over important roles in the community in a few years, will be able to generate a program that will emphasize the constructive rather than the destructive for their maladjusted peers. The boys at Brannan Lake, you may have noticed, did quite a job of cone harvesting when they were enlisted for the job. And kids aren't sent to Brannan Lake for helping old ladies across busy streets. When they come out of Brannan Lake they don't all turn to a vocation of helping old ladies across busy streets, either.

Maybe a project technique would help some of the misbehaving youngsters, and it might be particularly effective if youth conceived it, directed it and assumed responsibility for it.

That won't solve the juvenile delinquency problem in its entirety. It might, though, provide an approcah to a solution for some.

Continuing Price Rises Seen by Most Canadians

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Canadians are extremely pessimistic about the rising cost of living. More than eight in ten people feel that prices in general will continue to soar during the next six months.

Probably influenced by the current parliamentary committee, investigating the high cost of living, this shows a marked change in public thinking over the years. In 1960, less than a majority (40%) worried about an increased cost of living. In 1964, it was 64% who looked for higher prices. Today it is 85%.

The question: "Do you think prices in general will go up or down or stay about the same during the next six months?"

Norwegian Tenor Featured on Program

A varied program of operatic arias, ballads and songs in many languages will be presented Sunday afternoon, Dec. 4 at 2:30 at McPherson Playhouse.

The artist is a rapidly rising young Norwegian tenor, Rikard Floer, whose voice has been described by Metropolitan Opera auditioners as "a beautiful lyric tenor in the Mozartean tradition ... a voice of rare beauty."

During the summer and fall Mr. Floer has been fulfilling many successful engagements in Scandinavian countries. He is at present in the United States and en route to Victoria will fill a New York engagement.

His repertoire is exceptional as is his command of languages. He is fluent in eight, sings in 16. He has sung leading operatic roles at the Royal Theatre, Copenhagen, in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

Tenor soloist with symphony orchestras in Aalborg, Copenhagen, Oslo, Los Angeles and New York, Mr. Floer has given recitals of art songs, folk songs and opera and operetta on both stage and radio in several Scandinavian and U.S. cities.

In his lighter music, especially the folk songs and operetta excerpts, the singer frequently accompanies himself on his guitar.

A group of folk songs and serenades will be sung to his own accompaniment at the Sunday concert here, but for the Italian group, the Schumann lieder and operatic arias, Mr. Floer will be accompanied by Bryan Gooch.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Television, in an apparent first, has succeeded in purchasing a new play originally intended for the Broadway stage.

National Broadcasting Company paid $112,500 for the work, a William Hanley drama, "Flesh and Blood." It was the highest amount an author has received for a single television work.

The play is a six-character drama about a New York family. The author was widely acclaimed for his 1964 Broadway production, "Slow Dance on the Killing Ground."

NBC vice-president William Storke described the new play as a "bold and daring" adult drama, which would be presented unabridged in a two-hour show.

The transaction points up competition between the TV networks for bringing original quality drama to the screen. The author's fee is more than four times the amount CBS recently offered for new plays.

Broadway producer David Merrick described the deal as "good for the writer. It's a free tryout for big money — a lot more than the author would get in Westport (Conn.)" where many Broadway trials are held.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Rip Torn will star in "You're a Big Boy Now" with Geraldine Page and Julie Harris.

Phyllis Wants an 'Empire' of Houses

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — You don't talk to Phyllis Diller, really, you are engulfed by her.

If anything, she is funnier off-stage or screen than she is on.

She begins with a rapid-fire monologue that makes it almost impossible to discuss anything.

But I did learn that the troops in Viet Nam are in for a treat this Christmas when the blonde star of The Pruitts of Southampton joins Bob Hope on his annual trek to entertain servicemen.

She's also completed a book, Phyllis Diller's housekeeping hints, that has sold some unknown thousands of copies and doubtless will lead many harried homemaker to ruin.

When she's not making movies — latest of which is Eight on the Lam — or working in her current ABC-TV series, Phyllis hustles the hustings in stage productions and theatre-in-the-round.

"Weekends I play in tents or anywhere else they'll have me," said Phyllis during the noon break on her show.

"I adore working this hard. When I'm not working I feel something is wrong. Besides I'm building an empire. I want castles in Spain and Ireland and a beach house on the Mediterranean.

"I'm not kidding. I want to drop in anytime I want and have a fire on the hearth and a hot dinner waiting. You have no idea how impossible it is to find a decent place to stay in Europe."

Today Phyllis is the champion stand-up comedienne in the country. Most female comics — excluding such sitcom greats as Lucille Ball — are resented by men and loathed by females.

"In the beginning my audiences were preponderantly women," Phyllis explained. "Now they're about 50-50. Women discovered me on television. And by the laughs I can tell almost exactly the percentage of men and women in an audience.

"Everyone accepts me now, including all ages, dogs, cats and babies.

"At first men would tell me they didn't like comediennes. So I knew the target and the problems. The main thing I had to remember was to stay feminine.

"But that's no trouble. I can't help being feminine. It's the natural thing for me to be. Right?"

Even with her fright-wig hairdo and raucous AAAAHH-HAAAH-H—H laugh, Phyllis retains her femininity. Don't ask me how, but she does. Under all that veneer of wild woman beats the heart and humor of a very female dame.

"There's one other thing I think everybody should know," Phyllis concluded. "I'm the greatest mother in the world. I mean, the greatest there ever was!"

This time she didn't laugh at all.

"Imagine Andy Hebenton playing 1,000 consecutive professional games," said the man in the Brown Suit.
His tablemate in IMPERIAL dining room, the man in the Blue Suit corrected him: "That will be 1,007 games by Wednesday, Andy Hebenton night." That started the argument.
It was left to our Maitre d', Leslie to rule Blue Suit right, then add, "Of course it will really be 1,076 games."
Leslie pointed out Handy Andy had also played 69 playoff hockey games in his no-miss streak which started with Victoria Cougars, March 8, 1952. No athlete, pro or amateur is close to threatening this record. Leslie said the Maple Leaf winger who calls Victoria home has earned the honors awaiting him Wednesday and he hoped both gentlemen would be present.
"You sure get the works with your steak here," said Brown Suit.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Reunion of two friends, long associated professionally in music, occurs in Victoria next Wednesday.

The reunion has significance for the musical public because it provides an opportunity to hear in recital two of Canada's most gifted and successful native sons — violinist Sydney Humphreys and Robin Wood, pianist.

Both British Columbians — Mr. Humphreys was born in Chilliwack — the two artists' careers have run a parallel course up to the time that Robin Wood left London to take over the directorship of the School of Music here.

Mr. Humphreys, who had studied with Garbovitsky in Vancouver, won a Royal Academy scholarship, and went to London in 1946 at about the same time as Mr. Wood left Victoria on scholarship.

The two met in London and, after a time, formed a musical partnership in sonata and other ensemble performances.

Eventually they were associated in the St. Cecilia Trio which was noted for its BBC recitals and in tours of Great Britain and European cities.

In recent years Sydney Humphreys has worked closely with Yehudi Menuhin and is a member of Menuhin's ensemble, the Bath Chamber Orchestra which is coming to Expo in 1967.

He studied extensively with Georges Enesco and is a professor of violin at the Royal Academy.

Mr. Humphreys' and Mr. Wood's program of Debussy, Faure and Brahms Sonatas which they will play at St. Ann's Academy Auditorium next Wednesday evening, will provide a rich sampling of the incomparable repertoire of violin-piano works.

In the meantime they are also scheduled to tape two CBC recitals.

Twenty years ago the poverty of musical life in Canada would have provided almost no opportunities for professional careers for either of these two brilliant sons.

Today things are a little better — but only a little. Opportunities are still almost as scarce as bar-lines in some contemporary music compositions.

We are still waiting for Canadians generally and officially to grow up, to depart from infantile attitudes of thought, to stop paying homage to mediocrity and commonplaceness.

In our search for nationhood we continue to squabble over symbols and words instead of paying attention to the brains and gifts and guts of our people, the attributes that really build a nation and make it great.

Perhaps it will seem that I am overstating the case but I firmly believe that everyone who asserts an interest in the arts and who fails to pay serious attention — not always in terms of praise — to Canadian artists, writers, magazines and endeavors, contributes to our backwardness.

In Canada we do not have many (or any) statesmen; but we have a great many politicians who are impressed and activated only by the positive, the militant and the multiple in public expression.

Can it be wondered that they remain ignorant and indifferent toward development of the arts when those of us who could and should form a solid front are so palidly indifferent, so lacking in national pride and ambition.

Possibly it is not fair to fire such broadsides at a time when the Centennial spotlight has been turned rather heavily on the arts.

Beside my typewriter at the moment lies the 1967 official syllabus of the Greater Victoria Music Festival. Enclosed with it is the syllabus for the Centenary Festivals of Music which will be conducted across Canada in liaison with local festivals.

A total of $11,000 in prizes is involved for those who reach the national level.

This is all to the good, but I am skeptical enough to wonder if, once the Centennial is over, there will be any follow-through. Or will the authorities sink back into their usual state of inertia?

Centenary festival classes will be a part of regular local festival operations and in general local festival regulations will be in force with entry fees set by the local committee.

There are however several special regulations with regard to centenary classes. Both official books are available at city music stores now.

Unusual Program Promises To Be a Symphony Delight

In a breakaway from the more usual type of concerto presentation, Victoria Symphony Orchestra will take its listeners on an intriguing exploration of instrumental writing this weekend.

Pianist Robin Wood and trumpeter David Fisher will be the featured duettists in a concerto written for their instruments and string orchestra by Dmitri Shostakovich.

In addition Otto - Werner Mueller will conduct the orchestra in performances of the Schubert "Unfinished" Symphony and Beethoven's Fourth.

Mr. Wood, director of the School of Music, is a Canadian pianist with an international reputation who, this winter, will be heard in important CBC recitals and as soloist with the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra.

Also a native son of British Columbia, Mr. Fisher has been principal trumpet with Victoria Symphony for nine years, has given numerous recitals and been soloist in Victoria Choral Society's Messaih. He was director of the brass ensemble in the University of Victoria's Renaissance 65 Festival.

FISHER
. . . shares spotlight

He studied with Jacques LeComte in Montreal and has taught trumpet in the Royal Canadian Navy School of Music for five years.

At present he is serving as a CPO with the Canadian Forces Band, Esquimalt and is on the staff of the School of Music.

As for the Schostakovich Concerto, even the most conventional music lover in the audience should find it a refreshing and delightful experience.

It is a spectacular piece, showing off the solo instruments in passages of glittering virtuousity but having episodes of delightful melody.

Written in a playful, sometimes satiric mood by one of the greatest of contemporary Soviet composers, it was completed between 1932 and 34, the period of his brilliant opera, Lady Macbeth.

Sandwiched between the two well-loved works from the traditional repertoire, it will contribute to an exciting program of contrasts.

First City Production For Bastion Staffer

"Laugh now — think later" is the theme of Bastion Theatre's first Studio production of the season, Red Eye Of Love, opening Friday and running three successive weekends.

Hailed as "wildly funny" and "dizzy and delightful" when it ran in New Work, the Arnold Weinstein avant-garde comedy is the first Victoria production to be directed by Eugene Gallant, National Theatre School graduate who joined the staff of Bastion Theatre this summer.

Red Eye of Love has the familiar eternal triangle situation with somewhat unusual characters — a moneyed butcher with a thirteen-floor meat market, a poor but idealistic inventor who is interested in security and securities, and a loving young thing who feels it's her duty to marry money.

Len Bentham, Dan Christian, Wendy Copeland, Anne Crawford, Joy Richards, John Richards, Suzanne Salmond, Edie Smith, Marta Sutherland and Barbara Waldner are in the cast. The play will be staged in Bastion's intimate Studio Theatre, 1322-A Government Street, on Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Dec. 2, 3, 4; 9, 10 and 11; and 16, 17, 18. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Since seating capacity is limited to 68, reservations are being taken now at 382-4112.

Prelude To Christmas

One of the first of the pre-Christmas programs of religious music to be presented this season takes place Sunday, Dec. 4 at St. John's Anglican Church, Quadra Street.

The concert, under auspices of St. Peter's Church, Lake Hill, senior choir, will feature the Don Kyle Singers and the Orpheus Ensemble.

The Don Kyle Singers is a ladies' ensemble which, at the 1966 Victoria Music Festival won the CBC Award for highest rating in all adult choir classes.

Musical director and conductor Don Kyle is also director of the Orpheus Ensemble, a mixed voice group of talented singers.

Mr. Kyle, a teacher at Claremont Senior Secondary School, is choir master of St. Peter's Church senior choir.

Bearing the theme, Prelude to Christmas, the program will include numbers by Healey Willan, Thiman, Bach and other world-renowned composers.

Proceeds of a collection will go to aid the building fund of St. Peter's Church.

Irked by Stories

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese officials, apparently irked by news stories about government corruption and black marketeering, have bought 4,000 copies of Newsweek to prevent them from reaching newstands. The government in the past has bought up copies of both Time and Newsweek in an apparent effort to keep them from the public.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

Coast Painters More Varied Than Suggested

This is my last column. Reorganization of the paper's cultural coverage has made it necessary to discontinue it. Ultimately it is always necessary for a paper to change its reviewers, for otherwise what should be stimulating becomes predictable and the same old viewpoint is trotted out week after week.

Skelton

The arts are always endangered by the formation of a critical "establishment," and it is high time this column was replaced by one livelier and more authoritative.

However, before I say farewell I would like to draw your attention to the publication of a book which must clearly be reckoned the Book of the Year by all interested in Canadian art.

It is J. Russell Harper's Painting in Canada, a History and is published by Toronto University Press and Les Presses de l'Universite Laval with the assistance of the Canada Council.

Model for All Young Writers

Splendidly designed, beautifully illustrated, and thoroughly documented, this book is a model for all who wish to write art history and make it meaningful to the general public as well as valuable to the scholar.

Any compendious history is obliged, of course, to summarize a great many complex matters in a little space. Brevity here makes several of the critical comments upon modern painters appear inadequate or even incorrect.

A great many of Herbert Siebner's paintings are neither impersonal nor cold, as Mr. Harper suggests, and his subject matter is not restricted to the nude.

Don Jarvis, Gordon Smith, Roy Kiyooka and Takao Tanabe (to take British Columbia painters as illustrations of my point) are much more varied in their approaches than this book indicates.

I find the description of Maxwell Bates as a disciple of Picasso also to be somewhat inadequate, and I was sorry to note the absence of any reference to the work of Brian Fisher and Richard Ciccimarra.

No two people will ever completely agree about the work of living painters.

Viewpoints must differ in art and the criticism of art would suffer from a deadening uniformity of outlook and innovation become impossible.

Every critic has his faults and if I detect one or two of Mr. Harper's this does not mean that I am any the less awed by his achievements.

Some aspects of this book deserve particular mention and commendation. The book is not only well indexed and footnoted, but also includes biographical sketches of all the painters mentioned, and a valuable bibliography of books, catalogues and periodicals.

Mere words can hardly do justice to the splendor of the numerous illustrations, all of which seem to me to have been chosen with a proper eye to their informative as well as their aesthetic potential.

Exceptionally important painters are represented by several reproductions and almost every painting or drawing reproduced is commented upon in the main text.

No one interested in Canadian art can afford to miss this book; the illustrations alone make the price of $20 ridiculously low.

Local Show Tribute to Gallery

The publication of Harper's Painting in Canada is an event of national, even international importance. Future as well as present painters and students will find it indispensable.

Returning, however, finally to our local scene, I must take the opportunity to advise you, not only to buy Canadian Painting for yourselves this Christmas, but also to visit the Victoria Art Gallery and be impressed by the exhibition of recent acquisitions. It is a lively, varied, and thoroughly praiseworthy show, and a tribute to the gallery's enterprise.

Enterprise was also in evidence earlier this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Patterson who mounted an exhibition of the work of Stephen Leskard in their own home, and made me, for one, hope that this Vancouver painter may soon be given a show over here.

Now this show is over, unfortunately, but I mention it so that you may look out for Mr. Leskard's work in future, and discover for yourself the sensual vitality of his brushwork, the delicacy of his line and the strength of his compositions.

BENTE GETS READY FOR MOVE

A Business Woman Is Born

Pandora's Box Moves Into Angel's Camp

By DESMOND BILL

Bente Rehm has learned a lot in the last nine months.

She has found out that nude paintings don't sell in Victoria. People are worried about where to hang them.

She has discovered that even bad reviews of an exhibition help to sell it.

She has learned that customers are harder to deal with than artists.

And, apparently, she has learned the secret of suecess in the art business.

Miss Rehm is the long-haired, black-stockinged, Danish-born woman who nine months ago opened Pandora's Box, a contemporary art gallery on Pandora just off Douglas.

She still has long hair and wears black stockings but now she talks like a business woman rather than a beatnik.

And next Saturday she will open the new Pandora's Box in the premises at 1208 Wharf Street that were briefly occupied by a rival gallery, Angel's Camp.

Taking over her rival's actual location is symbolic of her success, although one of the main reasons why Angel's Camp closed is that one of its two partners decided he would rather paint his own paintings than sell other people's.

Her success is shown in other ways too. Canadian Art, the principal Canadian art magazine, has commissioned Tony Emery to review the first two exhibitions of 1967 at Pandora's Box. One will feature works of young Victoria artists Tony Aish, Mike Hartley and Eric Metcalfe. The following show will be of paintings by Larry Foden, a young Vancouver artist.

But for the opening next weekend the gallery will show a miscellany of paintings and drawings, etchings and carvings, pottery and jewelry, all of it priced, as Miss Rehm briskly says, "for the Christmas shopper."

When she says things like that she sometimes stops and asks, "Am I beginning to sound like Eaton's catalogue?"

Many of her customers are buying original art for the first time. She finds that they usually will first purchase an inexpensive print, often as a gift, and then later come back for something else for themselves.

Miss Rehm does not try to influence them much in their choice. She does not think it's possible, she says even reviewers have little effect on purchasers.

"Even a bad review helps sales. People come to see what is being criticized. And often they decide they like what they see and consider that the criticism is only one person's opinion."

She is used to customers who agonize over a decision. They like a painting, come back to see it with their husband, then go away and bring back a friend to get another opinion.

A NATIVE of St. Felix de Valois, Que., Rejean Ducharme, 25, is becoming the wonder of the current literary season in France with his first novel, L' Avalee des Avales. But Ducharme has never been in Paris and shys away from interviewers. He was last reported in St. Ignace de Loyola, Que.

Miss Rehm has given up trying to guess about customers. A few weeks ago a man walked into the gallery and indicated he wanted to make a purchase. She showed him some of her stock, then more of it, and finally all of it.

When he left he had bought $900 worth, the largest sale she has made. He was curator of Newfoundland's new Memorial University Art Gallery. His purchases included a $600 painting by Donald Harvey, a Victoria painter now in Greece on a Canada Council scholarship.

Trouble is, there are not many customers like him. Miss Rehm says that, although the gallery has been more successful than many persons predicted it would ever be, she still just barely covers expenses.

She does not set prices; the artists themselves do this. Few persons quibble over the cost of a painting but if anyone does, she can now offer them a new service: art on the instalment plan.

The new premises are much roomier than the old and will enable Miss Rehm to put on non-commercial film shows, concerts and poetry readings.

The poetry readings at the old location were regular events. Like the contents of the gallery, which are almost all Canadian, the readings featured works of Canadian authors, principally of 20-year-old Irish-born Cyril McColgan, who sold out the 300 copies of his first book of poetry through Pandora's Box.

The move also means it is possible for Pandora's Box to stay open now at nights—on Fridays and Saturdays. At the old location the lack of power for lighting made this impossible.

And that, as Miss Rehm says, in her best advertising spoof, "Is just one more service of the new, enlarged, bigger and better Pandora's Box."

EXPERT BUGGING KEY TO POWER

SECRETS OF ELECTRONIC ESPIONAGE by John M. Carroll. Clarke, Irwin & Co., 1966, 217 pp. $4.75.

Reviewed by Group Capt. D. B. Wurtele

Secrets of Electronic Espionage is a fascinating story of the efforts of rival nations to seek out carefully guarded secrets from each other by means of electronic equipment.

In these days when developments in technology are occuring so swiftly, the need to determine the position which another nation has reached is most important, if national security is to be preserved. In time of mistrust a significant development in scientific research could completely upset the balance of power.

To prevent such progress taking place without the knowledge of rival nations, individuals are employed in what is commonly known as spying.

Why such people should be despised by their countrymen is one of those strange anomalies of human nature, for these people struggle just as sincerely and earnestly to preserve their country's security as any member of the armed service. In fact, as indicated in this book they are sometimes one and the same.

The book begins with the first steps taken during the 1914-18 war in espionage by electronic means. From these first crude efforts the story traces the developments of radio and radar devices to the second world war.

It is illustrated with exciting events showing how the balance of technical power moved from side to side with new offensive gadgets and better counter measures.

Some of these illustrations show how a seemingly insignificant error or event can change the whole course of human history.

The tale of the German endeavours to discover the state of the British radar screen in 1939 and the erroneous report which they received because of the fear of one technician is one which fires the imagination. In fact, imagination can run riot if one contemplates what might have happened had fear not prompted this man to take the easy way out.

At this point in the book one's interest is thoroughly aroused as the story goes on through the 1939-45 war, the deadly struggle in which the successes of new technical devices see-sawed back and forth.

One side developed an electronically controlled bomb with devastating results. The other side sought and soon found methods of jamming the devices so that the bomb became useless.

This history reveals the constant search for better electronic equipment and new ways and means of neutralizing its capabilities.

However, perhaps the most fascinating part of the book is the story of the efforts of nations since 1945 to carry out reconnaissance sorties into each other's areas of secret operations.

In these days when so many are puzzled by the events which seem to have overtaken us, Secrets of Electronic Espionage is worth reading. Although it does not provide all the answers, it does give an indication of the exciting, progressive and perhaps fearful world in which we live.

A good book for everyone to read who is interested in the world around him. Although the title suggests a highly technical book, it is not so and can be readily understood by all readers.

COLORFUL WINDOW SHADE FOR YOUR PASS-THROUGH

By PAULINE GRAVES

One of the boons of living in our era is the great stride made in technology, in the new synthetics and plastics developed probably for the space programs, but with by-products benefiting our everyday lives.

Imaginative designers take these products and come up with new materials for windows, for walls, for floors and upholstery. Never have we had such a richness from which to choose.

In this small breakfast area, decorated by Lloyd and Suzanne Faulkner, A.I.D. affiliates, a window shade material dresses up the pass-through.

The material, woven of thin wooden slats, chenille in assorted colors and metallic thread, is a handsome addition to window fabrics, developed in recent years, and fairly widespread by now. But this is a new application.

Installed as it would be for a window, the shade pulls down from a roll at the top to close off the pass-through completely. Or it can be held in any desired position to frame the opening. A valance across the top hides the roll. The shade slides in a narrow metal track on each side so that it will remain firm.

A nice finishing touch is the use of the same material on the base of the pass-through under the counter, so that there is a unity between the upper and lower areas. Although the texture is particularly effective, almost any shade material, providing it is fairly rigid, could be selected.

Tricks Save Cold Cash On Your Heating Bill

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — An analog computer, able to "shrink" a 24-hour day to 14 seconds and to duplicate electronically the many factors that affect home heating, has come up with three simple tricks for saving cold cash on heating.

Lorne Nelson, a research engineer for Honeywell, Inc., which deals in temperature controls, and computers, too, said these tricks will make your home more comfortable and might save you as much as one-fourth of your winter heating bill.

The computer, linked to a house, he explained, used special "function generators" to duplicate such outdoor conditions as temperature, humidity, wind direction and velocity, sunshine and even hills or trees around the house. Simply by plugging in different generators Nelson was able to duplicate electronically a howling blizzard, a simmering heat wave, or a mild spring day.

Other devices simulated variations in home construction materials, the number of windows, insulation thickness, weatherstripping, furniture and even the number of people in the family.

The conclusions:

— Use a controlled humidifier to pump extra moisture into the air. Winter air doesn't have much humidity to begin with. What little there is is baked out by the heating system.

Dry air sucks moisture out of wood. Door and window frames shrink, letting cold air pour in through the cracks — as much cold air as might blow in if you opened the window an inch.

Pumping extra moisture into the air expands the wood and helps close the cracks. It also prevents other dry-air damage to furnishings and makes people more comfortable.

Just don't overdo it. Too much moisture can cause condensation on windows, damage paint, wet insulation.

— Set your furnace fan so it runs most of the time during the winter to smooth out sudden temperature changes each time the furnace starts up. In a forced air heating system, because the furnace heats the ducts as well as the air, running the fan continually circulates the "waste" heat stored in the ducts and helps trim fuel bills.

— Insulate the basement ceiling, if the basement isn't regularly heated, to make upstairs floors warmer — quieter, too. Rugs help protect floors from cold basement air but often there is quite a temperature difference between the cold floor and the rest of the room.

The computer turned up another recommendation:

A thermostat should be located on an inside wall where it can "see" an outside window. Because some of your body heat radiates to cold outside walls and windows, Nelson explained, if the thermostat can see a cold window it will help compensate for this effect.

For the same reason, he said, thermostats never should be put in a hallway. They should be in the living or dining room along with the rest of the family. "They'll feel better and so will you."

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. At what age should a Christmas-cactus flower? And have you any knowledge of a Jade-tree flowering? H. T. B., Oak Bay.

A. The Christmas-cactus (Zygocactus truncatus or Schlumbergera Bridgesii as it may soon be reclassified), has no set age to begin flowering. A piece taken from the parent plant in April this year and now growing in a three-inch pot will bloom this Christmas just as well as the parent plant.

The Jade-tree, or Chinese-jade (Crassula argentea) needs to be about three years old from a cutting before it is ripened enough to bloom, which it should do early in the new year. There is a prostrate form of jade named Crassula lactea which blooms freely each year under practically any conditions. High summer temperatures (80 to 90 deg. F.) in a sunroom seem to be required to initiate the flower buds on the tree form however. I have seen many of these plants flowering. They hold the clusters of pale pink blossoms like tiny jewels for many weeks.

Q. I was interested in your recent article on outdoor ferns. Where can I obtain some seeds to grow some myself, and what conditions would I need to raise the seedlings? N.M.V., Victoria.

A. Ferns are raised from spores which are produced on the undersides of mature fronds. A few specialists' catalogs list these, or as you come across some of the native ferns in late summer bearing the brown spores, you could take a frond from each of the types you wish to grow.

After the spores are fully ripe, they will shake off on a sheet of white paper and they are then ready to "sow." Scatter the spores on the surface of a finely screened sand and peat mixture, and do not cover with soil. Keep the pot standing in a saucer of water, cover the pot with a sheet of glass, and shade with a piece of paper until germination takes place. Never let the pot dry out, for the spores need constant moisture in order to germinate. They are not seeds but spores and the resulting tiny plants are called sporelings. They first appear as almost a mossy growth but as soon as the green appears they must have a little light. Keep moist until the sporelings are ready to transplant to separate small pots.

Reap Every Benefit From the Taxes You Pay

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

These days everyone is concerned about the tax dollars and what is received in return.

In common with other workers and hobbyists we gardeners do a lot of complaining but very few of us avail ourselves of the services these tax dollars provide.

For example, Saanich ratepayers are taxed for library service. In the Town-and-Country Plaza there is now a branch of the Victoria Public Library for the convenience of Saanich residents.

Just for my own records I have recently mentioned this fact to 27 gardeners living in Saanich and discovered that only two of that group have borrowed gardening books from the library.

It would also be interesting to know how many gardeners living on lower Vancouver Island make a regular practice of visiting the Provincial Museum.

In addition to the services of the Director, Botanist, Entomologist, Biologist, and Anthropologist, there are monthly displays of native plants and a fine collection of plant specimens.

Exhibits and lectures provide the home gardener with much valuable information on birds, insects, animals and plants, while the various museum publications make excellent additions to the gardener's own library.

Located in the east wing of the Parliament Buildings, the Museum is accessible to all local gardeners, and may be visited all day on weekdays and afternoon on Sunday. Taxation dollars make this trained staff and the museum services available.

Directly across Government Street from the Museum is situated the comparatively new Douglas Block which houses the B.C. Department of Agriculture (BCDA).

In one office we find the horticulturists who can name our fruits or potatoes, advise provide the answers to many everyday gardening problems.

In other offices we find the entomologist who has first hand information on pests and pest controls and the plant pathologist who deals with plant diseases.

And that is not all that the gardener's tax dollar provides, for each of these offices has large wallcase loaded with free bulletins and publications on plant growing in British Columbia, pruning, spraying, and the pests and diseases we are likely to encounter as we ply our hobby.

Further tax dollars maintain the Experimental Farm at Saanichton, part of the Canada Department of Agriculture (CD) services. Here again the gardener can seek the solution to his problems, obtain free federal publications, and see the collection of ornamental plants which will do well in local gardens.

This is one of a chain of Experimental Farms or Stations that stretches from coast to coast, each publishing free bulletins and reports on the work in hand.

From the Queen's Printer in Ottawa the gardener can obtain some excellent publications some free, some costing from 25 cents to one dollar but worth many times the asking price because tax dollars take care of the main production costs.

To become acquainted with this vast supply of gardening information, one may visit or write the sources mentioned and obtain a list of the publications available. From these lists it is possible to build a gardening library which will be of lasting interest and great value.

These services are maintained, in fact are made possible, by a small portion of our tax dollar, yet hundreds of gardeners fail to get the value that is theirs.

Every time I avail myself of any of these sources of help I feel satisfied my tax dollar has been wisely invested and that I have received good interest on the investment.

WEEK'S WORK

The planting of fruit trees may be the chief job for many gardeners this week. Be sure to attach a permanent name label to a stout stake near each tree, or make an entry on a diagram of the property with the location of the trees clearly marked.

Sow a few broad beans in a piece of good soil. A handful of smooth round peas may bring an early crop if the weather co-operates.

If potted azaleas are budding freely, the blossoms may be encouraged to open by removing the newest shoots which may be forming around the flower buds. Syringe the plants with tepid water and never let the soil become dry.

Prune grape vines in greenhouses: clean the rods (canes) of all loose bark; apply fresh top soil around the roots.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Monday and Tuesday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair — will be demonstrated in Victoria this Monday and Tuesday, November 28 and 29.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist Victor Booth to conduct the Victoria clinic. Mr. Booth will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the Sussex Hotel.

Satisfy 95%

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Booth," director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home Treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver.

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We can not help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison and his staff trichologists do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

A NARROW ESCAPE . . . . . . INITIATING FIRST MATE

Ghosts Lent Their Voices to Farewell

By JOHN MANNING

Former Victoria Times reporter John Manning and his wife Pat are currently on a 12,000-mile "Centennial Cruise" aboard their tiny sailing ship Powindah. The pair started in England and hope to end their cruise in the Inner Harbor. This is the second in a series of articles on their adventures.

It was the little ship's last night in England. From her open skylight came laughter and the sound of sea chanties, which echoed back — ghost-like — from the walls of a 400-year-old seaman's pub fronting the Hamble River.

It gave the night an uncanny feeling: as though the crew of Captain Vancouver's ship, the Discovery, had arisen from the dead to lend their voices to this farewell. For on April 1, 1791, that ship had begun a somewhat similar voyage to Canada from England, one destined to play an important part in the years leading up to Confederation.

Our hope was not to follow in the wake of the "Discovery" for the celebration of Canada's Centennial year. Although we were bent on covering only a portion of Captain Vancouver's route our voyage would cross 12,000 miles. It was to be made under sail, as he had done, and see us putting into the majority of places which he had explored prior to his arrival in Canadian waters.

Where the Discovery had been 100 feet long, with a crew of as many men, our 30-foot vessel had only myself and my wife to man her. She was rigged in the ancient way: without deck winches, looking more like a miniature square rigger than a yacht.

On board were charts covering a projected route through the French canals to the Mediterranean, across to the Balearic Islands, down the coast of Spain to Gibraltar, to the Canary Islands, across the Atlantic to the West Indies, through Panama to the Galapagos Islands, Tahiti, Bora-Bora, Honolulu and the northern reaches of the Pacific to Victoria, B.C. God willing and weather permitting, the voyage would be completed within 12 months.

Neither my 25-year-old wife nor I had ever attempted an ocean crossing. Patricia's sailing experience began with our honeymoon on the West Coast of Canada. However, she soon proved true that adage in the Canadian Navy which insists that Prairie dwellers make the best sailors.

Our dream of making this centennial voyage home from England, where I had been working as a journalist, began to take shape eight months before when we arrived in England to look for a boat which would meet the requirements for such a venture. The market was ideal. Credit restrictions were tight: money was short and there were countless vessels for sale, many of them at bargain prices.

In spite of this, it took four months of constant searching to locate the "right" boat. To fit this category she had to be capable of keeping the sea in any type of weather; able to be handled by one person (should an accident befall either of us); be strongly rigged and in such a manner that would allow one to reduce sail and still make way in strong winds. There were other considerations as well: large water tanks, ample stowage space for stores, a diesel engine, a workable chart table, a stove on gimballs, large bunks and atmosphere below decks.

Powindah had all these attributes, one of the few boats we saw that did. Although she was 30 years old her masts, rigging, sails and interior arrangements were virtually new. Added to this, a professional surveyor gave her pitch pine on oak hull a clean bill of health.

"She may not be the fastest boat in the world," he said, "but she'll get you where you want to go!"

Her first owner had sailed her to the Azores and back to England, for which voyage he was awarded the Challenge Cup of England's famed Royal Cruising Club. Her sister ship, Diotima, had sailed across the Atlantic twice.

As soon as Powindah became ours we began sailing her in every type of weather imaginable. Attempting this in the middle of an English winter, with an unfamiliar ship and a Winnipeg girl for crew, was an adventure in itself, a foretaste of things to come. Once it nearly resulted in our losing both the ship and our lives.

On this occasion the idea had been to initiate the first mate into the rigors of night sailing. Both tide and wind were fair. The night was clear and a full net of stars hung over the south coast of England. As we cleared the Hamble River the liner France came down-channel from Southampton, looking as Pat put it: "Like a moving city of light."

As this grand dame of the high seas passed us a large motor vessel loomed out of the darkness, cutting across the liner's wake and making straight for the Powindah. To one side were the blazing lights of the Fawley Oil Refinery and we suddenly realized that our running lights might not be visible against such a backdrop of brilliance.

The oncoming vessel had a bow wave the size of a large tug. It sounded like a waterfall coming towards us. There was no time to light a flare, or even go below for the spotlight. There was no time for anything but the realization that our dream voyage was in the process of ending before it began.

I heard my wife say: "Oh, God, don't let it happen now."

We swung our bow to meet the blind monster head on. This action saved us. The movement of Powindah's lights was seen. The oncoming ship sheered off to starboard, her bow wave lacing a veil of spray over our stern. They cut their engine. Someone opened the wheelhouse door, came out, walked over and looked down from the wing of the bridge at us.

No one spoke. There was nothing to say. We were alive. We sailed on.

I thought of this now as our friends sang below the deck and I heard one of them, a bearded seaman from a schooner down river, wish the ship a comfortable channel crossing.

As it turned out, the English Channel had other things in mind.

IN A DIFFERENT WORLD ALMOST EVERY EVENING

SAN FRANCISCO — There is something for everybody when it comes to entertainment aboard the passenger liners serving the Pacific.

Steamship lines have stepped up their shipboard programs to lure a greater share of the fast-growing Pacific travel market, according to E. Howard Green, secretary-chairman of the Trans Pacific Passenger Conference.

"This is what helps to make ship travel unique," Green pointed out. "The passenger lines know they have something to offer that can't be duplicated by other forms of travel. Cruise ships have become floating resorts and today's cruise vacationer demands — and gets — first-class entertainment at sea."

The major passenger lines — American President Lines, Matson Lines, and P. & O. Lines — have entertainment programs equal to those of any luxury resort ashore. There are professional singers and dancers, musicales, "theme" parties, bingo, horse racing (with wooden "ponies") and a surprising range of deck sports.

In addition, the lines present various "special interest" cruises which offer professional instruction in such fields as photography, gold, shopping and fashion, bridge, flower arranging, gourmet cooking, art, dancing and even bird-watching.

Each line, for that matter, each ship, provides its own distinctive touches to passenger events, giving Pacific cruising a colorful international flair.

If cricket is your game, a match can be set up aboard one of the giant P. & O. liners such as the Oriana or Canberra. On APL's passenger ships you will find such exotic games as mah jong (Chinese) and Go and Shogi (Japanese). And on Matson's Lurline in Hawaii service, golfers may whack buckets of balls into the Pacific.

Travel talks, travelogues, first run feature movies and slide shows on ports of call add to the dimension of liner travel for voyagers of all ages.

On the glamor side, thanks to the ingenuity of cruise staffs, many from the world of show business — an evening's shipboard atmosphere may be transformed from an Oriental mood one night to Polynesian, to a Latin Fiesta or Bavarian village celebration.

Steamship passengers often find that they are pretty good at providing entertainment themselves, Green noted.

"There are those who love to get in the swing of things by taking part in costume and fashion shows," Green said. "And the shipboard talent shows bring out the latent 'ham' in many a shoreside wallflower."

The traditional shipboard sports — swimming, paddle tennis, trapshooting and shuffleboard — are always available on all liners. And many ship travellers find the most enjoyment in just curling up with a good book from the ship's library, or dedicationg the lazy days at sea to the ancient and honorable art of deck-chair snoozing — between meals, of course.

Squaw May Become Year-Round Paradise

By HANS ENGH

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. — Twenty years ago a lone cowboy, an inveterate non-skier, lived in splendid isolation in this remote area tucked neatly into the folds of the majestic Sierra Nevada mountain range.

Today Squaw is the largest single ski resort in the United States. And its promoters, occupationally incapable of thinking small, have all sorts of plans to turn it into an all-year alpine paradise — North America's answer to Chamonix, France, and St. Moritz, Switzerland.

Squaw owes its prominence primarily to a single event — the 1960 Winter Olympic Games. That California, most often thought of in terms of sunshine and sandy beaches, was awarded the games in the first place will always be remembered as a classic example of U.S. salesmanship at its best.

In truth, Squaw, with the official backing of the State of California, had little but a glorious setting to offer. It turned out to be more than enough. The games unquestionably were among the finest ever held, and Squaw's future was assured.

Its continuing success is proof positive that skiing is the most "in" of all sports and that the California ski crowd is about as "camp" as you can get.

The many Lake Tahoe area ski resorts, of which Squaw is the largest and best known, are unique in that they offer their customers the best of two worlds. Not only is the skiing superb from Thanksgiving to May, but the gaming halls and plush hotels on the Nevada side of the lake offer all kinds of after-dark fun. Where else can a skier schuss to his heart's delight all day long, dine in scrumptious surroundings while watching the world's greatest entertainers perform and then move on to rounds of gambling unlimited?

A gondola ride and 14 double chairs are in operation at Squaw this year. This abundance of lifts gives skiers a maximum number of hours on the slopes with little time wasted in line. On a busy weekend, reservations are a must at Squaw. There are three hotels: The Inn and the Lodge in the luxury category and the Olympic Village, where the athletes stayed in 1960, in the more moderate price class. All have special ski week rates. And while California won't permit gambling, there's certainly no shortage of either after-ski activities.

Squaw's neighbors, all with chair lifts and slopes ranging from bunny runs to the most challenging of mountains, include Sugar Bowl, where the customers park their cars a mile from the foot of the hills and ride in on what is poetically called a "magic carpet" lift, and Donner Ski Ranch at the summit of Interstate 80, the main road from San Francisco east.

'Surprises at Every Turn'

By ADRIENNE KEITH COHEN
The Manchester Guardian

Oslo must be the most underrated capital in Europe. The Norwegians themselves are inordinately modest about it Dismissive even.

Yet it has impressive claims to the attention of anybody who likes their cities campact, intimate and capable of springing some small, delightful surprise at every turn. It is also a city for all seasons in a quiet distinctive sense.

In winter it is a ski resort. Trains leave every 15 minutes on the 40-minute journey to Frognerseteren. At 1,500 feet, this is the highest of the hills encircling Oslo Fiord. To the southwest there is a superb view of the famous Holmenkollen jumping stadium, with the city beneath and the fiord beyond.

To the north, east and west, enfolding the city on three sides, lies Oslomarka, 400 square miles of pine forests, lakes, and hills—the perfect terrain for the favorite Nordic cross-country skiing.

In summer, Oslomarka, and even more Nordmarka, farther north, attract the walker, or anyone in search of peace and recreation; an escape from contemporary pressures.

Oslo itself, to anyone from the swinging cities farther south and west, seems singularly free from the more jarring overtones of modern life. Parliament, the City Hall and the Royal Palace form a rough triangle around a good deal of the city's commerce, some elegant shopping streets and many of the best hotels and restaurants.

The palace grounds are a public park, the city hall a gallery of modern art with murals, sculptures, carved doors and painted ceilings commissioned from leading Norwegian artists.

From the wharves beside the city hall, ferries whidk you away to bathing beaches and islands or across to Bygdoy, a peninsula virtually dedicated to uniquely Norwegian ventures. Here three Viking ships, drawn ashore some time in the last millennium for use as burial ships, have their own museum, specially designed to show the lines and craftsmanship of these elegant vessels, and to display the homely objects excavated with them.

Nearby is the folk museum, 150 wooden buildings dating from medieval times, dismantled from their original sites and reassembled here to show the continuity and evolution of Norwegian domestic life.

Farther on, Thor Heyerdahl's Kon-Tiki raft is exhibited alongside some of the prehistorie crafts that inspired his remarkable journey. Not far away, the polar exploration ship Fram was dragged ashore as far as possible before a building was constructed around it to provide a permanent museum.

A park to the north of the city displays the fruits of latter-day art patronage—a contract signed in 1921 between the city of Oslo and the 52-year-old sculpture Vigeland, whereby they gave him a studio, materials, masons, and artisans to help—and all his work became their property.

For these alone, Oslo is worth a visit. But it offers more, much more. Medieval castles and modern craftsmen (you can visit them in their studios) conjuring up textiles, glass, ceramics, silver, knitwear and dozens more masterpieces of design; theatre and opera; offshore islands and hidden bathing beaches—and always the magnetic fiord beyond.

Broken Window Costs Youth $25

A youth who pleaded guilty Thursday to smashing his fist through a store window was fined $25 for wilful damage Friday.

Andrew Bosch, 24, of 2035 Oak Bay Ave., was also ordered to sign a $250 good behavior bond when he appeared for sentence in central court.

Two Great Orchestras To Be Featured

MONTREAL — Two of North America's greatest orchestras — Los Angeles Philharmonic and Montreal Symphony — will give a joint concert at Expo 67 next year.

The two orchestras, making a total of more than 200 musicians, will play in the 3,000-seat Salle Wilfrid Pelletier at the Place des Arts.

Los Angeles Philharmonic, founded in 1919, has played a key role in the cultural development of the western United States. Montreal Symphony was established in 1934 and has given thousands of concerts under many distinguished conductors.

The twin-orchestras concert will be one of the first at Expo 67, which between April 28 and Oct. 27 will present 150 attractions in the field of entertainment.

BOLSHOI OPERA

Among them will be the Bolshoi Opera, La Scala, Viene State Opera, Royal Stockholm and Hamburg state operas, in addition to light entertainment by American songster Pearl Bailey, Marlene Dietrich and the fabulous Beatles.

Dance companies will include Belgium's Ballet du vingtieme Siecle, the Paris Opera Ballet, New York City Ballet, Dancers from Ceylon, the Royal Ballet, the National Ballet of Canada and the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

Sir Laurence Olivier will appear with the National Theatre of Great Britain, and violinist Yehudi Menuhin will play with the Bath Festival Orchestra from Britain.

Amateur performers from across Canada — bands, folk singers, dancers and choirs — will add to the free entertainment program to be staged on six bandshells on the site.

Gordon Hilker from Vancouver is artistic director of Expo's World Festival of Entertainment. He is determined that visitors shall enjoy themselves even when lining up for shows.

MUSIC EVERYWHERE

Four troubador units made up of singers, dancers, clowns, musicians and magicians will perform for them as they wait for admission.

One area of Expo will swing late into the night — long after the pavilions have closed. La Ronde — Canada's answer to Disneyland — will provide fireworks, stagecoach robberies and jailbreaks.

One of its top attractions will be veteran movie actress Marlene Dietrich, who will be on stage for 90 minutes each night from June 12 to 24.

Her repertoire will include songs that are nostalgic, cynical, sentimental and humorous . . . I can't give you anything but love, baby; Lili Marlene; Where Have All the Flowers Gone?; Laziest Girl in Town; La Vie en Rose.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION at Harbor City (formerly MacKay Pier) are three of the most exciting pavilions planned for Expo 67. In the foreground is the Man and his Health pavilion which will house Meditheatre, a unique theatre-in-the-round which will dramatize the achievements of modern medical science. It is sponsored by the life insurance companies in Canada as their centennial project. To the left, the Man in his Community pavilion dons its winter garb—a thin sheet or plastic over wooden framework which will protect it from the wet and cold. In the background is the much-publicized futuristic apartment complex, Habitat 67. Other major attractions at Harbor City will be Labyrinth, Expo Theatre, Art Gallery.

Russia's Change of Mind Put Expo Gears in Motion

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

MONTREAL — Canada almost lost Expo 67.

Back in 1960 Canada made application to the International Exhibitions Bureau to hold an exhibition to commemorate the 100th birthday of Confederation in 1967.

Soviet Russia asked permission to hold an exhibition the same year — to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Russian Revolution.

The matter was put to the vote and Canada lost. It was agreed that an international exhibition should be held in Moscow in 1967.

Later the Soviet government changed its mind. Canada reapplied and, in November, 1962, was awarded the right to hold a world exhibition.

"This may sound high-handed," said R. F. Shaw, deputy commissioner general of Expo 67, "but the fact is world fairs and exhibitions had to be regulated."

In November, 1928, representatives of 31 countries met in Paris and formed the International Exhibitions Bureau. The bureau was given powers to decide where and when exhibitions should be held.

Expo 67 is defined by the bureau as a first category exhibition — one in which the invited countries are responsible for the building of their own pavilions.

"What is the difference between a world's fair and an exhibition?" I asked Mr. Shaw.

He said the International Exhibitions Bureau defines a fair as a market where producers have the opportunity to offer samples of their goods.

"It has no stated educational aim, but exists principally to facilitate buying and selling. An exhibition involves an entirely different idea. Its aim is, not so much to find buyers on the spot, but rather to demonstrate value and usefulness through originality of presentation."

The international bureau has divided the world into three zones — European, Pan-Americana and The Rest. It rules that no country should put on a first category exhibition more than once in 15 years.

The modern era of the world exhibition and fair goes back to 1851 with the Great Exhibition in London, England. It was a huge success and, like all successes, was followed by others all over the western world.

The corporation for Expo 67 was set up in Ottawa in December, 1962. Montreal, the seventh largest city on the North American continent and the second largest French-speaking city in the world, was chosen as the host city.

It was decided that the site for the exhibition should be based on the Island of Sainte-Helene, named in 1611 by the explorer Samuel de Champlain after his wife Helene.

Most exhibitions have a theme to stimulate the ingenuity and intelligence of the participants. For Expo 67 a theme was found in the works of the French author, poet and aviator, Antoine de Saint-Exupery.

In his book, Terre des Hommes, he wrote:

"To be a man is to feel that through one's own contribution one helps to build the world."

At a conference at Montebello, Quebec, in May, 1963, the form of Expo 67 took shape. It was decided that the main theme would be Man and his World and that it would be expressed through five main sub-themes:

More than 70 countries of the world are doing their best to carry out the general idea.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Western Oils Were Highlight

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Western oils, sparked by late-week support, again highlighted trading on Canada's stock markets while most other major groups lost ground.

At Toronto, the oil index climbed 1.04 to a yearly high of 120.94, highest since 1957.

The surge started last month following the sale of oil and natural gas leases in the Rainbow and Zama Lake regions of northwestern Alberta.

The group's momentum has increased in anticipation o fexpected drilling results from the area in the next few months.

One brokerage firm estimated the area's potential at more than 1,000,000,000 barrels of oil.

Earlier in the week a number of oil issues ran into heavy profit taking, but trimmed most of their losses in a strong market Friday.

Home A and Hudson's Bay advanced ⅞ each to 22¼ and 23⅞ to pace the group higher. Banff, Central - Del Rio and Union Oil added ¾ each at ¾, 12 and 32. Banff announced a discovery of oil in the Rainbow area of the Keg River Reef.

Dome Petroleum fell 1½ to 28¾, Scurry Rainbow ½ to 20 and Canadian Superior ¾ to 27¼.

Industrials were fractionally lower despite a three-day rally starting Wednesday. The industrial index eased .26 to 145.06.

The market turned sharply lower at the beginning of the week following news that General Motors in the United States plans to cut car production next month and in January.

Also, American Motors in the U.S. reported its second biggest loss in its 12-year-history for the year ended Sept. 30, 1966.

Analysts say we can expect little support in the market until there is a change in economic conditions, which are the same as those that prevailed when the market started its long slump in February.

Stelco slid 1 to 19 and Dovasco ¾ to a low of 18¼ following reports that steel mills are only operating at 80 per cent capacity. The companies said there has been a lag in incoming orders.

CLOSING PLANTS

Other losses went to General Motors, off 1¾ to 74, Chrysler ¾ to 33½, Jefferson Lake 1⅞ to 26 and Canadian Breweries ⅛ to 6½ after the company announced it was closing its Ottawa plant and one of its Toronto plants.

On the plus side, Falconbridge moved up 1⅜ to 86⅝, Distillers ⅞ to 34, Bell Telephone to 46 and CPR ¼ to 54 ⅝.

New Imperial was the week's most active issue, climbing 30 cents to 2.15 on about 976,000 shares.

The company announced it had encountered further ore at its Whitehorse copper mine in the Yukon and expects to start operations at its open pit and mill complex in March.

Area and Frobex, jointly engaged in a drilling program in the Gaspe, tumbled in heavy profit taking. Area slid 43 cents to 2.92 and Frobex 30 cents to 3.15.

AFTER 37 YEARS with the B.C. Electric and B.C. Hydro, marketing consultant A. W. J. (Arch) Smith will retire at the end of the month. He joined the B.C. Electric sales department here in 1929 and progressively served as sales supervisor, director of merchandise sales, customer services manager and sales manager. He has been marketing consultant, Vancouver Island region, since 1955.

CONTAINING 3,100,000 square feet of space and the second largest commercial building in the world, Canada Trade Centre, shown in this artist's conception, will be completed in 1967 in the heart of Montreal's downtown area. It will be the equivalent of 17 storeys and house about 1,400 permanent tenants.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Bleak Five Days For Car Industry

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—This was a bleak week for the United States auto industry, with reduced production, discouraging sales reports and reports of defects in thousands of cars.

Plans to lower auto output sent the stock market into a drop.

General Motors, the biggest manufacturer, will trim its daily production 3.7 per cent in December and another 4.4 per cent in January.

Ford left three of its 16 car assembly plants closed Friday after the U.S. Thanksgiving holiday. American Motors laid off 2,000 men this week and stopped production of its American series.

General Motors plans to build about 385,000 cars in December, down about 15 per cent from 453,000 built in December, 1965, and about 395,000 in January, down about 12 per cent from 450,000 in January, 1965.

Ford had been planning for 256,000 cars for November, but this was sliced to 228,000.

Chrysler's planned output for November was trimmed to 147,000 from 152,000. American Motors will turn out an estimated 32,000 cars this month, against 35,000 planned earlier.

SLUMP DEEPENS

The sales slump of new cars deepened in mid-November as the sales pace fell 10 per cent from a year before. This followed a five-per-cent drop in early November deliveries and a six-per-cent decline in October.

The auto industry retailed 232,292 American-made cars in the Nov. 11-20 selling period for an average daily rate of 29,037. This was down from 291,101 sales and a daily rate of 32,345 a year earlier.

The new National Traffic Safety Agency reported that automakers are recalling thousands of 1967-model cars because of possible safety defects.

The agency made available a list of possibly unsafe 1965, 1966 and 1967 vehicles that should be checked. Producers have warned dealers and customers of this.

The suspected defects include bad brakes on some trucks made by General Motors, Chevrolet division, faulty throttles that could stick in a wide-open position on some Ford and American Motors cars, and missing brake parts on some of Chrysler's Plymouth and Dodge models.

Auto production this holiday week declined to an estimated 155,400 passenger cars, off 23 per cent from last week's 202,984 and 12 per cent behind 175,817 a year ago.

REPORTS LOSS

American Motors, smallest of the big four auto makers reported a loss of $12,600,000 for its fiscal year — the biggest since the $25,400,000 loss in 1956 and compared with a profit of $5,200,000 last year.

The labor department reported that the cost of living rose in October four-tenths of one per cent as virtually all consumer goods and services except food increased in price.

Retail food prices dipped two-tenths of one per cent. Costs rose for housing, clothing, medical care, automobiles and many other items.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Utica President Details Plans

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Utica Mines silver property at Keremos is being developed quietly and according to business like methods, president Isaac Shulman said Friday.

He was asked to comment on promoter's statements made earlier Friday indicating that financing for an ore treatment mill had been secured, and that other steps were about to be taken.

Mr. Shuman deplored such exaggeration and said that was the kind of statement that hurt the company.

"But then, I'm not a promoter or a stock broker," he said.

The Utica president said the company is working toward recommendations of an engineering study which was made earlier in the fall and which found establishment of a mill feasible.

He said that although $1.5 million had been spent in exploration of the Horn Silver mine property, there was still more to be done.

Setting up a concentrator operation will still be profitable even though further exploration determines a short-term operation, he said.

One of the most attractive of new issues of stock will appear next week on behalf of Calgary Power Ltd., a leading private electrical power company in Alberta and southeastern B.C.

Preferred shares of $100 par value, offered at par, are expected to be snapped up when they are allocated Monday or Tuesday. The total issue is $15 million.

Dividends will be paid at 5.4 per cent and shares will be convertible to 3½ common shares up to Nov. 30, 1971.

For the following five years the preferred shares will be convertible to three common shares, which are now priced on the market at $21.50.

The government of Canada's big refunding issue is out Monday, in which up to $540 million worth of previous issues will be rolled over.

The Bank of Canada will take a minimum $250 million, according to word from the east.

Maturities will vary from one year, one month, to four years, to 25 years 7½ months.

Silver Arrow Explorations Ltd. is concentrating on its Princeton and Dynasty-Vangorda Creek, Yukon properties among its many B.C. holdings.

A major mining company is examining the Princeton copper-molybdenum claims with a view to open pit mining. They are situated eight miles northeast of Princeton, where three large anomalies have been located by induced polarization survey followed up trenching and drilling.

Airborne and ground electromagnetic surveys on the Yukon property have been carried out, in addition to geological mapping, geochemical prospecting and line-cutting.

A diamond drilling program is recommended by consultants before the end of 1966, and negotiation for two more properties is in progress.

To date the company has spent $169,000 on exploration and development, leaving $137,500 working capital from $306,000 realized in the sale of shares.

RECEIVERSHIP FOR SAWMILL OPERATION

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Netherlands Overseas Mills Ltd., in operation in the Prince George area just over a year, has been forced into receivership.

Ian H. Bell, Vancouver chartered accountant, said in an interview operations at the multi-million-dollar sawmill would be curtailed immediately to facilitate a complete examination of its financial position.

"I have been appointed receiver-manager of the company by Montreal Trust and the Royal Bank of Canada under their various debentures," Mr. Bell said.

Development Bank Ready To Operate

TOKYO (Reuters) — The Asian Development Bank, with almost all of its initial $1,000,000,000 capital already subscribed, Friday agreed to increase authorized capital by $100,000,000 to provide for shares by future members.

The first regional bank for economic development of Asia and the Far East, it plans to open its door in Manila, the Philippines, Dec. 19.

By Thursday 19 regional and 12 outside countries had subscribed a total of $965,000,000 capital. Japan and the United States, with $200,000,000 each, are the leading contributors. Canada's subscription is $25,000,000.

The governors elected their 10 working directors Friday, including one from Canada, W. Kenneth Wardroper, 44, deputy head of the economic division of the external affairs department and a native of Duncan, B.C.

He graduated from the University of British Columbia in 1947 and joined the external affairs department that year, having served overseas as an army lieutenant during the Second World War.

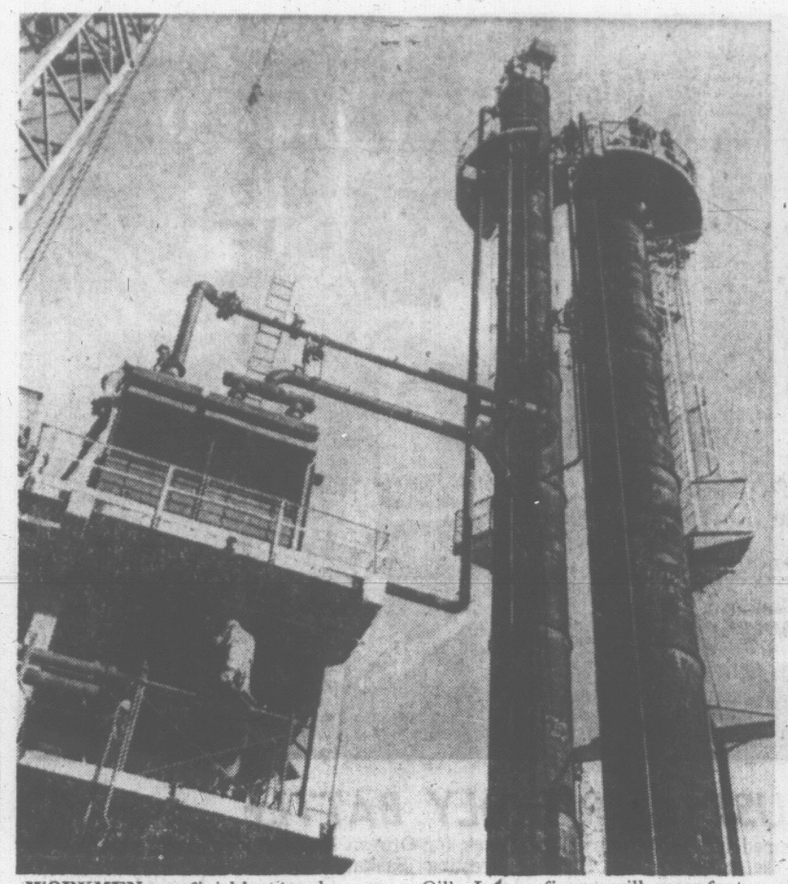
Loans Ready To Purchase Older Homes

OTTAWA (CP) — An amendment to the National Housing Act making government-backed loans available for the purchase of used homes became law.

Chief Justice Robert Taschereau of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting as deputy to the Governor-General, gave the housing bill royal assent in the Senate.

The amendment brings about these changes:

- Loans may now be made for the purchase of existing homes, provided the borrower occupies and improves the dwelling.
- Government-backed loans for rental housing now may reach a maximum of 90 per cent, up from 85, of the value of the dwelling.
- The total amount of all loans under the act is raised to $9,500,000,000 from $8,500,000,000.
- The amount of funds available for loans for student housing is raised to $350,000,000 from $250,000,000 and may be applied to dwellings to be occupied by students and their families.
- Loans for municipal sewage treatment projects, under which the government forgives part of the loan if certain conditions are met, may be made up to March 1970, a three-year extension.



WORKMEN put finishing touches on the latest addition to British Columbia's expanding petrochemical industry. This $2 million plant at Imperial Oil's Ioco refinery will manufacture toluene, a chemical used widely as a solvent and raw material for manufacture of adhesives for plywood.

BIG JAPANESE SHIPBUILDING PROJECT

Half-Mile Dockyard Set

TOKYO—Plans for a huge new shipbuilding dockyard nearly half a mile in length, where 150,000-ton vessels will be built while 100,000-tonners are being repaired, have been announced by Nippon Kokan K. K. (Japan Steel and Tube Co.).

Nippon Kokan, Japan's only shipbuilding steelmaker, has submitted its plans for approval by the Japanese Ministry of Transportation, according to Koichi Toyama, managing director of NKK's shipbuilding division.

Final choice of the 106-acre site is to be made by the end of 1966 and construction is scheduled for 1968-70.

Nippon Kokan estimates its present three shipyards can meet the company's orders until 1970, but the company has no facilities in which to build vessels larger than 100,000 tons. The largest NKK shipbuilding plant is the Tsurumi shipyard.

Japan now is the world's top shipbuilding nation, and Nippon Kokan has been a leader in this growing industry, said Toyama. If it did not prepare to meet the trend toward larger classes of shipping, it might lose its position of leadership in the medium-sized ship market.

Capital investment in the new shipyard will involve an estimated $41 million in construction costs.

Projected sales are estimated at $69 million a year in new ships and $5.6 million in repairs and conversion work. The shipyard will employ 2,300 persons, and its fundamental equipment is scheduled for installation by September, 1969.

The drydock structure will be 75 yards long, divided near the centre by a sliding door which will permit flooding or draining of either section.

The larger compartment, 450 yards long at the inland end, is for new construction, and will be able to produce six vessels of 150,000 tons each year.

The smaller compartment, 425 yards in length, is at the seaward end and will be used for shorter-term ship repair and conversion projects.

Each compartment is 236 feet in width, and nearly 46 feet deep. Supporting equipment includes a 300-ton Goliath crane and two 200-ton jib cranes.

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

VANCOUVER—Homo Sapiens is a peculiar sort of duck. He quacks, often belligerently, at his fellow man. But when it's time to say au revoir, the knucklehead suddenly turns into Prince Valiant on a white charger.

For years, general managers of Canadian Football League teams, coaches, players, water boys and armchair quarterbacks have pelted commissioner G. Sydney Halter with more bricks than bouquets.

They said he had lost touch with the contemporary game, that he was administering a 1966 product with a Model T philosophy.

They said he hired referees from the blind school and never bothered to give them seeing-eye dogs.

They said the CFL was "bush" (and indirectly implied he was too) by allowing a distillery to get up awards for outstanding players instead of reaching into its own treasury.

Some criticism.

The general managers of Canadian football would sooner cut their throats than part from money. (Remember what former Lion Peter Kempf said about the B.C. Lions' philanthropy?)

Syd Looked After the Little Fish

These were the laugh lines. What of the accomplishments?

Who brought the East and West under the same rules?

Who drafted the existing CFL constitution?

Who introduced negotiation lists?

Who brought about equal voting so that the big fish (Montreal and Toronto) wouldn't swallow the minnows (Edmonton and Saskatchewan)? Always the answer is G. Sydney Halter.

Now G. Sydney was the head table guest at the Canadian Football League luncheon, breaking bread with his "friends and admirers." For the last time. His successor as of Jan. 1 is Senator Keith Davey of the Ottawa Watisists.

If you play the look-a-like-game, G. Sydney is pure Gen. de Gaulle. More than the similarity in height, the angular build on which clothes look like they were flung rather than fitted is the composure.

When Webster defined "austere" he must have had Halter in mind. If the teams in the CFL had announced they were going to give up football for pinochle he would probably flip the ashes off his cigar and say without emotion, "C'est la guerre."

After everyone had taken on an unnecessary amount of calories and washed them down (with Schenley, what else?) the tributes began.

Natural Choice for Team Treasurer

Don McPherson, one of the Saskatchewan management wiz kids, told how Halter first became involved in football.

"A group of us were playing a little cards in Winnipeg and Halter wasn't having much luck," McPherson said. "None of us had much money. When we finished Halter wrote a cheque for $25 to pay his 'obligations.' Next morning it was discovered the cheque was good. Anybody that honest and that 'wealthy' was a natural choice to become treasurer of the Winnipeg team."

McPherson, like others to follow, left no doubt in anyone's mind that if Halter had another initial it would be "I" for integrity.

"Syd was riding into Winnipeg one evening after a day at the horse races with his close friend Scotty Kennedy. Their car bumped another. Kennedy jumped out of the driver's seat to see if everything was alright.

"The young lady in the other car was crying—'This is my first accident.' Kennedy tried to comfort her. The more he tried the more she cried. Finally Syd majestically stepped up to her and said, 'Young woman, I saw the accident. This man (Kennedy) was completely in the wrong. If you wish to proceed against him I will gladly testify for you."

Capozzi's Words Flowed Like Wine

For Samuel Berger, Ottawa's big chief, Halter spelled dignity.

From one lawyer to another, Berger said, "Syd Halter not only was just but he always appeared to be just."

Paying heed to Halter's nine years of service—"We've become, as the song goes, accustomed to your face"—Berger closed with "He cast not his shadow but his influence."

Pat Mahoney is a big bundle of Irish charm engaged with Calgary Stampeders. He does many things, including eating. Often and heavily.

With a choice of words uncommon among the literati, Mahoney said Halter had performed "a catalytic function, blending all divisions of the country into one football pot."

Then, with tongue in cheek, Mahoney said: "Syd's impartiality is legendary. Once when Calgary was playing in Winnipeg, there was a fumble. Under his breath I could hear Syd, who was standing beside me, mutter 'Our ball—our ball—'."

For a while it appeared that Ted Wordman of Montreal, MC, had goofed. He had not invited B.C.'s Herbert J. Capozzi to assault the microphone. Capozzi was so warm you could have fried eggs on his neo-Roman face.

Big Hint For Halter's Successor

He read a telegram: "Why retire when you are young, strong, in the prime of life. Signed: John Diefenbaker."

Finding a suitable memento presented a problem.

"We thought," Capozzi said, "of a bound volume entitled 'Collection of Instructions to Officials.' Or a leather-covered book, 'Pension Plans I Have Known.' Or bronze tables with the title 'Comments of Coaches, Uncensored.'

"But we wanted"—ripping brown paper from a bulky object—"something different."

Holding aloft a three-foot cardboard football shoe, Capozzi reached for the punch line, "In making this presentation to your successor, Sen. Keith Davey, we pay our respects to you by showing him what big footsteps he has to fill."

Halter stood there, the object of a standing ovation, of respect rather than revile, and surveyed the gifts in front of him.

It was obvious that he had separated in his mind the tributes from the platitudes.

"As at funerals," he said, "eulogies are delivered whether deserved or not."

Then turning to Calgary's Mahoney: "I want to remind you that I am commissioner until Dec. 31, 1966. I will not tolerate any criticism of officials. You will have a registered letter from me on your desk Monday morning."

JUST A FRIENDLY BATTLE

Before their husbands stepped out at Vancouver's Empire Stadium today for the real thing, Mrs. Russ Jackson (right) and Mrs. Ron Lancaster engaged in mock battle for Grey Cup. Jackson was at quarterback for Ottawa Rough Riders and Lancaster was directing Saskatchewan Roughriders in today's football classic. Ottawa was favored to capture Canadian football classic. Grid League Pledges To Aid Pension Fund

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Football League Friday pledged financial support to the CFL Players' Association pension fund.

Pat Mahoney of Calgary, league representative in dealings with the players' association, said clubs will pay $300 a year for each player taking part in the pension program. Each player will pay the same amount.

"It looks as if the pension plan will be in operation for the 1967 season," said Mahoney. The benefits will be worked out later.

Gary Schreider of Ottawa, president of the players' association, said his group had asked for $350 contributions from both players and clubs but is satisied with the $300.

Mahoney said it has not been decided whether the pension payments will be compulsory.

Schreider and team repre sentatives will meet Mahoney for further discussions before the next league meeting in February in Montreal.

LACKS MEMBERS

Schreider said the player association is short of its goal of 100-per-cent membership. Eight of the nine CFL clubs had almost 100 per cent of players enrolled, but members of one club —which Schreider declined to identify—had made few payments of the annual $50 fee.

Ted Workman of Montreal, chairman of the Committee Of One League, said Friday that failure to agree on a gate-equalization scheme is delaying formation of the CFL into an autonomous circuit.

Delegates agreed the committee should seek a compromise on the question, Workman said.

He declined to identify the clubs opposed to the recommendations.

The CFL agreed to give the City of Hamilton a third extension before having the Hall of Fame moved to Toronto.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five men, leaders and pioneers in Canadian football, were honored Friday night at the Grey Cup dinner.

The Canadian Football League, on the eve of the East-West game, paid tribute to retiring commissioner G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg; Hec Crighton of Toronto; E. B. Ned Wiginton of Vancouver; Allan Kerr of Montreal and Gordon Wynn of Edmonton.

All were presented with plaques marking their service to the game.

Claremont Stars Take Top Spots

Greg Beveridge led his Claremont team home to a sweep of the first three places in the Victoria and District High School cross-country championship Friday at Esquimalt.

Beveridge's time over the hilly, 3.6-mile course was 19:42. Following him were David Owen at 20:20 and Rob Irving 20:56. First runners in after the Claremont deluge were Morrison of Mount Douglas at 20:57 and Dave Huggett at 21:18.

Claremont's showing gave the school 22 points as compared with 57 for runner-up Oak Bay. Victoria, Esquimalt, and Mount Douglas trailed with 82, 93 and 102 points respectively.

For Beveridge, the win capped an outstanding year in cross-country running which was highlighted when he captured the intermediate title of the Royal Canadian Legion Cross Country Meet. A disappointment in the meet was the showing of Dave Huggett, who, along with Beveridge, could have been considered a co-favorite.

Approximately 35 runners were entered from the five competing schools. Cold weather and a strong wind probably kept the times down for the jaunt through the Rockheights section of Esquimalt.

McHattie Paces Claremont Win

By JIM ANDERSON

Some days you just can't do anything wrong. Jim McHattie had one of those days Friday in the Inter-High School Basketball League.

McHattie's Claremont teammates didn't do badly either as they buried the hapless Esquimalt Dockers 51-25. McHattie hit two foul shots and netted an additional 10 baskets to rack up an impressive total of 22 points at Esquimalt.

Also contributing to the Claremont cause were Glen Cambridge with 11 points and Dave Tooby with 8.

All of Esquimalt's scoring was done by three players with Bob DeCosta notching nine and Cec Ferguson and Tom Hall each getting eight.

Earlier in the evening, Claremont had started off on the right foot as the "B" team topped the Esquimalt "JVs" 45-32 in a hard-fought game that produced some sharp shooting by both teams and a multitude of fouls. Jim Barker set a torrid pace for Claremont by dunking 21 points.

For Esquimalt, Rich Oxford with 14 and Graham Brown with 13 were the leaders.

Reds' Infielder Rookie of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy Helms of Cincinnati Reds, a shortstop in the minors, a second baseman in the spring and a third baseman in the summer, has been named National League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Boehm Bombs Maple Leafs, Saves Canucks

VANCOUVER—Ron Boehm is one of the smaller players in the Western Hockey League and it was no surprise that few people noticed him while he was scoring three goals in his first 15 games with Vancouver Canucks.

People paid a lot of attention Friday night to the sandy-haired sniper who formerly played with Estevan in the Saskatchewan Junior League.

Victoria Maple Leafs saw too much of the quick, little winger.

Vancouver fans wanted to see more of him.

Boehm turned into a one-man wrecking gang as he gave the Canucks their third straight victory and sent the Leafs down to their fourth successive defeat.

He equalled his season's previous output by scoring all three Vancouver goals as the Canucks came from behind to nip the Leafs 3-2.

Coach Frank Mario's Maple Leafs appeared in command as they controlled the puck well through the first period and built up a 2-0 lead on goals by rookie Mike Laughton and Gordie Redahl.

Third One Earned Standing Ovation

Three successive penalties to Bill Shvetz seemed to disrupt the Leafs near the end of the period and they had lost their touch with the puck when the middle session started.

Boehm got one goal back in the second period and notched two more in the final stanza. His winning tally, coming at 11:14 after Gordie Vejprava had intercepted a Shvetz pass, earned the rookie a standing ovation from the 2,664 fans.

Mario shuffled his forward lines in an attempt to get the Leafs out of their slump. He had Rollie Wilcox working in Bob Barlow's usual wing position on a unit with Milan Marcetta and Andy Hebenton.

Barlow skated with Redahl and centre Neil Clark and turned in a strong game. He took regular shifts all the way and earned several chances with his hustling play.

SMITH SPECTACULAR

Labadie, who underwent an elbow operation for bone chips at the start of the seaon, fell on the elbow after 17 minutes of the first period and did not return to action.

Rookie goalkeeper Al Smith was one of the Victoria stars as he made 29 saves, compared with 18 for Vancouver netminder Don Simmons. Smith was spectacular on several occasions and perhaps made his finest stops against Boehm and Larry Popein, who combined with Vejprava to form an ever-dangerous attacking unit.

Canucks have now downed the Leafs 5-2 in Victoria and 9-1 and 3-2 on home ice. Now firmly established in second place, the Canucks could find the Leafs an angry crew when action in tonight's game starts at 8:30.

Stanley Cup Finalists Knee-Deep in Trouble

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings are undoubtedly the most disappointing National Hockey League clubs so far this season.

Neither team has played what can be called a good game since they met in the Stanley Cup finals last season.

Detroit has not won a game in its last five outings and has been outscored 28-9. The Canadiens have won only two in their last eight starts.

The sixth-place Red Wings will be out to snap that losing streak tonight when they clash with the fifth-place Canadiens in Montreal.

In Saturday's other games, Toronto Maple Leafs will play host to Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks will be in New York for an afternoon game with the Rangers.

LEAFS MEET RANGERS

In Sunday's action, Toronto will be at New York and Chicago will meet the Bruins in Boston. Montreal and Detroit are idle.

The Canadiens squeezed out a 2-1 win over the Rangers in New York last Sunday and went on to Detroit to blank the Red Wings 3-0 Tuesday. But they were walloped 5-0 by Chicago Thursday for their seventh loss of the season.

The club's fifth-place position is evidence of the scoring and defensive record. In 14 games this season, they have scored 29 goals while giving up 39 to the opposition.

They have yet to score more than three goals in a game. Seven Canadiens are still looking for their first goals of the season.

The Canadiens have missed defenceman Jean-Claude Tremblay, out since Nov. 12 when he suffered a concussion against New York. His return remains indefinite. Montreal is also hurt by the absence of Jean Beliveau, sidelined with a groin injury since last Saturday.

Meanwhile, Detroit manager-coach Sid Abel has made a significant change in his lineup for tonight's game.

BENCH CROZIER

Roger Crozier, winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy last season as the most valuable player for his team in the playoffs, has been benched indefinitely.

Able announced the decision in Boston Thursday night, shortly after the Red Wings were bombed 8-3 by the Bruins.

"I know one thing, it'll be a while before I play Crozier again," he said.

Max Bell Lauded By Racing Group

TORONTO (CP)—Max Bell of Calgary received a special award of merit Thursday from the Thoroughbred Racing Fan Club for his contribution to Canadian racing at the international level.

Bell, who flew to Toronto for the presentation, has raced outstanding Thoroughbreds in Europe and the United States. Owner of Alberta Ranches and Golden West Farm, he is also a director of the Jockey Club Ltd.

Ex-Cadet Marches To Cajun Golf Lead

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Bert Yancey conquered the Oakburne Country Club course again Friday and took the lead after the second round of the $34,500 Cajun golf tournament.

Yancey, 28, shot a five-under-par 67, which, with his first-round 65, gave him a 36-hole tally of 132.

He had shared the first-day lead with Chuck Courtney, who slipped to a 71 Friday.

Or Yancey's heels was Johnny Pott, who fired a 66 Friday for 133.

Another stroke back were Wright Garrett, Bob Goalby, John Schlee and Jacky Cupit.

Yancey, a West Point cadet for two years, has been one of the hottest players of the tour this year and has won the Azalea, Memphis and Portland opens.

He needed 27 putts to get down Friday after 26 the previous day.

It took a 143, one under par, to survive the cut for the final 36 holes today and Sunday and 78 players made it.

BOMBER BOSS RUMORED PRIME CANDIDATE . . . . . GREY CUP TICKETS PLENTIFUL

Is Bud Grant Thinking of Shifting to B.C. Lions?

By ERNIE FEDORUK

VANCOUVER — Harry Peter "Bud" Grant may be the next general manager of the British Columbia Lions.

The job became open when Herb Capozzi placed his brogues, successfully, into the political pond. Elected MLA for Vancouver Centre, Capozzi announced his resignation as Lions' manager — a position Herb has held since 1957.

Today it appears that Grant, certainly one of the most successful coaches in Canadian football, is a prime candidate for the B.C. post.

Grant was in town to view today's Grey Cup final between Saskatchewan Roughriders and Ottawa Rough Riders. Nothing startling there, except that Grant also has visited Vancouver on at least two other occasions in recent weeks.

The earlier visits, it must be suggested, weren't made just to feed the ducks in Stanley Park.

If the price and conditions are right, the Lions could steal him from Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

There is nothing in Winnipeg that makes Grant unhappy. Far from it. Grant has been reported "happy enough" in Winnipeg, but the Lions' job "offers a great challenge."

Grant has just completed his 14th season in Winnipeg, the last nine as head coach. His value to the Blue Bombers was indicated earlier this year when the Winnipeg executive also appointed Bud as general manager.

In his 10 years as coach at Winnipeg, Grant has directed the Blue Bombers to five first-place finishes and second three times. Under his direction, the Blue Bombers won the Grey Cup four times — in 1958, '59, '61 and '62.

If Grant decides against the shift from Winnipeg to Vancouver, a veteran member of the B.C. executive — Denny Veitch — will have to be considered a "darkhorse" contender for the GM's post.

Veitch, Lions' minor football co-ordinator, is "liked" by several of the B.C. directors.

Veitch is not as flambouyant, oratorically, as Capozzi. But Veitch knows the inner workings of the team as well as Capozzi did.

The main rap against Veitch is that he lacks the name that, let's say, H. P. "Bud" Grant has.

Today's game may have been the last one for Gene Gaines as Ottawa Rough Riders' defensive back.

Gaines is in the market for more money. He feels he is being underpaid by Ottawa and decided, at the start of the season, to play out his option with the team.

Only 28, Gaines twice has been voted an all-star pick in the Eastern Conference.

Neither Gaines nor general manager Red O'Quinn would disclose the "asking price."

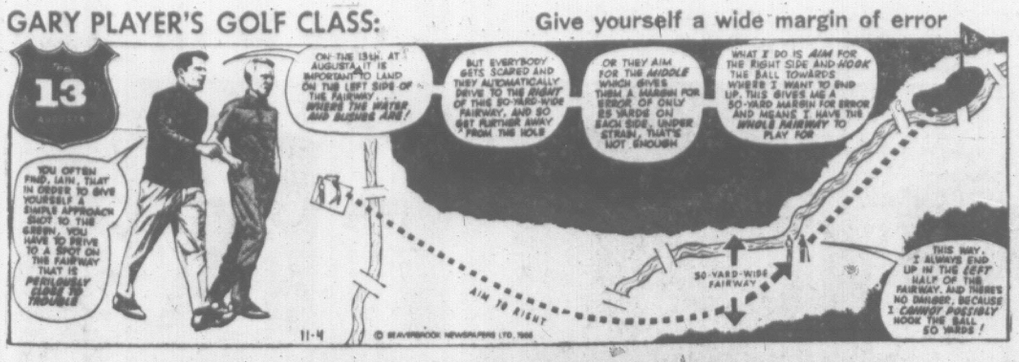
Late arrivals in Vancouver had no trouble today in obtaining tickets for the football classic. Plenty of tickets were available and 800 went on sale this morning at the Lions' ticket office.



Vikings Falter, Fall After Classy Start

University of Victoria Vikings couldn't stand prosperity Friday night at Esquimalt Sports Centre and went down to their first defeat of the Esquimalt District Hockey League season.

Going after their sixth straight victory, Vikings appeared to have everything under control against Tudor Monarchs as they breezed to a 3-0 lead in the opening period.

That was the end of the evening's fun for the students. They couldn't get another shot past Tudor goalie Ed Hastings and finally tumbled to a 4-3 defeat.

Lonnie Restall fired the winning goal at 12:30 of the third period after a second-period tally by Dave Stones and third-period markers by Orv Coulter and Jerry Clochetti had squared the count at 3-3.

QUEEN SELECTED

In Friday's other game, Ray Gregoire fired three successive goals in one minute of the final period to clinch a victory for CFB Combos over Stockers North Americans.

Combos, who were held to a 3-3 deadlock in the opening period, finished with a 9-3 triumph and climbed out of a tie with Stockers for last place.

Combos had another reason for jubilation Friday. Their candidate, Jane Bedford, was selected as the Esquimalt Hockey League queen over candidates from the other three clubs.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Secretary Avis Murrant has happy smile after winning women's tenpin honors in seventh week of Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition. Miss Murrant, who also captured award in 1964-65 contest, hit the top with 177-151-247—575 series in Thursday Mixed League at Mayfair Lanes to qualify for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloff in May.

Swimming Star To Leave England

LONDON (AP) — Linda Ludgrove, Britain's leading female swimmer, said Friday she is emigrating to Australia.

But the 19-year-old athlete said she still hopes to swim for Britain in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City.

Dagg Rink Tops Totem Records

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lyall Dagg of Vancouver, the 1964 world champion curler, finished the Grey Cup Totem bonspiel Friday with several records tucked neatly in his tam.

Dagg became the only curler ever to win both the main "Totem" — with a 6-4 win over Tom Bahniuk of Edmonton — as well as the special event for leaders, the "Dogwood" — with a 14-1 triumph.

He scored a record 114 in 11 straight wins during the bonspiel, compared with 54 by opponents.

The Dagg rink, however, didn't do it without a fight. Dagg, and teammates Brian Avery, Barry Naimark and Leo Hebert, had wins as high as 11-1 and 14-1 during the week, but they admitted they had to struggle in the Totem final.

Bahniuk stole two and scored one to draw even with the veteran Dagg by the seventh end at four each.

Dagg didn't let the surprise beat him, however. He blanked the eighth and ninth and added one in the 10th.

In the 11th end, more than 1,000 fans watched Bahniuk miss a take-out completely, allowing Dagg to go two up coming into the home stretch.

CLASSIC STRATEGY

Another neophyte rink, the RCMP officers from Heather, B.C., fell under the classic Dagg strategy in the Dogwood final. They scored only one in the second while Dagg ran quickly up to 14 in seven ends for his devastating 14-1 victory.

In other finals in the five-day event, Howie Christopherson of Vancouver won the Dufferin trophy for the second event after beating fellow Vancouverite Barry Denomy 11-9; Ty Cobb of North Vancouver Capilano took the Golden Horseshoe Trophy for his 10-9 win over Bill Osbourne of Vancouver; and Guy Lizzee of Vancouver beat Neil Eyben of Heather in the Pacific event.

LARSEN WINS

Ed Dalke of Vancouver beat George Bre-Win of Edmonton in the Vancouver event.

A big surprise in the tournament finals was the victory by relative unknown Lloyd Larsen of Victoria over veteran Hec Gervais. The Edmonton star was five down after six ends and lost 8-3 in a consolation match.

Hunt Reaches Singles Final

Semi-final matches in the Saanich open badminton tournament produced few surprises for the spectators Friday night at Brentwood Community Hall.

Defending champion Bob Hunt advanced to tonight's finals as he continued his quest for another men's singles crown with a 15-4, 15-2 victory over University of Victoria's Bill Chudyk.

Opposing Hunt in the final will be second-seeded Ivor Goodmanson, who ousted Cordova Bay clubmate Lloyd Park in a three-game battle. After losing the first game 16-18, Goodmanson bounced back to take the next two by scores of 15-9, 15-12.

Hunt and partner Ed Hedley also remained in the running for another men's doubles title. The defending champions breezed past Goodmanson and Lorne McLean in two games.

Barbara Clarke and Hedley trounced Val Kent and Goodmanson, 15-6 and 15-5 in a mixed open semi-final.

In handicap men's doubles, John Meija and Walt Tuey of Esquimalt moved on to the final round and a meeting with Cowichan Lake's Ray St. Dennis and Ted Saunders of Esquimalt.

Husband and wife team Mavis and Jim Cole of Cordova Bay will meet Shirley and Russ Atkinson of Esquimalt in the handicap mixed final.

The two upsets that marked Friday's play were Dennis Clement's victory over top-seeded "B" singles ace Paul O'Conner in three games and the women's doubles win by Jean Wescott and Wendy Cuppage over the favored pair of Mary Jean Smith and Anne Currie.

City Umpires Retain Hudlin as President

All officers were elected to another term as the Victoria Umpires' Association held its annual meeting this week.

Remaining in office for another year are president Doug Hudlin, first vice-president Len Leach, second vice-president Ron Hooks and secretary-treasurer Griff Timothy.

Hunting Time For Archers

Absenteeism will be noticed at the Victoria Bowmen and Dockyard Archers' indoor shooting range next week.

For an obvious reason. Many male members plan to take advantage of the special week of deer hunting set aside for archers in the Sayward Forest area.

NEW SKI CONTRACTS

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — Verne Anderson of Rossland, B.C., women's coach of the Canadian national ski team, and Peter Webster, manager of the team, have both signed new one-year contracts.

Colwood Duo Retains Senior Golf Buttons

Roy Johnson and Larry McCooey retained the city senior golf buttons this week by defeating Gorge Vale challengers Chris Archer and Keith Alexander at Victoria Golf Club.

Booters Busy Sunday After Silent Saturday

Even on soccer pitches everything went "hush" today while Canadian football enjoyed its day with the Grey Cup final in Vancouver.

But soccer comes marching back onto the scene, in force, on Sunday.

Victoria O'Keefes of the Pacific Coast League and their farmhands in the Inter-City Junior League lead off Sunday's march with a friendly match at Carnarvon Park, starting at 11 a.m.

Full schedules in both the first and second divisions of the District League complete soccer's day.

THREE SHARE LEAD

Main interest will focus on the activities of Canadian Scottish, Hourigan Kickers and the Tallyhos. After five matches, these are the teams that share first-division leadership with eight points each.

The Scots meet Gorge Molsons at Heywood, Kickers face Wally Milligan's Vikings at the University, while Tallyho runs up against Victoria West at Central Park. Luckies play Navy at Colville Road in the other first-division game.

All eight second division teams will be in action on pitches at Topaz, Beacon Hill and Bullen Parks.

All District League games start at 2 p.m.

The tournament is scheduled for Aug. 3-5 at Ancaster, Ont.

Rae Milligan of Calgary and Toronto will be playing captain with Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, Gayle Hitchens and Gail Harvey Moore, both of Vancouver, and Helen Gagnon of Arvida, Que.

Mrs. Robert Lyle of Toronto was named alternate captain and alternate players named were Barbara Renwick, Vancouver, Pamela Miller, Oshawa, Ont., and Betty Stanhope Cole, Regina.

Oak Bay Bounced From Title Chase

Oak Bay, holder of the city and Vancouver Island titles, Friday was knocked out of the running for the B.C. schoolgirls' field hockey championship.

Oak Bay was a casualty in the first day of the provincial tournament at University of Victoria as three Island squads and three from Vancouver advanced to today's championship round.

Norfolk House, Esquimalt and Cowichan were contesting for the championship today along with Vancouver squads from Magee, David Thompson and Point Grey. Completing the eight-team championship bracket were Kelowna and Salmon Arm.

Nanaimo and Oak Bay narrowly missed qualifying. The Oaks finished preliminary play a point behind Salmon Arm after a loss to Magee, the sectional winner. Nanaimo was edged by Esquimalt on goal scoring.

Consolation and championship finals were scheduled this afternoon, following an exhibition match between Western Canada women's teams.

Provincial Golf Teams Can't Use Top Juniors

TORONTO (CP)—Delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Association have adopted the yardage system and handicap method used by their male counterparts.

The delegates adopted the system of course rating devised by Norman Faulkner, rating chairman of the Royal Canadian Golf Association as well as the RCGA handicap card.

The delegates also adopted a ruling whereby provincial golf teams will consist of the four best women golfers from each province next year, but the team cannot include the best two juniors.

The two best juniors must represent their province on the junior team, but the women's team may use other junior members.

The association also reduced the playing age of junior golfers by six months, making ineligible a girl who becomes 19 during a playing season.

Mrs. J. W. A. MacKenzie of Saskatoon was elected president of the association.

Anniversary Program Of 'Pearl Harbor' Recalls Sneak Attack

What the United States has done in the past 25 years to prevent a recurrence of the disaster of December 7, 1941, will be the major theme of a full-hour color special, "Pearl Harbor," to be telecast Sunday at 6:30 p.m., on Channel 5.

NBC News correspondent Frank McGee, who went to Hawaii for part of the filming, will open the special with a description of Pearl Harbor as it is today and with a recapitulation of the attack as it occurred a quarter of a century ago.

There will be a description by a survivor of how he managed to escape from the wrecked battleship Oklahoma. Underwater film of the Arizona's hull will be used to dramatize his report.

McGee also will report from Brockton, Mass., to illustrate some of the major changes which have taken place in the U.S., exemplified by this small community. Brockton was the home of one of the seamen who perished on the Arizona.

NBC News correspondent Elie Abel will report from Great Britain with backdrops of Coventry, London and Liverpool to describe what has happened to the British people since the Second World War victory in 1945. He will assess the role of Britain in the light of the Pearl Harbor holocaust.

From Continental Europe NBC News correspondent Edwin Newman will review the sacrifices of D-Day as he reports from Normandy on the West Coast of France. His coverage will include an assessment of Franco-American relations and the economic recovery of Germany.

NBC News correspondent John Rich will report from Tokyo on the complete reversal of Japan from a warlike nation to a country seeking peace.

Also included in the special will be an interview with two young soldiers on a four-day pass in Hawaii before they have to return to the war zone in Viet Nam.

World Premiere

"Fame Is the Name of the Game," an original mystery-suspense drama, will be the opening presentation of "World Premiere" — a series of new two-hour motion pictures produced for first showing on television — and will be colorcast tonight at 9 on Channel 5.

Starring in "Fame Is the Name of the Game" are Anthony Franciosa, Jill St. John, Jack Klugman, George Macready, Lee Bowman, Robert Duvall, Nanette Fabray, Jay C. Flippen, George Furth, Melodie Johnson, Jack Weston and newcomer Susan Saint James. The feature was produced and written by Ranald MacDougall and directed by Stuart Rosenberg.

In "Fame Is the Name of the Game," Franciosa plays a reporter for a weekly magazine called Fame, and while on assignment he accidentally discovers the body of a slain girl.

"World Premiere" is the first series of movies produced for network television broadcast prior to theatrical release. A total of 12 features, produced by Universal Studios, will be colorcast by NBC-TV in the time periods of the Tuesday and Saturday night movie series. Later they will be released for showing in theatres.

Sullivan Show

Leslie Uggams, Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, the Muppets, Richard Pryor, Glenn Yarborough and, as a special attraction, the 1966 All-America football team, will appear on "The Ed Sullivan Show," taped in color from the East Coast Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channels 2, 6, 7 and 12.

Other acts are the comedy team of Colvin and Wilder; Fiesta Mexicana, singing, dancing and instrumental spectacle from Mexico, and slack-wire comedy artist Brian Andro.

Leslie Uggams will sing a medley of songs from her nightclub routine.

Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster will act out a humorous detective story written by themselves. In the sketch, Wayne plays a Chinese sleuth trying to solve a crime while a Russian ballet company directed by impresario Frank Shuster performs "Swan Lake."

Richard Pryor will deliver a comedy monologue.

The All-America football team will be selected by the American Football Coaches Association.

POTENTATE WITH PULCHRITUDE — Jack Weston guest-stars as Hannibal Rex, a power-hungry tyrant who is trying to establish his own Roman Empire in the middle of Texas, in "The Last of the Caesars — Absolutely" on Laredo, in color, Friday at 10 p.m. on Channel 5.

Challenge

The inability of many U.S. women to accept a secondary role in the family hierarchy will be examined in "The Matriarchal Society" on "Challenge" Sunday at 6 p.m. over Channel 4 in color.

The increasing problems caused by the overly bossy and aggressive woman will be discussed on the panel. How she relates to her own husband, children and community will also be included.

The clergy panel will particularly bring out the adverse effects a "masculine" mother can have on her son.

ASK RITHET'S

Q. The other day someone stole the motor off my lawnmower. I wonder whether such a loss would have been covered under a contents theft policy.

A. Yes. It would have been covered without any deductible under Householders' and Homeowners' policies, up to its depreciated value.

PEYTON PLACE

Series' Cast Lives Dramas Off Stage

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — To the casual observer, it might seem that the actual lives of the Peyton Place cast appear more dramatic than the roles they perform.

After all, what script writer could have dreamed up a more stirring story than Dorothy Malone's rescue from death by a corps of dedicated physicians after her seizure with blood clots in her lungs and the swinging saga of Mia Farrow and her new husband, Frank Sinatra, is far beyond what could be devised for a television series.

Latest of the Peyton Place cast to star in his own off-screen crisis was Ed Nelson, the handsome chap who has played Dr. Rossi since the series began. A couple of months ago, he developed chills at the studio one morning and found himself unable to concentrate on his lines.

"I think you'd better shoot around me today," said the actor, who was treated for fatigue — a common ailment with series stars — and sent to his home near Pomona.

Nelson consulted his own doctor and was sent to hospital for tests. Then he was told that a tumor had been discovered on his lung. It also appeared in X-rays that had been taken three years before when he had an ulcer attack. The tumer was overlooked at the time.

PUTS OFF OPERATION

Immediate surgery was recommended, but Nelson declined.

"I'll have to wait three weeks so the series can prepare for my absence," he said. "If that tumor hasn't grown in three years, I think I'll be safe to wait another three weeks."

Nelson finished out the scripts that had been written for him and quietly checked off the 20th Century-Fox lot to prepare for surgery. The operation required 3½ hours — "nothing compared to Dorothy's!" Miss Malone's lasted 11 hours. Nelson was told the tumor was benign, and in five weeks he had returned to Peyton Place.

"The lines don't come as easily as they used to," he admitted on his first day back.

"My values changed when I came so close to death, and I am examining everything more closely now."

Canadian Star Returns

N.B.-Born Actress Plays Festival Role After U.S. Run

Returning to CBC-TV's Festival series, actress Brett Somers stars in Mario Prizek's production of "My Lost Saints," by Tad Mosel, playing a devoted maid whose ordered life is disturbed by conflicting loyalties, Wednesday at 9:30 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6.

Miss Somers, who is the wife of actor Jack Klugman and mother of three children lives in Connecticut because she "fell out of love with New York" when her home there was burgled, and because she thinks Los Angeles is "a fearful town."

She has worked on Broadway, in a play that closed after a four-day run ("I went home and had a baby"), and in Hollywood, in former CBC producer Harvey Hart's first move, Bus Riley's Back In Town. Most of her work these days is on television, and she has guest-starred in top shows of this and past seasons, The Fugitive, The Defenders, Fen Casey, et al.

Miss Somers and husband Jack Klugman played a married couple in a memorable episode of The Defenders, and they like working together beaeuse, as the actress says, "we don't have to worry about being polite or about upstaging." While she was in Toronto working on My Lost Saints, Klugman was starring on Broadway in the comedy hit The Odd Couple.

Brett Somers comes on strong in a dramatic role as in real life, and her earlier appearances on Festival (in Mrs. Dally Has a Lover, Today is Independence Day, and Epiphany) impressed viewers and TV critics.

"I find I can be objective about myself, at last," she declares. "I can sit down and watch one of my shows, knowing I'm not going to see Bette Davis or Geraldine Page. Recently I saw one of my TV performances and almost fell asleep. For once I was bored to tears by myself."

Born in N.B.

The actress was born near Fredericton, N.B., and although she grew up in Maine ("which is full of eccentrics") and has lived in the United States ever since, she remains a Canadian.

She got her early experience in summer stock in New England, and was "a pioneer" of the golden days of television drama in the United States, a period she recalls with fondness.

Brett Somers believes Canadian actors have an advantage over their American counterparts, partly because of a television series like Festival. "Canadians can do such a variety of roles, and the Canadian actor, gets a chance to grow," she says. She refers to Festival as "the last outpost of serious TV drama."

She found the role of Kate in My Lost Saints a difficult one for her "because I tend to dominate rather than be dominated, and it was difficult to discover something in my own life to relate to this lady. She has a quality I lack, a kind of submissiveness."

In My Lost Saints, Miss Somers as Kate is supported by Alice Hill as Kate's elderly mother, Charmion King and Jack Creley as the Hallets, for whom Kate works, and Kirstin Campbell as the coupl'e's daughter.

Championship Bout

The return bout for the world championship lightweight title between champion Carlos Ortiz and junior lightweight champion Flash Elorde will be seen by Northwest sports fans Monday at 7 p.m. on channels 7 and 12. The fight will be telecast live and in color from New York City. Sprotscaster Don Dunphy will deliver the ringside commentary.

This is a rematch for Ortiz and Elorde. They met in Manila in February of 1964, where Ortiz successfully defended his crown with a hard-fought 14th round TKO.

In their individual last bouts, Ortiz knocked out Sugar Ramos in Mexico City in the fifth round on October 22 in defence of his title, while Elorde defeated Vincente Derado in Manila on a 15-round decision on the same day.

Rudolph the Reindeer

Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer, animated musical Christmas story of the shiny-beaked buck that emerges as a hero after being an outcast, will be presented as a special program in color, Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 8. It will pre-empt Star Trek usually shown at that time.

Burl Ives stars the off-camera voice of Sam the Snowman who sings and tells the story of shy little Rudolph whose bright red nose bars him from Santa's sleigh team until a blizzard strikes and threatens to cancel Christmas. Rudolph's glowing nose leads the company to safety.

Romeo Mueller wrote the original TV adaptation of the story which Robert L. May wrote in 1939. The musical features seven Christmas tunes composed for it by Johnny Marks, writer of the show's theme and title tune which has sold over 40,000,000 recordings since its origination in 1949.

Exploration N.W.

Leavenworth, Washington, a transformed alpine village on the east slopes of the Cascades, is visited as the townspeople prepare for the Harvest Festival in "A Cascade Autumn" on "Exploration Northwest" Monday, at 7 p.m. over Channel 4 in color.

High mountains and roaring waterfalls combine to create an alpine-like setting for Leavenworth, which is a growing tourist attraction. "Exploration" cameras follow some of the activities available to the Leavenworth visitor — horse-back riding in the high country, fishing the Wenatchee River and hunting for Chinese pheasant by motorbike.

"A Cascade Autumn" also reveals the wealthy farmlands of the area. Rich autumn colors are captured as the cameras take in the shocks of golden grain and bright red apples ready for harvest.

N.W. Traveler

A ten-year-old orphan boy, Danny Hamilton, "stars in a Jamaican travel-adventure on "Northwest Traveler's" Caribbean color episode Wednesday at 7 p.m. over Channel 4.

On her third trip to the tripical West Indies island, American motion picture photographer Mrs. Laura (Schaefer) White, decided to see Jamaica through the eyes of a bright, inquisitive lad. Danny and his 13-year-old brother, Bunny, both residents of Kingston's Alpha Orphanage, agreed to show off their home island to Mrs. White and her mother, Mrs. Ralph Schaefer.

Highlights of "Orphan Boy's Jamaican Adventure" include taking part in banana crop harvesting at Agualta Vale Plantation; a three hour train ride to Anotto Bay; frolicking in the 600-foot Dunn's River Waterfalls with its natural stone stairway; luxury living at the plush Bay Roc Hotel in Montego Bay; running the rapids of the Rio Grande River from Port Antonio on 25-foot bamboo rafts.

DRAMATIC GROWTH NOTED

Chamber Thanked for Uvic Support

Victoria Chamber of Commerce was urged Friday to continue promoting university needs to both public and government.

At the first meeting of chamber directors on the University of Victoria campus, Uvic president Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor said development of the university must be put forward constantly.

He recognized the role played by the chamber in raising Victoria College to full university status.

The way Gordon Head campus has grown in just three years was dramatically clear to directors. They lunched in a room atop the new social sciences building, overlooking a sweeping panorama of new buildings.

Dr. Taylor said the university is developing a first-rate reputation across Canada for its academic standard.

He said the objectives of the university include giving the student a sense of morality and usefulness to society. But no one can expect complete success in all cases, he said.

Dr. Taylor referred to recent "bad publicity" for the university, which he felt is offset by the high scholastic standing achieved by so many students.

Outstanding success was enjoyed last year in the number of Woodrow Wilson fellowships awarded to Uvic students of the arts faculty, the president said.

And among science students, 12 out of 60 eligible to apply were given $2,500 National Research Council grants, which is considered high.

Dr. Taylor said next year Uvic will be eligible for a block grant from NRC, putting it in the "major league" and predicted that 20 students would qualify for awards.

Five departments in arts and science are in graduate study work, while two in education have reached graduate study level, directors were told.

The university has succeeded in drawing some highly qualified people to its faculty, Dr. Taylor said. In 1968 Canada's top historian is coming from the University of Toronto for one year, he added.

Three-year-old Uvic is five years ahead of its predicted enrolment—having 3,500 students this year.

"This has accounted for part of our accommodation problem," Dr. Taylor said. He predicted 4,500 to 5,000 students in 1971 and 10,000 between 1983 and 1985.

Meanwhile, the college system of accommodating and instructing students is being put into motion, Dr. Taylor explained.

"We hope this can overcome the difficulties of bigness encountered by such places as Berkeley with 27,000, UCLA with 25,000, and Chicago with 30,000."

This will enable a student to retain his identity in the midst of a growing institution, he said.

Nurses To Resign

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—About one-third of the more than 3,200 nurses employed at 21 Minneapolis - St. Paul Hospital have given one-month resignation notices in a wage dispute.

RCMP CONSTABLE WOUNDED IN MANITOBA SHOOTING

MINNEDOSA, Man. (CP) — A young rural schoolteacher died in hospital today after a Friday night shooting incident at this western Manitoba town in which an RCMP constable was wounded in the face.

Barry Charles Boch, 19, died in Winnipeg General Hospital where he was taken after he was found lying on a porch at the rear of his Minnedosa home, a bullet wound in the forehead and a .22-calibre rifle at his side.

Police, awaiting the arrival of tear-gas equipment and reinforcements, found Boch less than an hour after two RCMP constables drove to his home to question him about a traffic mishap and were met with a burst of gunfire.

Const. Kenneth M. Bulloch, 22, a native of Sombra, Ont., fell wounded in the face and was in fair condition after surgery today at Brandon General Hospital.

RCMP said at no time were any shots fired by police.

Boch was a permit teacher at a rural school in the Onanole area, near the resort centre of Clear Lake. Minnedosa is about 30 miles north of Brandon.

An RCMP spokesman said there was no apparent reason for the shooting.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, NOV. 26, 1966—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

We have come to the time of the year when night pulls down early and dark, and a traffic hazard always with us becomes acute.

This is the lightless bicycle.

It is a menace even to the most careful driver, an outlaw of the roads. Fail to spot it, and there's an excellent chance of becoming an involuntary child - slayer.

It may reveal its presence by the dimmest of glimmers from a muddy rear reflector, or if your night vision is sound, you may manage to spot the moving shadow. If such a machine has never come within a whisker of involving you in a crackup, you are luckier than most.

There is no excuse for the lightless bicycle—absolutely none. Yet, despite safety drives, police appeals and occasional juvenile court appearances, it is still with us

The fault for this situation lies where it always has. This is with parents so ignorant, so uncaring or so cheap as to permit their children to expose themselves to risks that a slight expenditure would minimize.

However, since these are unlikely to change their ways, we should take the matter out of their hands by urging corrective action on our lawmakers.

I think we should have a law forbidding the sale of any bicycle, new or used, that is not equipped with an approved light.

This suggestion does not stem from a wish to add yet more laws to a load already cumbersome. But live and healthy children are infinitely preferable to hurt or dead ones.

The anti-fluoridationists are stirring busily about once more, and this week brought yet another salute from one of these tireless dissenters.

Like those that preceded it this year, last year, and so on back, it is from my staunch old friend, A. Nony Mouse.

There was a time when I held strong views about unsigned epistles, but the act of producing a column five days a week (they let me loose for the other two) must have softened me.

Except when he hits me with an unsigned blast that all but sizzles my desk varnish, I now regard A. Nony with indulgent fondness, and frequently with appreciation and respect.

Naturally, I wish he or she would oblige with a name, since a strict newspaper rule bars even the most interesting of unsigned messages from print.

To this I might add that a no less stern rule applies to the passing on of names given in confidence.

My most faithful friend among the A. Nony Mouses or mice has written to me three times a month, and sometimes oftener, since this column uttered its first cheep well over four years ago. If he ceased, I would worry about him.

Unlike most such correspondents, this pen-pal on rare occasions does sign a name.

But, Mr. X, rest easy—I wouldn't dream of revealing it!

In the mail today an important-looking envelope containing a royalty cheque based on the United Kingdom sales of a book over a six-month period.

With agent's 10 per cent commission deducted, the figure is 59 cents.

Since the average novel has a selling life of about six months, and this one was published in the early sixties, I'm not kicking.

However, I am going to frame that cheque at the risk of throwing my agent's accounts out of kilter, and show it to every beginning writer who tells me he intends to go free-lancing.

Not in an attempt to dissuade him, mind, but as a reminder that the rewards of endeavor in that particular field can be slim almost to vanishing point.

Or, sometimes, even slimmer!

Senate of Priests Share Bishop's Rule

By DESMOND BILL

Roman Catholic priests on Vancouver Island now have a bigger role than any other priests in North America in the government of their diocese.

Biship Remi J. De Roo, already known as one of the most progressive Canadian Catholic bishops, has committed himself to govern in future "by consensus" of his priests rather than by the traditional method of "directives and obedience."

He has decided to share his governing authority with a senate of priests representing the clergy of the Victoria diocese.

The diocese covers all of Vancouver Island and has a population of about 30,000 Catholics.

Bishop De Roo's commitment does not mean the diocese will be ruled by majority vote of the priests or that he has abdicated his role as bishop.

In effect, he has committed himself to act only if a majority of the senate goes along with him. He will not over-rule senate decisions. But also he is not necessarily bound to accept them.

In a move that is thought to be unprecedented in the Catholic Church in North America, Bishop De Roo has promised his priests, "I will not force a decision through the senate on my authority as bishop, unless it is a matter on which I am held in obedience.

"For example, the Second Vatican Council has decided on a renewal of the Church. If a majority of the senate were against renewal I would have to say, 'Sorry Fathers, we have to move. It is the will of the church.'

"But other than something like that, I am fully committed to acting in collaboration with the senate."

BISHOP DE ROO
. . . sets precedent

That council decided all dioceses should have a senate of priests but the Pope said the senate should have "only a consultative vote." Instead, Bishop De Roo has given the senate an actual role in the decision-making process.

He has decided to share his authority with what he calls the "presbyterate" — the whole body of priests in the diocese.

The senate replaces the old system of diocesan cousultors. These consultors were elected by priests and the bishop had to seek their advice on matters of diocesan government, but could ignore such advice if he wished.

What will happen if the senate makes a majority decision on an important matter and the bishop thinks the decision is wrong?

Answered Bishop De Roo: "Such a situation would be a challenge. If such a split of opinion were to occur it would show the situation had not sufficiently matured. We would all have to study the issue more deeply to discover the true welfare of the diocese. But the situation would be resolved in that manner, even if it took a long time, rather than by an arbitrary intervention of my authority."

Catholic bishops traditionally have been one-man rulers of their dioceses and have rarely hesitated in the past to use their authority. While bishops in recent years have generally become more responsive to the opinions of their clergy and laity, the significance of Bishop De Roo's move is that he has actually institutionalized this change.

The bishop will preside over the senate, which was elected by the diocesan priests and those in religious orders' although he will not vote.

One of the first issues before the senate is the formation of a pastoral council composed of two priests, two sisters and "a lot of laity."

The pastoral council, said Bishop De Roo, will be more than "the voice of the laity." It will work directly with the bishop but, in addition to a consultative role, it will be a means of initating action.

SEEN ANY SNOW AROUND HERE? asks Fred Fisher, proud owner of two converted bombardier snowmobiles. Weird-looking vehicles, a cross between an armored car and a moon craft, will be put into service carrying 14 sportsmen at a time over the last rugged mile to Green Mountain ski resort, near Nanaimo. Employers Fire More Dockers For 'Slowdown'

More longshoremen were dismissed from work today.

At Cowichan Bay, 54 men were fired before noon.

But at Ogden Point, 34 men continued loading lumber aboard the Karpfanger.

Similar dismissals also occurred Friday at Cowichan Bay, and at Ogden Point 34 men were fired.

Firings at B.C. ports began Wednesday after employers charged a deliberate slowdown by dockers in support of striking foremen.

Meanwhile, Canadian Press reported that federal Labor Minister Jack Nicholson was to open talks today in Vancouver to try and settle the dispute.

HERE FOR GAME

The dock dispute, which has tied up about half the shipping on the B.C. coast, began last week when 190 foremen set up picket lines.

They sought recognition and bargaining rights but the companies said the foremen are part of management.

The foremen are members of Local 514 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Picket lines were not crossed by about 3,000 longshoremen until a court injunction late Monday ordered the pickets removed.

Work resumed Tuesday but employers said slowdown was in effect. The union blamed lack of proper and competent supervision by substitute foremen.

The Canada Labor Relations Board has twice rejected applications by the foremen for certification as a bargaining unit.

Meanwhile the B.C. Federation of Labour announced plans for a conference of union leaders to map support for the ILWU.

There was no indication what kind of support the federation plans to offer. The meeting will be held in the next few days.

Reward Offered To Nab Vandals

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors will pay for information leading to arrest and conviction where senseless damage takes place.

The move follows a wave of hooliganism involving off-street parking garages and other public facilities at Centennial and Bastion Squares.

Vandals also have caused heavy damage in Victoria cemeteries and parks.

The Chamber will post signs in suitable locations advising of the rewards. Victoria police have given their approval.

Former president of the Chamber, lawyer E. E. Pearlman, said strict conditions of payment would be required to ensure against exploitation.

President Courtney Haddock said the amount of the individual rewards would be related to the value of the damage in each case.

Report Louis Croaks Regarded as a Hoax

Louis, the brandy-swigging parrot, who is drinking his way through a fortune, was accused today of being an imposter.

The board of Royal Jubilee Hospital, which stands to benefit financially should anything happen to Louis, is looking into the charge.

However, the whole thing is believed to be a hoax.

The suggestion that the real Louis is dead came in a telegram to board chairman Alfred C. Wurtele from former Victorian producer-promoter Fred Hill.

Presently in Toronto appearing in his own production of "The Drunkard," Mr. Hill claimed he stole Louis in June 1964 and that the parrot died in September that year.

In a telephone interview today, Mr. Hill said he buried the parrot "in the backyard of a mansion."

However, friends of his in Victoria confirmed today the whole thing was a hoax and that Mr. Hill never was in possession of a parrot.

Said Mr. Wurtele: "The telegram is in the hands of the board directors."

Under the terms of a will left by Victoria Wilson, who died 17 years ago, Louis must die before the other two beneficiaries of her will, Royal Jubilee and the Red Cross, receive a penny.

It is estimated only $20,000 of her $60,000 estate now remains. Louis, who is 101, could live until he's 200.

AIRPORT ACCESS HIT

Improved access to Victoria airport and upgrading of Patricia Bay and Trans-Canada Highways, was asked by Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Friday.

Submissions, to be forwarded to the provincial government, are the result of study by the chamber's harbor and transportation group.

Group chairman George Farmer reported to directors on the need for a modern, more direct and plainly-marked access to the airport from Patricia Bay Highway and East Saanich Road.

Many persons find it hard to reach the airport at present because it is necessary to turn off the Pat Bay Highway on Canora Road, then Artesian Road, before reaching the airport road. This is especially difficult at night, Mr. Farmer said.

Warning Given Street Vandals

The city's senior magistrate today served a stern warning on would-be Christmas pranksters.

"I hope this won't be another one of those years when bunches of idiots go roaming the streets stealing and breaking Christmas tree lights," said Magistrate William Ostler to a young sailor charged with causing a disturbance early this morning.

"I give notice now that if there is more of that nonsense it will be firmly dealt with."

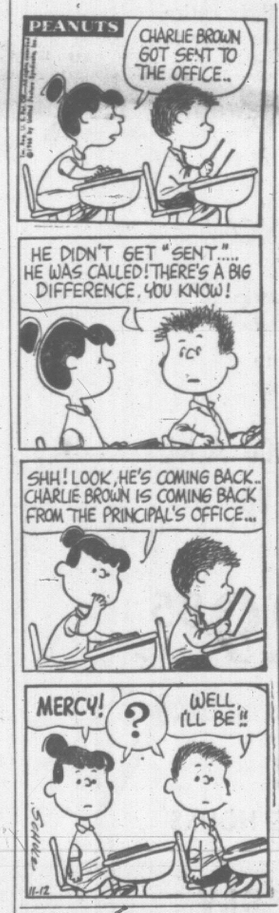
The magistrate fined John Pinberthy, 18, of CFB Esquimalt $50 after he pleaded guilty.

Court was told the youth was "making a good deal of noise and comment" and was seen unscrewing a light bulb from an outdoor Christmas tree on Douglas.

Ask The Times

Q. Why is the Cariboo spelled incorrectly? (The correct spelling of the animal is Caribou.) M.R.S.

A. Simply common usage, says a local man who has made a study of the province's early days. Ever since the gold strike there in 1862 it has been called "Cariboo." The miners of that day apparently originally misspelt the name.



SITE PROBLEM

Delay In School Worries Saanich

Saanich is "very concerned" about delays in the proposed vocational school for southern Vancouver Island, acting reeve Leslie Passmore said today.

He was commenting on statements by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant about difficulties in relocating a B.C. Hydro substation.

Coun. Passmore said "every effort" is being made by council to find an alternative substation site acceptable to both hydro and local ratepayers.

The provincial public works department has applied twice to rezone 21 acres on Quadra north of Beckwith and both applications have been turned down.

RESIDENTIAL AREA

The last application was earlier this month. Council agreed this particular location was a prime residential area.

Mr. Chant said Hydro has agreed to relinquish 12 acres near the proposed vocational school site at Burnside and Tillicum if the public works department will provide it with a site at least that large in another part of Saanich.

"Surprisingly, it's difficult to find an area in Saanich of a size suitable for a sub-station," he said.

"It has delayed completion of a definite site for the vocational school."

Architects' plans cannot be drawn until it is known how much land will be available.

"You can only do a preliminary program until the site is a fact," said the minister.

Know-B.C. Tour Won't Stretch To Cover Expo

A suggestion that the Chamber of Commerce annual "know B.C. better" tour be diverted to Montreal next April for a trip around Expo 67 met opposition at a meeting Friday.

"Why take it out of the province?" asked Empress Hotel manager Leslie Parkinson.

Because of centennial year, someone suggested.

And directors turned the subject over to executive members for deliberation.

Official Mace Laid Away By Army Unit

The official mace of the 40th Technical Squadron, Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, will be laid up in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday morning.

The unit has now been disbanded.

The mace will be carried into the church by Major F. C. E. Roome, commander of the unit, and handed to Canon R. E. H. Howell, a former chaplin. It will then be presented to Dean Brian Whitlow for safe-keeping in the cathedral.

On the head of the mace is inscribed the present RCEME badge and others connected with the history of the unit. Red, gold and blue colors, interwoven in the lower part of the shaft, represent the Royal Canadian Engineers, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps and the Royal Canadian Ordance Corps.

Piggy Bank Theft

A piggy bank containing $40-$50 in waitress tips was taken from an apartment at 2733 Blackwood Friday.

City police said the bank, blue in color, was reported missing from a basement suite at 4 p.m.

CENTENARIAN Sidney Matthew cuts birthday cake while his niece, Mrs. Douglas E. Smith, 3081 Oakdowne Road, looks on.

'Matthews Never Die' Claim Of Pioneer on 100th Birthday

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A twinkle came to his eyes when asked if he was surprised at reaching 100.

"You know," he said, cocking his head, "there's a saying at St. Mawes in Cornwall that the Matthews never die."

English-born Sidney Matthew even survived the Point Ellice Bridge disaster in 1896 which took 55 lives.

And he has two sisters in their early 90s, Mrs. H. D. Knott and Mrs. Alfred Huxtable of Victoria.

SAW CANADA GROW

In the dining room at the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge 100 guests assembled Friday to celebrate his birthday.

But they were not only honoring a centenarian but also one of the few remaining Canadians of the old stock — the men who lived in an age when self-reliance was the philosophy of the day.

A former builder, Mr. Matthew is a man who has seen Canada grow.

He came to this country with his parents six years after Confederation. He was seven then and lived in Ontario where his father operated a sawmill.

He was 19 when the 1885 Northwest Rebellion broke out, 34 at the outbreak of the Boer War, 48 at the beginning of the First World War.

He came to British Columbia in 1890 when his family moved to Vancouver. His father became a contractor.

"Vancouver was just a little town then," he said. "There wasn't much to it."

Later, he followed his father to Victoria.

NEVER ILL

While he has never been seriously ill in his life, he has suffered many near-fatal accidents. The worst one was when the Point Ellice bridge collapsed.

Both he and his father were flung clear of the streetcar when it crashed through the bridge and plunged into the water. His father and some rescuers got him ashore.

But he suffered a permanent injury in the accident. Something struck him on the hip and left him with a twisted foot.

In the First World War, he went to Britain to do his bit. He worked in a factory making parts for planes.

PLAYS PIANO

A religious man and a music-lover, he belonged to the first Salvation Army band organized in Vancouver and in Victoria. He still plays the piano.

At his party he didn't see why people should make such a fuss over a man who has reached 100. But he looked pleased when he received a message of congratulations from the Queen.

There were others too — from Prime Minister Pearson, Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, Premier Bennett and the city council.

Mrs. H. J. Lewis, centre, shows Mrs. Angela Hincheliffe how the addition of a fur neckpiece can transform her suit into a new and different ensemble as Mrs. E. O'Reilly, at left, and the "A Prettier You" class look on. Aimed at general self-improvement, this class features practical demonstrations in clothing, use of accessories, makeup and beauty care, as well as lectures from experts on poise, posture and self-confidence.

Students in the interior design class learn the basics of decorating from the ground up. Here instructor Mr. Rowland Brown explains the importance of choosing just the right rug to match room decor to, left to right, Mrs. Peter Bardon, Mrs. Greta McLaughlin and Miss Joan Midlane. The 50 students in this class are given lectures and practical demonstrations on color, design and texture co-ordination. They are also taken on field trips through various homes and stores, and top designers give lectures on various periods of furniture and home accessories.

In a few minutes these cards are going to disappear; just like magic! And so it should be, as this is the "Introduction to Magic" class where students like Dr. J. Clearihue, at left, and Mrs. J. Rodway are practising to master the art of sleight-of-hand and the intricate tricks that have amazed audiences and friends for thousands of years. The teacher, Mr. Art Curtis, is a past president of the Victoria Magic Circle.

You can be sure that the gifts received at Christmas from members of this class will be the prettiest presents in town! Mrs. A. Close shows her class how a little ribbon and a lot of imagination can transform an ordinary parcel into a work of art. The students learn the basics in wrapping gifts, packaging securely and decoratively as well as the intricacies of tying bows and ribbon. There are two classes available for beginners and advanced students.

It seems you are never too old to learn.

Every week, more than 6,000 students, ranging in age from 20 to over 70, crowd the classrooms of five local schools, all eager to increase their knowledge. These are the students who are enrolled in the adult education program's night classes.

Many attend to increase employment opportunities and learn new skills; others for general self-improvement, and still others to learn hobbies and crafts.

Some of the largest classes are those of citizenship and immigration, where prospective Canadians are taught the English language.

As well as vocational and job training, the adult program this year offers courses featuring everything from study of the new mathematics for parents to exercise and basic flying.

Co-ordinator of the evening division adult classes, R. P. (Reg) Mylrea, says that interest and enrollment in the adult program "has mushroomed" since the beginning of the school year. The demand, he says, has necessitated the forming of new classes.

To meet popular demand, the night school program is offering many of the classes again after Christmas as well as new ones. Topical will be "You and Your Income Tax", beginning in February. Another of interest is "Outdoor Barbequeing" which will commence in late spring.

Interest in adult education is increasing yearly — it's a second chance for many to learn and improve their job training or enable them to obtain better positions; it's an opportunity for others to constructively fill spare time, and enables still others to broaden horizons and keep pace with a fast-moving world.

Like all the teachers of the adult education courses, Mrs. George Wiggan, second from left, is an expert at her craft—flower arranging. She and three of her students, from left, Mrs. C. Arrell, Mrs. R. Pederson and Mrs. J. D. Artindale, demonstrate to a class how just a few flowers plus ingenuity can form attractive arrangements. There are flower arranging courses for both beginners and more advanced students offered through the night school program.

No matter how dedicated a student you are, you're apt to be diverted if you pass in the vicinity of this class. The basement of Oak Bay Junior Secondary School is filled with the most delightful scents every Wednesday and Thursday evening when the Chinese cooking class is in full swing. Men and women alike have enrolled to learn the secrets of Oriental cooking. In fact, the class proved so popular, they had to start another one. At left, Mr. Lannie Yee, a graduate chemist, shows (left to right) Mrs. R. Carter, Mrs. T. Parton and J. A. Young how to prepare the meat for a Chinese meal, while on the right, Mrs. E. Jacek and D. Woodburn conduct a "taste-test."

RDL (Reading Development Laboratory) has become one of the most popular courses offered in the night school program this year. The course is geared to improve reading habits by increasing comprehension and speed. You could hear the proverbial pin drop in this class, conducted by Mr. Peter Seale, as he shows a film requiring every ounce of concentration from the students. Classes such as these are just one of the reasons for the explosive increase of adult students this year.

A suit or skirt length of this would make a super Christmas gift . . . maybe for your daughter (or wife, if you're a male) . . . There are Munrospun Geelong lambswool classic cardigan sweaters dyed in the same shades as the tweed . . . reduced from $19 to $15.25 . . . broken sizes, unfortunately, but there's a very good selection, and you may be lucky . . . Also reduced are sweater and skirt sets from Ireland . . . lined skirts of Shetland and mohair fabric, matching Shetland cardigans . . . in heather mixtures of cypress green, brown, crushed raspberry, blue and white, and blue heahter . . . whose price tag of $39.95 the set is now snipped to $31.95 . . . Our advice: waste no time in getting in to see these bargains at . . . The Handloom, 13 Centennial Square, 384-1011.

Scaasi's dinner pyjamas are voluminous whirls of peppermint striped silk circling the figure delectably.

Distinguished books for the young on your list . . .

Absolutely nowhere else in town will you find such a choice selection of children's books as at the Book Nook . . . because every single book is personally selected by Mrs. Bluett . . . a lady with informed and unerring taste . . . There are old favorites, as well as the best of the new books for the young . . . To name a few of the latter . . . "Dean's Gift Book of Nursery Rhymes" . . . the classic rhymes in a new setting of delightfully different illustrations (the white leatherette and gold binding would make this a perfect gift for a new baby) . . . "First Delights", is a new book by Tasha Tudor . . . all about the five senses, with delicately beautiful illustrations . . . "Mustang", by Marguerite Henry, is the very latest of her noted horse books . . . and for the boy or girl with a passion for horses, "Ponies and Riding" is a "must" . . . By a collection of writers, experts in their field, it entertains and instructs . . . is full of information on riding and sporting events, illustrated with photographs and drawings . . . Actually good reading for all ages of horselovers . . . A new volume entitled "Prince Rabbit and The Princess Who Could Not Laugh" consists of two never-before-published stories by A. A. Milne . . . sheer magic, and a book that even Eeyore would have to admit is not "lacking in smack" . . . The Book Nook, 10 Centennial Square, 386-0813.

Don't miss the New Year's Eve fun! . . .

One thing we want to say right now to you people who may never have learned to dance . . . or having once done so, now find yourselves rusty and unable to do the new steps . . . and that is, you're missing an awful lot of fun! . . . Dancing's just about the friendliest, most exhilarating form of recreation there is . . . (not to mention good for your health and your figure) . . . and if your lack of expertise has kept you on your chair when you should have been on your feet . . . do something about it right now . . . like enrolling at the Arthur Murray studio for a few dancing lessons . . . You'll find it won't cost much . . . and you'll enjoy the learning, as much as the end results . . . Arthur Murray teachers are thoroughly charming people . . . trained to teach you all the new steps so painlessly you actually won't know what's happening until you suddenly find yourself dancing expertly and confidently! . . . And for goodness sake, don't let shyness or lack of a partner hold you back . . . you'll be invited to Studio parties where you'll meet like-minded people and have partners to spare! . . . If you start real soon . . . like this coming week . . . you'll be dancing by New Year's Eve! . . . Arthur Murray School of Dancing, 715 Yates St., EV 5-1476.

Children, it is claimed in a book on folk medicine, do not naturally like sweets. The addiction to sugar is an acquired taste.

Cantin's add a new service . . .

If you should fail to meet up with a Cantin truck when you're travelling up-Island . . . you're almost bound to see a sporty white car bearing the Cantin name dashing hither and yon . . . because for the past couple of months Cantin's have had a sort of roving representative who does nothing but travel from stem to stern of Vancouver Island, calling on people whom Cantin's have just moved . . . just to make personally sure that everything's satisfactory . . . or making estimates for people planning to move . . . It's the kind of on-the-spot service no other mover gives you . . . and one you'll appreciate if you're involved in a move anywhere on the Island . . . Just another reason, we guess, why Cantin's are the fastest-growing firm of movers in all of B.C.! . . . When it comes to the technique of moving household lares and penates with care and efficiency and the minimum of disruption, Cantin's have no peers . . . Their men are highly trained . . . unfailingly polite and helpful . . . They take the greatest of pride in doing a good moving job . . . If you live anywhere on the Island, and would like to have a moving estimate . . . just phone collect to the nearest Cantin branch office . . . Duncan, Campbell River, Victoria . . . also in Vancouver . . . Cantin's Moving & Storage Ltd., 742 Pembroke St., 385-3476.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

By NONA DAMASKE

Style Story Told in Furs—Coats to Lingerie

SAN FRANCISCO — A continuous fashion show takes place in and around Union Square, San Francisco. Fine hotels, imposing restaurants and chic shops are the setting for beautifully dressed women and fashion items from all over the world. A visit to the elegant oval room of I. Magnins allowed me to meet and chat with Fabiani, the master couturier from Rome, who was presenting his collection of fabulous furs. Fabiani, slender and elegant in the continental manner, was wearing a dark blue double-breasted blazer-type jacket, khaki-toned trousers, a blue and while boldly striped shirt and navy and white striped tie. His manner was relaxed and easy as he answered questions and kept his eye on the beautiful mannequins as they modelled his high-fashion furs. The most expensive coat shown was priced at $6,500 . . . a sparkling white Snowdrift mink, nine horizontal pelts deep. The skirt swung freely from the waistline which was tightly cinched by a white leather tie sash.

TAKE YOUR PICK

A coat or a dress? . . . a silky black lamb garment could have been either. Slightly A-line with a bosom-high yoke and ring collar, the garment zipped down the back, leaving a clean sweep of fur at the front.

Fur suits are much touted for the holiday season ahead and a stunning brown broadtail lamb would be a hit at any party. Antique gold ball buttons nestled between the expresso mink which bordered the jacket fronts and neckline. The slim skirt was banded in mink at knee level.

Fur was also on display in the lingerie section. For $125 you may have a pair of chinchilla-trimmed, pale grey pure silk underpanties. These are inspired by the costumes from Doctor Zhivago which is the look for the cold weather days ahead. The six-inch chinchilla band comes just to the top of the knee and gives the appearance of a narrow fur skirt beneath a tunic top. Four little gold chains are at the elasticized waistline . . . these are used to hang the garment from a silver hanger.

NEW MAKEUP ITEM

A new and popular item seen in all the smart shops just now is an electrically lighted makeup case. It is a miniature version of the dressing room mirrors used by stars of stage and screeen. Six or eight high-powered bulbs light up when the cord is plugged in to any light socket . . . there is room in the deep kit for makeup, hair brush, facial tissues and other items.

Italy is also in the spotlight at Saks, in Maiden Lane. The newest Pucci collection, brilliant and unmistakably original as any other Florentine masterpiece, arrived this week. The tragic floods which swept northern Italy have, for the time, closed down the fashion houses of Florence, including the palace where the Marquis Emilio Pucci di Barsento creates his world-renowned styles. A new adventure . . . velvet prints are even wilder than the Pucci silk prints which are the world's most copied fashion. The Pucci Boutique Collection includes one-piece palazzo pyjamas, long dresses, long hip-hung skirts, skimpy shifts, tunic shirts with matching stretch leotards, mini-skirts to wear over stretch jump suits and superbly tailored pants. The combination of colors are so unbelievably wild they are breathtakingly beautiful.

Lunched at one of San Francisco's most popular spots, The Poodle Dog, with Ruth Rogers Wilson, who visited Victoria several times in her capacity as travel fashion consultant for the Matson Lines. Ruth no longer lives out of a suitcase . . . she and her husband Ben have a beautiful apartment here in San Francisco. Ruth is still up to her ears in fashion, however, and is doing a bang-up job with Sandy Masonek, a wholesale fur company.

'Baby Clinic' Ideal For Little Mothers

By PENNY SAVER

One little girl's faceless "baby" was rushed to the "emergency" ward of a special hospital in Victoria. The keen "doctor", knowing that this required no serious operation, painted eyes and a mouth on the doll. But, the "baby" then was all head. Somewhere along its line of adoptive parents, the doll had lost its body. The "operation" will be a success when the limbs arrive, according to this doll doctor.

This woman began taking a serious interest in dolls and doll "operations" seven years ago. She took a doll hospital course in Los Angeles, Calif., putting aside a wish to study painting, and is now a certified doll doctor.

There is not one aspect of repairing dolls which is not familiar to this woman. Her hospital has shelves of tools for putting dolls together. Her husband is learning how to repair "vocal cords" of talking dolls.

Most of her surgery leaves no markings on the doll, but some, requiring a special type of limb that needs to be heated into place, leave a little scar. The little "mother" then has proof that her "child" has had a serious operation.

Repair work isn't all that this doctor specializes in. She makes dolls and stuffed animals that every child would love to own. Four types of dolls, one Japanese doll, a little girl with pigtails, another with a short coiffure, and a boy doll sell, completely dressed and ready to play with, for $2.98.

Costumes are of cotton. Little girl dolls have crisp checked dresses and fancy aprons, as well as shoes and underclothing. Dolls are made completely of cloth, and stuffed with foam rubber. According to this doctor, dolls should be made for children to play with rather than just to look at.

That's exactly how she makes these dolls. With an ounce of care, these can even be washed so that they look like new.

In the animal line, she makes gigantic bunnies of soft felt fabric, dressed in jumpers with brass buttons and little bow ties. These "Thumpers" are perfect cuddle size for any youngster, and sell for $5.

One thing that I didn't know about dolls is that you can make them out of almost anything. She showed me some made with with dried apple heads, and even one made with a head of dried pear.

Even more amazing were the doll shapes made of dried orange and grapefruit peels.

If you have a doll that needs an "operation", don't delay. Give Penny a call at 382-3131 and she'll direct you to this hospital.

Lace Trim Highlight Of Gown

Dainty lace appliques enhanced the empire-line bodice of the peau de soie gown worn by Melvina Rees Lawson, Friday evening, when she became the bride of Timothy Wendlen Senger of Edmonton. The bodice also featured three-quarter-length sleeves and the floor-length skirt was styled on A-lines. A cluster of white roses held her bouffant shoulder-length veil. She carried red roses and stephanotis in her bouquet. The groom's gift of a gold locket was her only jewelry.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon E. Lawson, 3155 Harriet Road, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Senger of Calmar, Alta. Christ the King Chapel, Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt, was decorated with white chrysanthemums at the altar for the service at which Fr. C. Murphy officiated. Mr. Lawson gave his step-daughter in marriage.

A floor-length gown in blue tones was worn by maid of honor Miss Sharon Green. Her bow headpiece echoed the blue shade and she carried a bouquet of white carnations, delicately tipped with turquoise.

The little flower girl was the groom's sister, Rebecca Senger, who wore a frock of yellow. The bodice was of nylon, and net over silk formed the skirt. Yellow chrysanthemums were in the basket she carried.

Best man was Hans Schmidt. Ron Provan and Bob Morran ushered guests to their pews.

Robert Purser proposed the toast to his sister at the reception following in Holyrood House. Arrangements of red and white roses flanked the three-tier wedding cake, topped with pink roses, which centred the head table.

The new Mrs. Senger chose a hat of red, green and white feathers to complement the three-piece blue and green knit suit which she wore for travelling on honeymoon up-Island. Her accessories were black.

The newlyweds will be making their home in the Eastwood Apartments on Admirals Road.

Stephenson-Ray Vows Friday Evening

TO LIVE IN WINNIPEG

Following their honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Archibald Stephen Stephenson will travel to Winnipeg where they will make their new home.

The bride, the former Ada Marie Ray, is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Millan and Ronald Ray of Victoria and the groom is the son of Mrs. Thomas Stephenson, Wabowden, Man., and the late Mr. Stephenson.

Floral arrangements in bronze and yellow tones decorated Centennial United Church, Friday evening, for the service at which Dr. S. J. Parsons officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an elegant gown of white chiffon velvet, fashioned with a belled skirt en train. The fitted bodice featured a scoop neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves. Flat bows highlighted the front and back waistline of the gown. Her veil misted to her shoulders from a pill box headpiece, studded with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses which she later presented to her grandmother, Mrs. B. Wright. The only jewelry accent was the groom's gift of a pearl necklace.

The bride's attendant was her sister, matron of honor Mrs. Andrew McLeary who wore a street-length dress of aqua silk crepe. The bodice was embroidered with aqua beads and ribbon. Bronze chrysanthemums formed her bouquet.

Ronald J. Stewart, Starbuck, Man., was best man and Andrew McLeary and Maurice Gillies, Elie, Man., were ushers.

License Practical Nurses

To maintain a good standard of patient care, the British Columbia Council of Practical Nurses handles a licensing program for persons who qualify as practical nurses. This is one of the principal functions of the organization which is appointed under the Practical Nurses' Act of B.C.

Licences may be issued to two main groups of applicants; those persons who have completed a training course approved by the council, and those who, in the opinion of the council, have been satisfactorily employed as practical nurses for a two-year period within the last five years.

The latter group must apply for a licence before December 31 of this year, a deadline set by regulations.

This program was set up in 1965 and approximately 950 licences have been issued since fall of that year. Initial fee is $10, and annual renewal cost is $6. Fees should not be submitted with application.

Social evening and meeting, Canadian Daughters' League, Assembly No. 5, Monday at 8 p.m., Elks' Hall, Cormorant Street.

Scary Charmers Become 'Hit' Of CNIB Crafts Sale and Tea

Not even scarecrows could keep Christmas "early birds" away from the wealth of handcrafted articles made by the blind, offered at the sale and tea of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind Friday. It is no wonder — the scarecrows were part of the attraction!

These little wonders looked ready to settle in any garden. Made of straw, each of the scary maidens donned a colorful apron and a scarf to match.

There were "barrels" of knitted, stuffed monkeys just waiting to be taken by a Christmas-minded Mom. Even so, there was no monkey business going on at the sale, which realized the sum of $635.

Knitted baby clothing and doll outfits, leathercrafts, ceramics, basketwork of every description and weaving were featured at the sale, held at the institute, 1609 Blanshard Street.

SALE CONVENER

Mrs. T. C. Davis convened the sale. Her assistants were Mrs. J. Frank, Mrs. G. Jones, Mrs. C. C. Wyatt, Mrs. E. E. Chamberlin, Mrs. L. Edwards, Mrs. A. V. Price, Mrs. R. B. Horton, Mrs. G. Hull, Mrs. J. A. McNamara, Mrs. K. L. Patton, Mrs. H. E. Reid, Mrs. C. E. Rivett-Carnac, Miss Blanche McIntyre, Mrs. D. McGregor, Miss Helen Rattray, and Mrs. W. Gouge. Wrapping parcels were Miss A. M. Bailey and Miss M. Angus. In charge of sale receipts was Mrs. Edward Brand.

Coffee and doughnuts were served in the morning, and tea and an assortment of cookies and cakes during the afternoon in the auditorium.

Arrangements of carnations in pink, red and white tones centred each table. Baskets of chrysanthemums in beige shade were on the stage, and an arrangement of the same flowers formed a centrepiece for the tea table. Mrs. S. Belither was in charge of decorations.

Refreshment convener was Mrs. D. N. Macmillan. In charge of receipts, which totalled $149, were Mrs. H. Morris and Mrs. W. G. Thorpe.

Assisting with the tea were Mrs. J. A. Barry, Mrs. J. Acheson, Mrs. H. Buxton, Mrs. Cecil Gunn, Mrs. M. A. W. Bridgman, Miss Heather Bridgman, Mrs. George James, Mrs. R. Wilde, Mrs. L. W. Rust, Mrs. N. B. Williams, Mrs. C. H. Forder and Mrs. G. Hull. Mrs. J. H. Frank convened a raffle.

Realize $350

Approximately $350 was realized, recently, when the Saanich Kiwanniannes held a Christmas tea and bazaar in The Inn, Cook Street. The proceeds are earmarked for the proposed Handicapped Persons' Camp at Lake Cowichan, a new project of the Vancouver Island Kiwanis Clubs.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Trust Eliminates Telling All

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A woman I know stood right there and told me that she was happily married and she and her husband told each other EVERYTHING. Well, I've been married as long as she has, and I consider myself happily married, too, but I'm the first to admit that I don't tell my husband everything, and I'm pretty sure he doesn't tell me everything either.

I didn't want to start an argument with her, so I just kept still. But I want to know if you think, in order to have a happy marriage, a man and his wife must tell each other EVERYTHING?

VOTES NO

DEAR VOTES NO: I also vote no. But don't jump to the conclusion that I am all for mutual distrust in marriage. Neither am I suggesting that a man and his wife should LIE to each other. I merely say that every marriage should have its proper restraints and privacies. There are certain things one should keep to himself, if only out of kindness and consideration for his mate. A wife should be on her husband's team — and he on hers. There must be confidence, trust, and loyalty, and to blurt out every thought or put into words every emotion can create hurt and needless complications.

DEAR ABBY: Someone told me that girls who wear glasses look more intelligent than girls who don't wear glasses. Do you think this is true?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Possibly. But it's only an optical illusion.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound trivial to you, but it has caused quite a few arguments at our house.

I have been raised to clean up after myself, and my husband hasn't. His mother did everything for him, including washing his hair. The big fight is over his leaving the bathtub dirty for me to clean. Abby, I find this revolting, but if he refuses to do it, then I have to, which is the way it's been lately. I did agree to wash out the tub after him until we heard from you.

He said he would go by your decision. He says if I loved him, I'd do it. I say if he loved ME, he wouldn't ask me to. Who is right?

ACHING BACK

DEAR ACHING: The word from here is that every man, woman, and child able to bathe without assistance should clean out the tub after himself.

ISLAND DIGEST

Campbell River School Burns

CAMPBELL RIVER — A library crammed with thousands of books and eight classrooms were wiped out when fire swept through Cedar elementary school this morning.

The blaze, which broke out around 11 p.m., took 30 firemen and dozens of volunteer helpers more than three hours to bring under control.

As firemen sifted through the wreckage of charred books and scorched school desks this morning, a special meeting of the school board was called.

Most of the school's 700 intermediate pupils will have to be found new classrooms in Campbell River's already overcrowded schools.

Damage to two-thirds of the school's 12 classrooms is expected to run into several hundred thousand dollars.

Only part to escape was a $200,000 extension of four classrooms and a recreation room completed earlier this year

LIBRARY LOST

Most seriously damaged was the school-owned library.

Said a school board spokesman today: "I think every one of the books was destroyed. It's a great loss. It was one of the most comprehensive libraries in the area."

At the height of the blaze, dozens of nearby residents rushed to the school to offer assistance.

But there was little to be done as the intensive heat kept firefighters at bay.

Seat of the blaze appeared to be the centrally located library which was converted from a gymnasium only last year.

The damaged single storey, wood-frame, school buildings had been standing since 1956.

An inspector from the fire marshal's office in Vancouver was to inspect the damage today.

Said fire chief William McIntosh: "As yet we've no idea how it started or where."

He said that until the inspection is complete, arson cannot be ruled out. However, there were no immediate indications this was the case.

PRE-BUILT homes stand on temporary blocks in a vacant lot at the instant town of Gold River, awaiting completion of foundations in their permanent location. The three and four-bedroom homes, built in the Vancouver factory of Coast Homes Ltd., at the rate of one a day, are barged and trucked to the site. Fifty-five of the pre-built homes are included in the total of 218 single-family houses being built in the new town, which will have a population of about 2,000 by next June.

Flooding Under Control

Flooding at the strike-bound iron mine at Kennedy Lake has been brought under control, a company spokesman said Friday.

The flooding occurred earlier this week said a spokesman for Noranda, parent company of Brynnor Mines.

The mine, west of Port Alberni, was struck July 19 by the "three-way pact" unions—International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Tunnel and Rock Workers, and International Union of Operating Engineers.

The dispute involved 156 workers.

A company spokesman also confirmed some equipment is being removed from the mine but it is of a kind that Noranda needs elsewhere for mineral exploration.

Brynnor went into production in May, 1962, with a 3,000-ton daily capacity mill.

HEARING SET MONDAY

Metchosin ratepayers will meet Monday to discuss the regional board's proposed takeover of Witty's Lagoon.

The 8 p.m. meeting in Metchosin parish hall follows protests by Stanley and Leslie Witty, owners of the 44-acre property, about the expropriation plans.

The reginal board has offered, and the Wittys have rejected, an offer of $100,000 for the property.

Earlier, the brothers were offered $170,000 by the provincial government

It is proposed to turn the property into a park.

Councillor Proposes Amalgamation Study

NORTH COWICHAN — Coun. John Cannon of North Cowichan told a department of municipal affairs commission Friday amalgamation of part of North Cowichan with Duncan is of the utmost urgency.

He said: "Its necessity becomes more urgent to us in the light of revelations of the City of Duncan wanting to annex part of the municipality for its own advantage.

"My main concern is how amalgamation takes place and in whose interest.

"It should be in the interest of all the people and not some special group who have vested interests and their own axe to grind."

Mr. Cannon said appointment of a government commission to examine the issue would overcome local bias, search out and present the facts to the people

'THIS IS WRONG'

He said: "In our area it is being handled by a study group appointed by the City of Duncan.

"This is wrong as in my experience the city has acted like the proverbial French bookkeeper.

"They have one set of facts and figures for themselves, another set for their friends and a third set for the people.

"In my opinion it would be better to establish the boundaries with a ouija board rather than on this basis. In any case it would be fairer."

Mr. Cannon said: "Each municipality has its own particular problem, consequently it should have the right to make its own choice.

WARD SYSTEM?

"I feel some form of modified ward system could be worked out to advantage."

Mrs. Tom H. Hamilton, Indian Road (in North Cowichan), presented a brief asking that the voters' list be revised every three months.

She alleged the present system of reviewing it annually means a lot of tax-paying citizens forfeit the right to vote on a number of money bylaws.

Mrs. Hamilton also suggested the Municipal Act be amended regarding referendum votes on water and sewer bylaws.

She said services affecting health be installed by council without reference to the electors, as such services become necessary and economically feasible.

CUMBERLAND-born James W. Greig, has been appointed assistant resident manager of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd.'s Elk Falls pulp and paper mill near Campbell River. Mr. Greig was formerly manager at the company's Ocean Falls division.

Farm Workers' Union Officer Quits Post

DUNCAN — The newly formed Farm Workers' Union here has run into early trouble.

Lance Baker, appointed vice-president Tuesday, resigned Friday.

His employer, Archie Stevenson, Fairbridge, is an outspoken critic of the current attempt to organize a union.

Mr. Stevenson, president of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, said Friday: "I have no objection to a union if properly handled but I think it is stupid the way this one is being organized."

Mr. Stevenson criticized an employer (Mr. Margaret Whittaker) acting as business agent for the new group.

'IT'S A JOKE'

He said: "The whole thing is quite a joke in the Cowichan Valley."

Mr. Stevenson said: "An awful lot of the farm helpers at the present time are getting more money than they're worth.

"Some of them have good living conditions but don't know how to look after them."

He said: "Some of them are not worth half the $1.75 an hour which the union says it will ask as a basic rate."

Four Nominees For Sooke School Board

Veteran Sooke school trustee, Mrs. Isabelle Reader, will be opposed in the Dec. 10 elections for the first time in 12 years.

Four people have filed nomination papers for the two vacant board seats in the Belmont area. No one has yet filed nomination papers for the one vacant seat in the Sooke area.

Said Mrs. Reader: "I have run unopposed six times. I am glad to see that there is so much interest in school affairs this year. It is a very good thing."

Mrs. Reader is the senior board member as well as being vice-chairman of the board.

The three people she will be running against are: Dr. H. J. Portelance who has just completed a one-year term; Albert Canning, a defence department academic instructor, and Donald Stansall of Metchosin.

Fiddlers Tuned Up For Contest

Competitors in a Fiddlers' Contest to be held in Nanaimo April 28, will perform in a floor show during the Senior Citizens' Old-Time Ball on Friday, Dec. 2.

Sponsored by Greater Victoria Centennial Society, the ball will be held in Victoria Ballroom, 1600 Government Street, starting at 8 p.m.

Senior Citizens taking part will wear old-time costume, such as crinolines, cravats and top hats, to create an authentic atmosphere.

Free tickets are available at the Silver Threads Service, No. 4 Centennial Square, and at Greater Victoria Centennial Society, 14 Centennial Square.

"Those wishing to attend should apply for tickets as early as possible," a society spokesman said. "The demand is already quite brisk."

51 Minutes Needed To Pass Estimates

OTTAWA (CP)—The 1966-67 spending estimates of 20 federal departments — $1,542,982674—were approved by the Commons in 51 minutes Friday. The opposition was silenced by new rules.

The provisional rules put a 30-day time limit, which was up Friday, on debate on appropriations.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) said later the rules curtail parliamentary control of the purse strings and the Conservatives won't accept a time limit again. He said 45 days are normally spent on estimates.

Wrapping up the estimates allows the House to turn full attention Monday to a heavy and contenious legislative program.

It includes bills on medical care insurance, supplementary benefits for old age pensioners, revision of the Bank Act, armed services unification, Finance Minister Sharp's mini-budget, and transport policy.

A routine bill to extend bank charters will come up first Monday, Government House Leader McIlraith said.

It will be followed by the medical care insurance bill, now at the committee stage after second reading, approval in principle.

PREDICT MAJOR DEBATE

Major debate is expected on a government amendment to delay implementation of the scheme for one year until July 1, 1968.

The New Democratic Party has pressed for the original July 1, 1967 date.

After medical care, debate is expected to shift to a government resolution providing for a guaranteed minimum income for old age pensioners through a supplement to the present monthly $75.

Both Conservatives and New Democrats say a means test is built into the supplement of up to $30 a month and they will fight it.

The opposition didn't get a chance to say anything as the estimates whizzed through but they did force eight standing votes involving finance, defence, the National Energy Board and CBC spending.

The NDP called a vote on the energy board estimates to register opposition to approval of a second Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. route that will go through the United States rather than Northern Ontario.

The rest of the Conservatives joined the NDP in a 67-to-30 defeat.

FORCED 5 VOTES

Conservatives forced five votes, three on finance department contingency funds that allowed the government to avert a money supply crisis this month and two on defence to register opposition to unification of the armed forces.

'More Nations Should Share In Aid Costs'

PARIS (Reuters)—Canadian Trade Minister Winters says countries other than food-exporting ones should share the responsibility for providing food to underdeveloped nations.

Addressing the sixth annual ministerial meeting of the Organization for Econonic Co-operation and Development Friday Winters said:

"Other member countries must play their part, for example through the provision of finance for shipping services, either through the world food program or under special arrangements."

He emphasized that this year Canada had "an increased food aid program, including the provision of 1,000,000 tons of foodstuff, mainly in the form of wheat, to help meet the India emergency food crisis."

Winters reminded ministers of the vital part played by wheat sales in the balance of payments for Canada. "When we give food as aid, we are foregoing sales," he said.

LONG-TERM SOLLUTION

The need to increase food production in developing countries is the long-term solution, Winters continued.

Thus Canada would give "the highest priority to requests from developing countries for such technical and capital assistance related to agriculture or fisheries."

He recognized the need for more aid, but added: "Our own taxpayers, although motivated by humanitarianism, are anxious to know, and have a right to know, that their monies are being spent to the best advantage."

Winters finally stressed the need for adapting aid terms to the needs of developing countries. He welcomed the work to be carried out by the OECD development assistance committee, which deals with the problem of aid to developing countries.

How come the Cunningham delivery boy is a girl?

If you've ever called Cunninghams during an emergency, you wouldn't ask.

We've realized for a long time, that when somebody gets sick, mother is usually the first one there. It's a built-in sense of urgency that women seem to have.

And our delivery boys have that kind of understanding in difficult moments because every one of them is a girl. Some of them are even mothers.

Remember last year, during the flu epidemic, when the snow was up to your knees? Every single one of our prescriptions got through. And most of our girls had to work 15 to 18 hours a day to do it.

That's loyalty even we didn't expect.

And that's why you'll find a pretty face behind the wheel of every Cunningham car.

At Cunninghams we care.

Dying Get 'Relief' By LSD Injections

NEW YORK (UPI) — To lessen the mental anguish of dying Dr. Eric Kast injected the hallucination drug lysergic acid deithylamide (LSD) into 80 cancer patients who had only weeks or months to live and knew it.

Because it was frankly a scientific experiment this physician-scientist first asked himself if he was justified in interfering with the natural process of dying in such a way.

He decided he was justified because LSD in previous experiments has been shown to enable people "to see and feel with greater intensity." That is good for the dying. Kast decided, again on scientific grounds.

A slow dying "seems to take an extraordinary toll in a person's ability to relate to his environment and communicate with his family," Kast said. "He becomes isolated and is deprived to a large extent of his ability to experience realistically and deeply these last months or weeks of greatest importance in his life."

And so, by injection, with their full knowledge and consent, the 80 were given the LSD "experience" which is called a "journey" by Bohemians, thrill-seekers and other non-scientific experimentalists. The results were in general beneficial, Kast reported.

It caused the cancer-doomed to "view events in and around them" with greater clarity and in three dimensions, he said. "Through this insight, communication was greatly facilitated. It also created a sense of cohesion and community among patients. This greatly enhanced morale and self-respect."

Catholic Art Treasures Hit

VATICAN CITY (AP)—One of the Vatican's main experts in manuscript restoration said Friday the Nov. 4 floods in Florence caused $25,000,000 damage to artistic properties of the Roman Catholic Church.

He predicted it would take at least 15 years to repair the "slaughter of art."

Rt. Rev. Mario Pinzuti, a Benedictine monk who heads the monastery of Mount Oliveto Maggiore near Siena which specializes in restoration of antique books, manuscripts and parchments, told a press conference that the disastrous floods had done "incredible damage" in Florence alone.

Father Pinzuti said Cimabue's precious Crucified Christ, which was 80 per cent destroyed, was valued at $3,200,000.

"Between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 precious books in Florentine museums, archives and libraries have been damaged," he said.

POST OFFICE EXPECTS RUSH FOR STAMP

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. post office is bracing itself for an expected rush of customers eager to purchase what may be its best-selling, most controversial and certainly most colorful Christmas stamp.

The five-color stamp, a reproduction of Flemish Renaissance painter Hans Memling's Madonna and Child with Angels, went on sale Nov. 1 at Christmas, Mich.

Some of those opposed to issuance of a Christmas stamp felt this year's venture went too far.

A spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union said: "The stamp has a religious motif — and it therefore is a governmental means of showing preference for a single religion ... clearly a preferential governmental aid in propagating a religious faith."

Priest Regarded JFK Suave, Yankee Liberal

By JOHN F. DAFFRON

MCLEAN, Va. (AP) — The little priest leaned forward and offered cream for the coffee in his basement study, lighted by the brilliance of an Indian summer day.

"On days like this I enjoy reminiscing and chatting about him," said Rev. Albert F. Pereira. "He was one of my weekend parishioners."

Father Pereira, a scholarly man of 51, was the pastor, friend and sometimes adviser of the late president John F. Kennedy for all but a few of the 1,000 days of Kennedy's administration. The Kennedys had a weekend retreat at nearby Middleburg.

"The last time I saw him he came to mass on Nov. 10, 1963 — 12 days before he went to Dallas ... my sermon that day was on 'The death of a Christian' — you know, life is just a prelude to a new and lively existence hereafter. Heaven only knows I had no sort of premonition ..."

"At first we didn't get along too well ... I regarded him as a suave, Yankee liberal. I am a Virginian, you know.

"As time went on we got to know one another better — he'd see me after mass, have me over to his place or to the White House, or phone to chat about this or that.

"When we became friends he once asked if I had voted for him. I told him, yes, a bit reluctantly as the lesser of two evils. He said I didn't sound like a very convinced Democrat. I said that was correct — that I was a convinced independent."

Father Pereira regarded his famous parishioner as a devout man who didn't know a great deal about his religion — and as a man who as the first Catholic president was sensitive about church-state relationships and how the Catholic hierarchy regarded him.

The priest was given advance notice of the Supreme Court decision forbidding school prayer. The Sunday before the June 25, 1962, decision Kennedy phoned:

"Isn't this a hell of a thing for the first Catholic president to be involved in? What am I going to say?"

ADVISED PRESIDENT

"This was the first and only time he ever asked me for advice on presidential matters. I told him:

"'I think this is a wonderful opportunity for you. It's the first time a Catholic—as president—has had the opportunity to make a gesture on tolerance: It's the chance for a masterpiece.'

"To this, Kennedy snapped: 'But precisely what in the hell should I say?'

"We talked about it for some time. He listened with that concentration which was sort of a hallmark."

After the Monday decision, Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, said he was "shocked and frightened" by the decision which "strikes at the very heart of the godly tradition in which American children have so long been raised."

And at his Wednesday press conference, Kennedy said of the decision:

"I would think that it would be a welcome reminder to every American family that we can pray a good deal more at home and attend our churches with a good deal more fidelity, and we can make the true meaning of prayer much more important to the lives of our children. That power is very much open to us all."

THEOLOGY CHALLENGED

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Has modern man outgrown belief in the supernatural?

Many Christian scholars today proceed on the assumption that he has. Indeed, this is the basic premise of the so-called new theology put forward by such men as Bishop John Robinson, author of "Honest To God," and Dr. Harvey Cox, author of "The Secular City."

They say that "otherworldly" religion has no place in a scientific age. If Christianity is to be relevant to our time, it must be reinterpreted in secular terms as a faith which is solely concerned with this world.

Their argument, which has gained wide acceptance in U.S. seminaries, is being formidably challenged on the other side of the Atlantic by Eric Mascall, professor of historical theology at the University of London. Like the late C. S. Lewis, whom he greatly resembles in the way he thinks and writes, Dr. Mascall is a man of impressive intellectual breadth. He holds degrees from leading British universities in mathematics and science, as well as in theology.

His rebuttal to the new theology is contained in a series of books of which the most recent is "The Christian Universe," published in the United States this month by Morehouse-Barlow.

OUT OF FASHION

Mascall acknowledges that belief in a supernatural realm is out of fashion.

"The vast majority of men and women today," he says, "organize their lives on the assumption that the only realities of which they need to take account are those that are perceived by their senses in the brief span of time that lies between their conception and their death."

"This assumption underlies the philosophy of existentialism expounded by Jean-Paul Sartre and the literature of absurdity epitomized by John Barth's novels. Both existentialists and absurdists assert that human life has no ultimate meaning."

And they are quite right, says Mascall — if the meaning of life must be sought solely within this world.

"The world in which we live ... does not make sense of itself," he says. "So we are confronted with a choice. We may make the best of a world which is in the last resort a senseless and hostile desert ... or we may look for the world's meaning in some order of reality outside and beyond it."

To settle for a senseless universe is a strange piece of defeatism for men of a scientific age. It amounts to saying that "we can hope to receive answers to every conceivable question about the world and humn life which our innate curiosity can suggest to us except the final and ultimate question on which everything else depends: namely, why is there a world at all?"

Mascall notes that "until quite recent times" thinking men were never content with a philosophy which attributed to the world "ultimate irrationality and meaninglessness."

On the contrary, of thoughtful men throughout history the vast majority have been convinced that "behind and beyond the world that our senses perceive, there is another realm of being which ... requires no explanation and which, in some way or another confers explanation upon the world of our senses and gives meaning to human life."

'COME OF AGE'

Why have millions of men and women today lost all awareness of the supernatural dimension which earlier generations considered "too obvious to need argument?"

One answer, favored by the new theologians, is that man has "come of age" and "at long last has managed to break the shackles of superstition."

But, Mascall says, there may well be a different explanation. Perhaps "our urbanized technocratic civilization has atrophied a faculty which is really natural to man, so that we have now become incapable, without a great deal of de-conditioning, of seeing something that is really just under our noses, and which was as plain as a pikestaff to our ancestors."

NORMAL FACULTY

Mascall says that science offers evidence that apprehension of the supernatural is a normal human faculty.

"As a matter of scientific anthropology, belief in a world beyond that of our sense-experience is one of the things that in fact distinguishes man from the beasts; it is indeed perhaps the most striking of these things. Even the highest of the apes are without it; even the most primitive of mankind possessed it."

He concludes that "modern atheism and secularism do not mark a further step forward in man's progress. They are a retrogression to the level of existence of the beasts."

Sands exclusive service for those who travel . . .
A collect call to Sands, at a time of emergency, brings one of our service vehicles (or charter aircraft) out to you anywhere in the Pacific Northwest.
You are spared the distress of having an unfamiliar funeral director in another city arrange for removal to Victoria, and at a cost which far exceeds our special service. Sands relieve you of all anxiety at a time when it is comforting to have friends attending to your needs rather than strangers.
Sands give forethought to funeral costs . . .
A service of dignity and beauty can be arranged regardless of financial circumstances. The selection of casket to suit every financial need is made possible through Sands' economical practice of car load purchasing . . . savings which are shared with those we serve.

Old and New Crafts At Shady Creek Show

An art show, started five years ago at Shady Creek United Church by Edith Jones and Billie Oakes, is now a popular annual event.

The 1966 show, held last Saturday, featured a blend of old and new crafts in keeping with the centennial theme.

Guest artist was Miss Annora Brown of Deep Cove, author, illustrator and painter, who displayed about 20 of her wildflower water colors.

Water colors of local and historical landmarks were shown by Mrs. W. Pitts, A. D. J. Pitts and S. Stoddart. Oils and graphics were also well represented.

The tables were gay with pottery by Gilmar, colorful beads by Benta Rehm, ceramics by Mable Holloway, scarves by Louise Page and beads, bowls and mugs hand-carved from native woods by Dr. William Newton.

Two collections of old Indian baskets were displayed by Mrs. M. Bruce and Mrs. N. Newton.

Old laces and costumes—some 100 years old—aged photographs, household and farm articles and a lamp from an old Fraser River boat were among the historic items on display.

CONCERT SET SUNDAY

The choir of Centennial United Church will give a concert of sacred music Sunday at 7:30 p.m. under its new director, Miss Elizabeth Chinnick.

Their program will include two old English carols, The Cherry Tree and Remember, O Thou Man, and the anthem, I Was Glad (Elvey).

At the organ Miss Chinnick will play Prelude and Fugue in G Major (Bach) and Chorale Preludes for Advent.

Contractor Fined

A contractor who undertook some house repairs in Oak Bay without a municipal licence there was fined $10 in central court Friday.

His Altar Is a Greasy Engine

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Rev. Walter Clark, 28, has no church except his small frame house, and his altar may be a greasy engine with a hot-rod magazine for a hymn book.

His ministry can only be called experimental.

It started a little more than a year ago when he was hired by Charlotte Presbyterians and Episcopalians (Anglicans) to try to reach boys who often roam the streets at night in the northeast part of the city.

After graduating from Davidson College in 1962 and Princeton Seminary in 1965, Clark was ordained a Presbyterian minister in October, 1965. During his senior year at the seminary, he was active in similar youth work in Philadelphia.

In Charlotte, the young minister first attracted youngsters when he moved into a small frame house and started rebuilding an automobile engine in the back yard.

Drawn by curiosity, the neighborhood boys began visiting the yard. He met others by striking up conversations on street corners.

Now the young minister has dozens of friends — boys from eight to 21 and their families. He listens to their problems, tries to keep them out of trouble with police, helps them find jobs and often goes to court with them.

"Not a word they (the boys) tell me in confidence is repeated," he said.

He tries most of all to be a friend. Yet he never helps the boys with handouts. "That would do more harm than good," he said. "Even if I hire a lawyer to defend a boy, he's expected to go to work and pay back the fees."

He has built a crude basketball court in the back yard, and occasionally organizes a game. He hopes to get permission soon to use a gym at a nearby church.

The boys, some of whom have had continuing troubles with the law, say the neighborhood is becoming better because of the minister's work.

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES

Congregations to Light First of Four Candles

Christians throughout the world will observe this Sunday as the first Sunday in Advent—the beginning of a period of earnest preparation for the joyous festival of Christmas.

In Victoria many churches will follow the ancient European custom of lighting the first of four Advent candles, usually displayed with a holly wreath in front of the altar.

The second, third and fourth candles will be lit on successive Sundays approaching Christmas Day.

"Advent means preparation and anticipation of the event which Christmas commemorates—the coming of Jesus Christ," said Rev. Marvin G. Fowler of First United Church.

"We think of Advent almost as a second coming with the spirit of Christ being reborn into our lives."

At the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services in First United, Mr. Fowler will speak on Bethlehem Village of Bread. The first of the Advent candles, symbolizing Jesus the Prophet, will be lit by the Harry Mitchell family.

The junior choir will sing This Is Our Father's House, and When We Hear the Church Bells; the senior choir will present the anthem, And The Glory of The Lord (Handel), and Betty Buchan will give the solo, But the Lord Is Mindful of His Own.

Sharing in the conduct of the 11 a.m. worship will be W. Leonard Arnall.

At 7:30 p.m. the congregation of First United will join in the evening service at St. John's Anglican Church, conducted by the rector, Canon Grahame Baker.

Rev. Robert Morris of First United will be the preacher and the combined choirs will sing And The Glory of The Lord, and O Come Ye Servants of the Lord.

Afterwards there will be a social in the church hall at which the ladies' guild of St. John's will serve refreshments.

The girls' and boys' choirs of St. John's will sing at a family communion service at 9:30 a.m. The epistle will be read by James Leamy and Canon Baker will give a children's address.

He will also speak at the service of morning prayer at 11 a.m. when the choir will be heard in the anthem, Rejoice In the Lord, Alway.

The first Advent candle in Metropolitan United Church, symbolizing Forgiveness, will be lit by Tom Robinson of the Kairos group.

The Sanctuary Choir, directed by Frank Tupman, will sing the anthems, Praise to the Lord, and Bless the Lord, O My Soul.

Rev. E. Laura Butler will speak to the question Is God On Your Christmas List?

The Kairos group will conduct the evening service and present the chancel drama, The Witness, by James Brock. Taking part will be Joy Roberts, Shirley Taylor, Ian Smith, Bill Lawrie, Rodney Rumpel, Ken Jensen, Don Henderson and Jackie Davies.

Music will be by Kairos Choir.

The Tone Trio—Grace Hawkins, Paddy Davidson and Elsie Tingley—will give a concert in Belmont United Church Monday at 8 p.m. in aid of the organ fund.

They perform as a vocal trio and as instrumentalists on two pianos, two harps, organ and accordion.

St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society will attend the Sunday evening service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, will speak on The Stuff of Heroes.

The service will be followed by a fellowship hour in the Kirk Hall at which Pipe-Major Ian Duncan will give selections on the bagpipes.

The morning service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Clarence A. Kircher of San Mateo, California.

Music by the choir will include the anthems, Dear Lord and Father of Mankind (Parry) and Come, Thou Almight King (Whitehead).

Soloists will be Georgina Harper and John W. Bell.

"My motto this year is Do Your Christmas Preaching Early," writes Marvin Evans, minister of the Unitarian Church of Victoria.

At the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services in the Servetus Hall, 106 Superior Street, Mr. Evans' subject will be In Praise of Christmas.

Four Victoria women will participate in an evangelical tour of South American countries starting Dec. 29.

They are Mrs. Harry Zaruk, Mrs. Roberta Vellacott, Miss Elaine Stranne and Miss Elizabeth Calder, all full-time ministers with the Fairfield congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses.

At Miami, Florida, Dec. 29, they will meet 600 Witnesses from Canada, the United States, France and Germany to begin a six-week crusade in South America, Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

"We shall hold conventions in all key cities of these countries," Mrs. Zaruk said. "Our chief mission is to take the Bible to people who are starved of direct Bible teaching.

"During these conventions we shall hold mass rallies aimed at disseminating the Word of God among as many people as possible."

Mrs. Zaruk said there are now 1,500,000 Jehovah's Witnesses and they are active in 199 different countries.

Get Them Talking!

By IRVING C. WHYNOT

TORONTO (CP) — Four years ago the Toronto diocese of the Anglican Church gave one of its priests a new job: Get Anglicans and Jews talking toghether.

The aim, Rev. Roland de Corneille said at the time of his appointment, was to encourage "dialogue — a mutual discussion of problems of the different faiths aimed at developing insight rather than conversion."

Father de Corneille has been talking ever since, almost with missionary zeal although that probably is the description he'd like least since he takes great pains to emphasize the absence of any conversion motives.

Even so, some Toronto Jews aren't convinced; others are reserved; some see hope in the program for a better interfaith understanding.

Father de Corneille isn't dismayed. "After 2,000 years of persecution," he tells his Anglican study groups, "can anyone blame them for being suspicious?"

He has already brought thousands of Christians and Jews together for talks in what he calls "this new relationship."

WRITES BOOK

And while there are some Anglicans as well as Jews who doubt the program's chances of success, it has been something of a pacesetter as far as the church generally is concerned.

So much so that Father de Corneille's just-published book, Christians and Jews: Dialogue, will be used by the National Council of Churches, representing the major non-Roman Catholic faiths in the United States, for interfaith conversations there. The program also has attracted attention in Europe.

Father de Corneille, 39, is a native of Switzerland whose father was at on time Protestant chaplain-general of the French army. He studied in the U.S. and Canada and worked as a statistcian and advertising man before settling in the ministry.

How do the Jews feel about it all?

Four Toronto rabbis, reserved about the project when it was announced four years ago, haven't changed their opinions since then. Here's what they said then, and what they say now:

Rabbi Bernard Rosenweig — 1962: "I have a feeling that this in effect is another more subtle conversion attempt and Jews should be wary." Now:

"There is an honest attempt among the more liberal elements of the church to come to an understanding with Judaism, but we are still wary of the general approach of conversion of the church."

Rabbi Walter Wurzberger — 1962: "I feel that a mass movement involving laymen simply would be another missionary effort even if it had a new name." Now: "Dialogue is of value only on an academic level . . . It's impossible to translate the faith commitments of one religion to another."

WELCOMES APPROACH

Rabbi Gunter Plaut — 1962: "I welcome this new approach . . . Religion has been a divisive force for too long." Now: "I think we have made some progress, though not as much as first was hoped for."

Rabbi Erwin Schild, who himself as taken part in dialogue — 1962: "A true dialogue would help the Christian and Jew understand himself better. But anything else is doomed to futility." Now: "My experience in this field since 1962 tas in this field since 1962 has dialogue, especially on the level of the clergymen, is valuable, providing both parties divest themselves of any hopes of conversion."

And Rabbi Balfour Brickner, director of the commission on interfaith activities of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, writing in a postscript of the book adds this about dialogue:

"It can lead to a great compatibility and to a deeper sharing of the beliefs that different religions hold in common. It can help men survive as sensitive, responsive, carring creatures. This is a sufficiently worthwhile goal."

Specialists to Spearhead Ecumenical Movement

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) —A new constitution aimed at providing ground rules for a genuine ecumenical movement was approved in principle by the Canadian Council of Churches.

A spokesman said the 15-article constitution may have to undergo minor amendments in the next few months but that it will provide a framework for "genuine ecumenical work with all Christian bodies in Canada."

Committees were to be formed before the biennial conference ended today to develop a new program of ecumenism based on the new constitution, first redrafting of the council's charter in 22 years.

Rev. Wilfred Butcher, general secretary, said the new charter will permit fresh study and research into the fast-growing movement.

"One of the great hopes is that it will be far less of ar administrative organization than a stimulus to ecumenical fellowship with member churches all over the world.

"The staff will become ecumenical specialists who will function as a team in the interplay of the Christian churches, one with another, and between the church and the vital issues of the world."

He replaces Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, Anglican Primate of Canada.

UNION LEAVES RAILWAY CONTRACT TALKS

'Mood' Forced Withdrawal

MONTREAL (CP)—One reason the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers withdrew from contract negotiations Friday was the temper and mood of union members, a spokesman said.

J. A. Pelletier said negotiations between the CBRT and the railways had not seemed likely to produce contract terms that leaders felt the membership would accept.

"The temper and mood of the membership is such that we felt we couldn't allow the talks to rdag on any longer in the way they were going," Mr. Pelletier said.

Earlier Friday, W. J. Smith, president of the 24,000-member union, announced his withdrawal from the mediation effor to end a contract dispute that in August brought a nationwide strike by 118,000 employees against seven railways, including the CNR and CPR.

Three other groups of union leaders representing the remaining railway workers said they will continue with the mediation effort until Wednesday.

SMITH
. . . wants arbitration

Mediator Carl Goldenberg said late Friday he was "completely taken by surprise" by the CBRT action but did not expect it to have any effect on negotiations with the other unions.

"I have been on the telephone with all the parties and we have arranged further meetings over the weekend and continuing at least until Tuesday," he said.

Mr. Goldenberg said he did not understand why the CBRT would consider that the mediation effort had been lagging.

"On Nov. 15, after two months of negotiations, all four groups, including the CBRT, asked me to request an extension of my mandate as mediator. How could the CBRT request an extension of talks and then say they were dragging?"

Mr. Goldenberg said a settlement of the dispute with the remaining three union groups before his mandate expires Wednesday is possible.

Following his withdrawal from the talks Friday, Mr. Smith said CBRT officers had been instructed to prepare to submit the dispute to arbitration, as legislation ending the August strike had stipulated must happen if mediation failed.

DON'T FORESEE PACT

"Officers of the brotherhood have concluded that it does not appear that an agreement can be reached with the railway management which will meet the expectations and needs of the membership," he said in a statement.

Mr. Goldenberg was appointed mediator after passage of a government bill Sept. 1 ending the one-week strike and granting the railway unions an interim pay increase of 18 per cent.

The non-op unions, whose members were earning an average of $2.22 an hour before the strike, had been asking an increase of about 30 per cent over two years. The trainmen, averaging more than $3 an hour, wanted a 15-per-cent increase plus a reduction in working hours.

Besides wages, 18 other points including the question of layoffs through technological progress had yet to be settled when Mr. Goldenberg first called the parties together for talks in Montreal.

$16,329 Raised Since Nov. 1 In Seal Campaign

Victoria's Christmas Seal campaign, in aid of the B.C. Tuberculosis Society, today acknowledged a total of $16,329 in subscriptions since Nov. 1.

"This is $1,500 up on our total at this time last year," said Mrs. J. V. Kimmitt, chairman. "It is an excellent response to the 52,500 letters of appeal we sent out."

Last year the campaign raised a total of more than $31,000. This year's total is likely to reach $33,000, Mrs. Kimmitt said.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BENDALL—In memory of Margaret Bendall.

Why does a song
Once gone
When heart is touced anew
Flow forth again,
Unchanged?

Why is a flower
Once past it's hour
When mind is drawn to beauty
Brought back again,
Unchanged?
That which we,

Innocently,
In wonder at its passing
Call Beauty, endures,
Unchanged.

By Don K. Edwards
—Inserted by the Bendalls.

BRYAN—In fond memory of William Edward, who passed away on November 27, 1963.
—Sadly missed by his wife, Beatrice, and sons, Barney and Hugh.

LEGGAT—Treasured memories of Matt, who passed away November 28, 1965.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning; We will remember him.
—Sadly missed by his loving wife Dora.

THOMPSON—In ever loving memory of my dear Dad, Thomas Thompson, who passed away suddenly November 27, 1957.
I think of his sayings and treasure his smile;
I keep in my memory
My love of the past
And always and always Forever will last.
—Your loving daughter, Ena Eade, also grandson, Edwin Eade and great-grandsons, Tom, George and Larry.

Fifteen houses in this area, presently occupied by tenants, now being offered for sale. These are nearly all three-bedroom houses. Several are only a year or two old. None have basements, but most have Oil-o-Matic heating, plumbing for automatic washers and wiring for electric range and dryer, paved driveways, carports.

Taxes are low! (In most cases only $25-$30 a year to the owner.) Best of all, only $1,000 down and the balance like rent. No mortgages to raise or commissions to pay. All financing arranged for you. Only one payment to make. These are certainly not mansions, but good comfortable family homes, particularly suited to a young family starting out. Most prices range from $10,400-$12,400. Some older houses are even less.

We will be happy to arrange to show you these houses by appointment.

If you wish to drive past them first we will mail you a list showing the addresses and prices. (Please do not disturb the tenants.) Simply call 478-4446 or 478-4114 and leave your name and address. No one will call on you unless requested.

Bleak Picture Painted For French Canadians

MONTREAL (CP)—A bleak portrait of French Canada as a "nation" which is losing its citizens, its language and its culture was sketched Friday night for a constituent assembly whose members have been asked to come up with the solutions to these problems.

The assembly is the Estates General of French Canada, a privately-organized gathering of more than 1,000 delegates said to represent a complete cross-section of Canada's French-speaking citizens.

The organization is patterned after the Estates General of France in the period prior to the 1789 revolution. All provinces except Newfoundland are represented.

An outline of the problems faced by French-speaking Canadians in the modern world was presented Friday night in a series of working papers, intended to provide a basis for discussion today when the assembly breaks up into 40 groups to debate individual topics.

A working paper on population said the percentage of French-speaking people in Canada is declining because of their "progressive assimilation" into the English - speaking North American culture.

CITES CENSUS

At the time of the 1961 census the 5,540,346 Canadians of French origin made up 30.4 per cent of the country's population. But the adoption of English by 514,322 French - Canadians had contributed to a decrease in the French-speaking proportion to 27.5 per cent.

Other factors mentioned were the declining birth rate in Quebec and the high proportion of immigrants who join the English-speaking community.

The paper said the "anglicization" of French-speaking people was most pronounced in Newfoundland, where 14,021 individuals had adopted English and only 3,150—less than one per cent of the province's population—continued to use French.

French Canada was in danger of losing its language and culture for many reasons, including economic pressures. "One million of our people learn English to make a living," the paper noted, "simply because 400 employers don't speak French."

The Canada Council was criticized in another paper for an alleged departure from its pledge to regard English and French "on a basis of equality."

37 ARE ENGLISH

Of 48 bursaries awarded to artists and writers by the council last April, the paper said, "37 went to Anglo-Saxons."

Many of the papers outlined economic problems and dealt exclusively with the situation in Quebec province.

Quebec was said to contain nearly 40 per cent of Canada's unemployed. Its workers are described as underpaid in terms of the national average, its industries lacked development capital and is resources were controlled largely by "foreign interests."

French - speaking Quebecers owned not more than two per cent of the forest industry operating in their province, and not more than five per cent of the mining industry.

Quebec farmers were in a "tragic" position. Despite a 50-per-cent increase in agricultural production over the last 15 years, the average net income of a Quebec farmer had declined to $1,950—the equivalent of $37.50 a week.

In discussion groups, delegates are expected to reach agreement on the constitutional and political solutions to such problems.

The estates, headed by Prof. Jacques-Yvan Morin of the University of Montreal, is sponsored by St. Jean Baptiste societies and other groups, including French-language chambers of commerce.

Members of St. Jean Baptiste societies are French-Canadian Roman Catholics, pledged to work toward ideals of French-Canadian patriotism.

Speeder Just Missed Crashing Police Car

A Langford youth who drove Colwood streets at 80 miles per hour and missed colliding with an RCMP cruiser "by less than a foot" was fined $200.

Robert Brown, 18, of 1102 Donna Crescent pleaded guilty today in central court of dangerous driving.

Prosecutor J. W. Anderson also tod court the youth was driving his car near Station Road and Goldstream when he went through a stop sign at 45 miles per hour and lost control, spun and backed into a ditch.

His licence was suspended.

Griffin Loss Regretted

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow won unanimous support in council Friday when he expressed regret that Ald. Michael J. Griffin would not be seeking a seat on council Dec. 10.

"I was very saddened to read in the press that Ald. Griffin would not run for election this year," he said. "I just want to say here in council, that I have always had the greatest respect for his sincerity and integrity.

"His loss will be a great loss to the taxpayers."

Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott said he concurred with everything said by Ald. Edgelow.

"The city is losing one of its most dedicated aldermen," he said.

Asleep in Car, Driver Jailed For 2 Months

Robert Elliott, 36, of 104 Dallas was also barred from driving for the next two years.

He pleaded not guilty but was convicted of having the care and control of an auto while impaired after officers found him unconscious in his car on Douglas Street eight days ago.

Elliott's driving record shows several impaired convictions, court was told.

Other drivers fined Friday for impaired driving:

NO LICENCE

Margaret Shayler, 2981 Glen Lake Rd., charged after she was seen manoeuvring her car erratically in the Colwood Inn parking lot Nov. 18. She was fined $350 and another $25 for not having a driver's licence.

Edward Rath, 3880 Loretta Drive, fined $350 after his car rammed the rear of another auto on Douglas Thursday night.

Decision Due On Monday In Rape Charge

Magistrate Ostler will rule Monday on whether a city man charged with raping a 20-year-old Colwood area girl will be committed for trial by a higher court.

He deferred his decision after a day-long preliminary hearing Thursday.

Vernon Umphrey, 620 Huxley, was charged with rape after an incident in a car parked in an Indian cemetery off Admirals Road Sept. 15.

The accused is charged with having intercourse with the girl "with her consent when such consent was extorted by fear of bodily harm," thus committing rape.

At the conclusion of testimony Thursday the magistrate questioned prosecutor John Macintyre closely on what evidence he relied on to indicate the girl had cause to fear harm.

Umphrey was defended by counsel Dermod Owen - Flood, who argued there was no such evidence.

Women's Prison Riot Quelled

JESSUP, Md. (UPI) — Violence erupted today at the Maryland Correctional Institute for Women but state police quickly quelled it. However, one male guard was stabbed before police arrived and three female guards were held hostage.

The riot erupted in a cottage at the women's prison, which looks like a college campus. In one male, the other female, had "beaten and stomped" an inmates charged that two guards, to detention. The prison guards mate while she was being taken said they only "subdued" the unruly girl.

Chamber Plans Senior Senate

One-Year Sentence For Robbing Till

A man spotted with his hand in a service station till was jailed for a year Friday.

Robert Millette, 28, of 3853 East Sooke burst into tears while protesting his innocence as he conducted his own defence in a trial in central court.

He was found guilty of taking $24 from the cash register at Admiral's Home Service Nov 11.

One of the witnesses, George Sneddon, 292 Hamilton, told the court he saw the accused through a window as he held a phone in one hand and reached into the till with the other.

Millette has a criminal record which includes convictions for false pretences, possession of stolen property, fraud and theft, court was told.

Gas Line Cause Of Flash Fire; Two Injured

A Sooke youth is in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after his car crashed into a stump alongside the Sooke River Road Friday night.

Robert Coghill, 19, suffered head cuts and chest injuries in the accident. He was alone in his car which police said was a wreck.

The accident occurred about two miles northeast of Sooke around 10 p.m. Police were called by a motorist who was following the Coghill car. The injured driver was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Two Vancouver people were treated for minor burns following a car fire on the Patricia Bay Highway near Mow's Market about the same time.

The fire was apparently caused by a gasoline line which broke in the rear-engined American car, filling the back seat first with fumes and then a flash of flame.

BURNS MINOR

Rev. Donald Holiday, pastor of Oakridge Baptist Church in Vancouver, one of three passengers in the rear seat, escaped injury.

The other two, Patricia Perry and James Wright, both of Vancouver, received superficial burns to head, legs and arms and were released after treatment at St. Joseph's Hopsital.

Driver of the car, Mike Kellock, 3065 Harriet Road, and a front seat passenger, Ruth Thiessen, 2298 Grove Crescent, were unhurt.

The three Vancouver passengers were en route home after addressing a youth rally earlier in the evening at Central Baptist Church on Pandora.

The fire was extinguished by Central Saanich fire department before it reached the gasoline tank at the front of the car but damage was described as heavy.

2-CAR CRASH

A Wichita, Kansas, man was treated for bruises and shock at Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday after a two-car crash on the Patricia Bay Highway at Royal Oak Avenue.

Saanich police said John O'Dea's car was northbound on the highway when it was in collision with an auto driven by Ronald Drayton of Brentwood which was headed west on Royal Oak.

Damage was estimated at $1,100.

A chain-reaction rear-end accident involving four cars at Hillside and Quadra Friday night sent one man to hospital for treatment of a head cut.

Police said an auto driven by Ralph Martin, 1645 Burton, was eastbound on Hillside when it collided with the rear of a stopped car driven by Jack Hilliard, 4070 Lockhaven Drive.

The Hilliard car was driven forward, causing collisions involving the two cars in front of it.

William West, 45, of 3995 Lockhaven, a passenger in the Hilliard car, suffered a head laceration.

Centennial Projects To Cost $180 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Centennial Commission projects —including more than 1,500 parks, recreation facilities and community centres — are expected to cost $180,000,000, the commission has announced.

An eight-page report released by the commission said that more than $176,000,000 already has been approved for 2,243 centennial projects, and the amount is expected to exceed $180,000,000 by the end of 1966.

It said that $89,800,000 has been approved for the construction of 11 Confederation memorial projects across the country, the most expensive of which are Toronto's $21,700,000 Centre of Science and Technology, Halifax's $10,500,000 Sir Charles Tupper medical building, and Regina's $8,800,000 Performing Arts Centre.

The report said there are more than 500 parks being built and about 500 recreation structures. There are at least 415 community centres, 136 libraries, 64 museums and art galleries, and 31 restorations of historic buildings.

MAXIMUM GRANT

The federal government has granted $1 per capita of the population of each province with the maximum grant not exceeding one-third of the cost of the project. The report said the provinces, in every case, have matched or bettered the federal contribution.

Federal government participation in the Centennial Grants Program to Nov. 1 totalled $16,300,000, the report said. Provincial participation amounted to $17,900,000 while contributions from local or sponsoring groups was $46,700,000. Other federal and provincial grants amounted to $5,200,000.

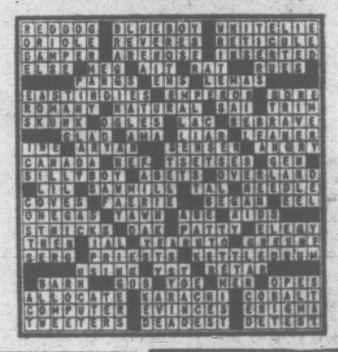
Answers to Previous Puzzle



Color-by-Number Fun Poser

KEEPING PACE WITH A SNAIL

Slug the Snail's pace has been mathematically measured at 23 inches an hour. If he travels one hour, then sleeps two hours, and so on, how many days will it take him to travel around the perimeter of a basement room whose dimensions are 30 feet by 39 feet? No fair peeking below.

Answer: Nine days, assuming he doesn't make any stops except for sleep.

IDENTIFY PUZZLING VISITOR?

As you probably know, enigma is the term given to a riddle in verse form in which the word or object that is the answer is concealed in deliberately mystifying allusions. Can you guess the answer to this one?

I am a caller at every home where you may meet,
For I daily perambulate along each street.
Take one letter from me and still you will see—
I'm the same as before, as I'll always be.
Take two letters from me, or three or four,
I'll still be the same as I was before.
In fact, I can tell you that all my letters you may take,
Yet of me nothing else can you make.

Answer: The caller is the postman.

A surprise picture is hidden amidst the jumbled lines above. To find it simply fill in with crayons or colored pencils segments according to the key: 1—Yellow. 2—Red. 3—Blue. 4—Orange. 5—Green. 6—Lavender. 7—Black. 8—Brown. 9—Pink. (Use red lightly for pink.)

Some idea of what the drawing is about might be conceived by careful scrutiny, but you could be fooled.

Apply colors neatly, of course, keeping them within the indicated bounds. If more than one young reader wants to try, draw straws for colors and apply them in turn.

ONE FOR THE BOOKS

Answer quickly: If I add 100 to a certain number, the result is more than if I multiply it by a hundred. What number? (The answer is a whole number.)

Answer: The number is one.

TICKLISH TIDBITS FOR TONGUES

Repeat the following statements aloud as rapidly as possible:

In sifting a sack of unsifted thistles, Theodore Tittle, the thistle sifter, thrust three tiny thorns through the tip of his thumb.

ONLY ONE CHANCE IN THE TEST

It's surprising how many persons will fail this simple test: How many F's in the following sentence?

Famished from insufficient supplies of food Frieda Diller fainted and would have fallen out the window on the fifth floor if Phyllis Fuller had not caught her.

OPPOSITE NUMBERS?

Each of the following has a male counterpart. How many can you name? Example: 1. Spinster—Bachelor.

1. Spinster —
2. Chairlady —
3. Testatrix —
4. Mare —
5. Goose —
6. Aviatrix —
7. Jennet —
8. Vixen —
9. Doe —
10. Abbess —
11. Maharani —
12. Authoress —
13. Czarina —
14. Sow —
15. Baroness —

Answers: 1. bachelor; 2. chairman; 3. testator; 4. stallion; 5. gander; 6. aviator; 7. jackass; 8. fox; 9. buck; etc.; 10. abbot; 11. maharajah; 12. author; 13. czar; 14. boar; 15. baron.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

On Nov. 15th Gibraltar issued a 2sh value to commemorate the centenary of the Re-Enthronement of "Our Lady of Europe" which took place on the "Rock" on that date.

This statuette of the Virgin, carved in wood and about two feet high, dates back to the early 16th century, and is venerated by the inhabitants of the colony as their patron saint.

It was originally donated as a thank offering at the time the Moors were finally driven out of Spain, and was enshrined in Gibraltar as this fortress was then looked on as the key to Europe.

Subsequently the shrine was ransacked and looted by Barbarossa. In 1704 the British took possession of Gibraltar, and the statue, by this time somewhat mutilated, was smuggled into Spain for safekeeping.

In 1866 it was finally re-enthroned in a newly constructed shrine, with elaborate ceremonies; and it is this event that is now commemorated by this new stamp.

Many other new issues are to appear during the next few weeks. On Dec. 2nd Barbados will release its Independence issue of four, one of which depicts a cricketer at the bat — the first time this sport has been shown on a stamp, oddly enough.

Cayman Islands will have two different commemorative sets in December — a pair to mark the International Telephone Link on Dec. 5; and a 1sh and 1sh9d to advertise the opening of the Grand Cayman jet service on the 17th. (It is not so very long ago that the only connection with the outside world was by a monthly schooner).

British Solomon Islands, which only quite recently brought out a full set of definitives, is adding three values to the series by means of surcharges — 13c on 12c; 7c on 14c; and 4c on 35c.

Whether the basic stamps that are being overprinted will be dropped from use is uncertain at present. If they are, they will have had a very short life, and could be scarce.

An entire new series for Cyprus will be released on the 21st, with values from the 3 mils to the £1. The designs are quite interesting, as they feature famous antiquities of the island.

IT'S MONEY IN THE BANK, BY GOLLY

Bill Jones and his friend John Brown went to the bank to deposit some money. Jones had $100 and Brown had $48.

Arriving at the teller's cage, Jones deposited twice as much as Brown and then discovered that he still had three times as much left for spending money as did his friend.

How much money did each man deposit in the bank? Perhaps you can solve this in your head.

Sewers Wait For Yes-Vote?

The amalgamation of View Royal and Esquimalt would go a long way towards solving the sewage disposal problems facing the designers of Christie Point school.

In a letter to the Esquimalt council, the Greater Victoria School Board says the physical development of the Christie Point area would provide "obvious advantages to a school district such as streets, sidewalks, watermains, storm and sanitary sewers and would reduce the board's problems in providing buildings and facilities."

The designers of the school are being hampered by a lack of sewerage disposal facilities in the area.

A temporary disposal plant from Gordon Head Junior Secondary is available to the board for use at Christie Point, but it would not eliminate the final disposal problem.

But while the board is giving tentative blessings to the proposed union of View Royal and Esquimalt it refuses to be drawn into a partisan battle.

BOARD NEUTRAL?

"There is no doubt that amalgamation would expedite the solution of the sewerage problem," said school trustee Leslie Karagianis. "But the board has no desire to take sides in the matter. We are determined to remain neutral on the amamgamation issue.

"All we say is that it is only logical that, if sewers were installed one of our major problems would be solved."

Trustee Peter Bunn also refused to take sides on the amalgamation vote.

"Our letter to Esquimalt must not be construed in any way as a club or a threat," he said. "We are merely pointing out that we have a serious technical problem when it comes to sewerage disposal, a problem which would be eased if proper mains were installed.

"But whether View Royal and Esquimalt amalgamate or not we shall find an answer to that problem."

UP TO VOTERS

The amalgamation vote will be held along with other municipal elections on Dec. 10.

It will be the second time within a year that View Royal residents have voted on amalgamation. Earlier this year the proposal of union was rejected by a five vote majority.

Reeve Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, said he was delighted to receive the letter from the school and felt that it demonstrated the responsible role the board plays in Greater Victoria.

He also stated that he was confident that View Royal would become a part of Esquimalt and that within the the near future the sewerage disposal problem at Christie Point would be solved.

City Signs Garbage Contract

Victoria council will sign another five-year contract for the collection of garbage, even though it supports the general idea that garbage is a regional problem.

City manager Dennis Young pointed out to council Friday that the city's garbage disposal contract expired at the end of November.

"There is a provision for a five-year extension," Mr. Young said. "The existing price is an extremely favorable one. If this option is not picked up, the city's costs will more than likely rise sharply as a result of new tenders being called."

Mr. Young stresses that though a new regional agreement for the collection and disposal of garbage could be reached within the near future the city could not afford to pass up the option which provided the city with garbage collection facilities at 90 cents per person.

COUNCIL AGREED

"It is not conceivable that we could reach a new agreement at these prices," said Mr Young. "If we negotiate a new contract I am quite certain that the prices must increase."

Council agreed that while it was in favor of finding a regional solution to the garbage collection and disposal problem the new agreement must be signed.

Equal Blame In Collision Off B.C. Coast

OTTAWA (CP) — Both ships involved in a collision three years ago off the British Columbia coast were equally to blame, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled Friday.

In a unanimous judgment written by Mr. Justice R. A. Ritchie, the court dismissed an appeal by the owners of the tanker Pacific Wind against an Exchequer Court of Canada decision assessing equal liability in the accident.

The Pacific Wind was taking oil from Shellburn to Kitimat when it collided with the fishing vessel Unimak, bound for Vancouver with a cargo of fish. The accident occurred Nov. 24, 1963, in the middle of Tolmie Channel.

Mr. Justice Ritchie said the negligence on the part of the Unimak was clear. But the Pacific Wind was also negligent in not turning soon enough.

Italians in City To Raise Money For Flood Victims

The meeting will be at 2:30 p.m. in the Italian Hall, 804 Kings Road.

Money will be sent to the Italian Red Cross in Rome.

Those unable to attend the meeting can send donations to Italian Food Imports, 1736 Douglas.

AS EXCITING AS THE GREY CUP . . . AND LONGER LASTING!

Between noon and 4 p.m., November 26, very few people across Canada were paying any attention to plumbing or heating problems.

And we can hardly blame them.

The national battle for the ancient Grey Cup was taking place at Empire Stadium in Vancouver and balky furnaces or antiquated bathrooms were forgotten in the excitement of the game.

But that's all over now for at least another year and the mind of the householder must turn back to the more mundane things of life—like getting the furnace fixed (or maybe a new one if you picked the right team and bet wisely).

It isn't as difficult a task as you might think. And it needn't be mundane.

Could be quite as exciting as the Grey Cup, come to think of it, and with far longer lasting benefits.

STORE HOLDUP ATTEMPT 'COMEDY OF ERRORS'

STOCKHOLM, Sask. (CP) — A hesitant gunman, wearing a cheesecloth mask, failed in an attempt to rob a general store here Friday when the owner didn't co-operate because he thought it was a practical joke.

"It was a comedy of errors," W. S. Persson said in an interview describing how he pushed the masked man's rifle aside not realizing it was an attempted holdup.

"I was just going to run and phone the police when the man took off the mask and left through the front of the store," he said.

Police were searching for the man.

CLOSE VOTE SEEN

By JOHN MIKA

The byelection campaign in sprawling Cariboo constiteuency is tougher than most to assess.

The riding is three times the size of Vancouver Island with far fewer voters than there are in Oak Bay.

It's impossible to survey all sectors in a few days in a riding where the voter density averages barely more than three to a square mile.

But the atmosphere of the byelection campaign is strongly reminiscent of the 1957 federal election which surprised everyone by rejecting an aging but apparently unbeatable Liberal government.

As then, there is a surface current running in the government's favor but there are numerous signs of a strong undercurrent that could dash it against the rocks Monday when the ballots are cast.

Almost everyone in the riding assumes that Atroney-General Robert Bonner will win — but not many are saying they will vote for him.

'ARROGANCE'

Instead, there is a general condemnation of government "arrogance"; for the byelection call itself; for running an outsider rejected in his own area; for a carrot-and-stick platform; for previously ignoring the riding's complaints even while it consistently returned Socreds since 1952.

There is a general lack of conviction in Mr. Bonner's repeated recitation of the imminent and vast economic developments just over the horizon.

Listeners are vaguely uneasy with the current dip in the riding's recent prosperity (only two weeks ago an entire shift of 50 workmen were laid off at a Williams Lake plywood plant and more are feared), and calls for financial restraint.

RESPECT FOR DENT

At the same time, there is a general respect for the New Democratic Party nominee, Hartley Dent, who—in a familiar Diefenbaker stance—bases his appeal entirely on a proven concern for ordinary people.

Even some Socred organizers, who are fiercely proud of the unique character of Cariboo residents, have exhibited an admiration for Mr. Dent that was only partly hidden.

Two of them told me how, as an Anglican minister, he drove around his sparsely - settled parishes on a motorbike, dressed against the cold in leather jacket, gauntlets and goggled helmet while spark-plugging the work that built five new churches.

Mr. Speare also was credited with this type of Cariboo individuality as an efficient but folksy hospital administrator—but it can't be inherited by Mr. Bonner in a three-week visit.

A very interesting aspect of the campaign is the inverse approach each side is taking, given the character of the two main contenders.

City-slicker Mr. Bonner dresses in boots, dude slacks, sports shirt and windbreaker for whirlwind visits to the farthest outposts of the community in order to lean on a corral rail and chat with cowboys or shake hands with miners.

Country character Mr. Dent spends most of his time walking house-to-house in urban subdivisions dressed in a business suit or attending meetings.

OVERCOME RESISTANCE

The Socred campaign is based almost entirely on two things.

Overcoming resistance to an "outsider" by the well-advertised forays into the hinterland and an organized concentration on Quesnel—with 30 per cent of the riding's 12,547 registered

330 Arrests As Looting Breaks Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said today that more than 330 persons were arrested Friday night and early today in connection with Grey Cup eve trouble.

They said that 180 persons alone were arrested during a four-hour melee in the downtown core of the city when an estimated 5,000 persons ran amuck.

Mayor William Rathie said the vast majority of the rioters were Vancouver people and not out-of-town fans here for today's Grey Cup football game.

LIT FIRES

During the melee, gangs of people of varying ages battled police, beat up bystanders, ripped down Grey Cup decorations, lit fires, smashed windows, and looted stores and cars.

Police cleared the bulk of the rioters early today by using 14 snarling police dogs. A similar Grey Cup riot in 1963 was controlled and stopped sooner by the earlier use of the dogs.

Mayor Rathie said the dogs were not called in until the last moment because of the vast crowd of innocent onlookers who police did not want to take the risk of injuring.

The dogs were controlled on long leashes and allowed to lunge forward at unruly elements in the crowd.

130 ON DRUNK LIST

In magistrate's court today, 130 persons were on the drunk list and 200 others faced charges of unlawful assembly and other counts resulting from Grey Cup eve.

Many of the drunks were released with a suspended sentence when the court was told they were arrested prior to the rioting.

Police said the jail was so full that a number of persons arrested were released on their own recognizance. But they were warned that if they did not appear for court today warrants for their arrest would be issued.

During the height of the riot, the mob pelted paddy wagons with beer bottles amid a rain of garbage and other missiles thrown from hotel windows and fire escapes.

Police blamed stabbings, beatings and car accidents in other parts of the city on the night's mood.

The crowd was drawn to the heart of the city by the first ever night-time Grey Cup parade, re-scheduled from the

Australian Voters Back War Policy

SYDNEY (Reuters) — The Liberal- Country coalition headed by Harold Holt received endorsement of its policy of sending troops to Viet Nam today when it was re-elected in Australian elections.

Incomplete returns under Australia's preferential voting systems indicated Prime Minister Holt had won an increased majority on the House of Representatives.

INCREASES MAJORITY

Unofficial results with only two seats left to be decided showed the coalition parties with 79 seats in the 124-seat Parliament. The coalition has been in power for 17 years.

The Opposition Labor party, which opposed the Australian Viet Nam commitment, had 42. There was one Independent.

In the last Parliament the coalition had 71 seats — 52 Liberals and 19 Country Party members. There were 52 Labor members and one Independent.

About 95 per cent of the 6,000,000 eligible voters went to the polls. Voting is compulsory in Australia.

Holyoake Returned To Power

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—Prime Minister Keith Holyoake's National party swept back into power in New Zealand today with a net loss of one seat after a hard-fought campaign in which the country's involvement in the Viet Nam war became the major issue.

The Social Credit party, which patterns itself after its Canadian counterpart, elected one member, breaking the 23-year-old domination of Parliament by the National and Labor parties.

Unofficial figures at the conclusion of counting showed the National pary had elected 44 members to the 80-seat house, the Labor party 35, and the Social Credit 1.

In the previous Parliament the National Party held 45 seats and Labor 35.

GIRL QUINTUPLETS BORN IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Quintuplet girls, all "beautiful, perfect babies," were born prematurely today to a pretty 22-year-old former kindergarten teacher and her law school husband.

A spoksman at Magee Women's Hospital said the babies' chances of survival were "about 10 per cent."

The quints, born 2½ months prematurely to Mrs. Patti Aranson, a small, attractive brunette, ranged in weight from one pound seven ounces to one pound 12 ounces. They were born within a 10-minute period between 2:41 a.m., EST, and 2:51 a.m.

The father, Michael, also 22, said his wife had taken "no drugs, no hormones" during her pregnancy.

Jordan Arms Border Towns

JERUSALEM (UPI) — King Hussein, under pressure from rioters in his own country and extremists in other Arab nations, today ordered arms given to "frontline Jordanian villages on the border with Israel.

The 31-year-old king's actions came as fresh demonstrations against him were reported in the Jordanian sector of Jerusalem. According to reports, the anti-Hussein demonstrations broke out during the funerals for two youths reported killed in rioting Friday in the old city of Jerusalem.

The anti-Hussein riots which have swept the country since an Israeli "retaliatory" attack on three Jordanian villages Nov. 13 are backed mainly by Syrian and the Cairo-based Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

OVERTHROW URGED

Broadcasts in Damascus and Cairo and some Arab leaders denounced Hussein for allegedly taking a soft position toward Israel. They charged he withheld weapons from villagers on the border, failed to retaliate with force against the Israeli raiders and called on the Jordanian armed forces and people to overthrow Hussein.

Hussein has been forced to use his crack Arab legionnaires to quell riots in Jerusalem, Ramallah, Nablus, Hebron and other cities on the west bank of the Jordan River captured during the 1948 Arab-Israeli war.

Radio Amman reported that Hussein put into effect today a previously announced measure — the drafting of all Jordanian men between the ages of 18 and 40 to bolster the armed forces in event of further troubles with Israel.

The broadcast said the army "has taken immediate measures to put the conscription into effect." It said "military training camps will be opened in all areas and that necessary arms for these camps will be provided."

BONN CRISIS ENDS

Major Parties Join Forces

BONN (CP) — Leaders of West Germany's two major political parties—the Socialists and the Christian Democrats—decided today to form a new government to replace that of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

Kurt Georg Kiesinger, the Christian Democratic candidate for chancellor, told reporters he hopes a new government can be formed next week. The deal is subject to the approval of the representatives of the two parties in the Bundestag.

The agreement was announced by Will Rasner, Christian Democratic floor leader in the Bundestag (lower House).

Kiesinger and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, the Social Democrat leader, were at his side.

Brandt said he would inform Erich Mende, who as head of the Free Democratic party would become the leader of the only opposition to the new government.

Together the Socialists and the Christian Democrats would command 447 of the 496 votes in the Bundestag. The Free Democrats have the other 49.

Nothing was said about who would be the ministers in the new government. Formal negotiations will begin Monday. Meetings of the party delegations in the Bundestag have been called for Monday to give their approval to the deal made today by the leaders.

Kiesinger's leadership has been challenged by individual Socialists, in part because he was a member of the Nazi party and active propagandist for Adolf Hitler's reich.

It was not certain whether Brandt would take a cabinet job, or prefer to stay in Berlin.

Agreement Near: Smith

SALISBURY (CP) — Rebel Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia met British Commonwealth Secretary Herbert Bowden today and said afterwards he had fresh proposals to put aimed at solving the year-old crisis started when his all-white regime seized independence.

Smith said he was satisfied that if progress could be made in the next few days Britain would not have to take the issue to the United Nations. He said, to him, agreement was near on things that mattered.

THEY'LL WALK MILES FOR JUST CUP OF MILK

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

In Korea, milk is worth its weight in gold.

In the strife-torn country where last year the average income was less than $100, milk and other nourishing foods are at a premium.

Koreans will walk miles, do almost anything to obtain a cup or two of milk for themselves or their children.

Yet for Canadians to provide any number of Koreans with milk costs very little money, and less effort.

The Times Share With Asian Children Fund, and similar funds, give more fortunate Canadians the chance to aid Koreans with milk, barley, warm clothing and educational assistance.

Contributions to the fund may be sent, care of the Victoria Daily Times, or made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas Street.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, NOV. 26, 1966—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

We have come to the time of the year when night pulls down early and dark, and a traffic hazard always with us becomes acute.

This is the lightless bicycle.

It is a menace even to the most careful driver, an outlaw of the roads. Fail to spot it, and there's an excellent chance of becoming an involuntary child - slayer.

It may reveal its presence by the dimmest of glimmers from a muddy rear reflector, or if your night vision is sound, you may manage to spot the moving shadow. If such a machine has never come within a whisker of involving you in a crackup, you are luckier than most.

There is no excuse for the lightless bicycle—absolutely none. Yet, despite safety drives, police appeals and occasional juvenile court appearances, it is still with us.

The fault for this situation lies where it always has. This is with parents so ignorant, so uncaring or so cheap as to permit their children to expose themselves to risks that a slight expenditure would minimize.

However, since these are unlikely to change their ways, we should take the matter out of their hands by urging corrective action on our lawmakers.

I think we should have a law forbidding the sale of any bicycle, new or used, that is not equipped with an approved light.

This suggestion does not stem from a wish to add yet more laws to a load already cumbersome. But live and healthy children are infinitely preferable to hurt or dead ones.

The anti-fluoridationists are stirring busily about once more, and this week brought yet another salute from one of these tireless dissenters.

Like those that preceded it this year, last year, and so on back, it is from my staunch old friend, A. Nony Mouse.

There was a time when I held strong views about unsigned epistles, but the act of producing a column five days a week (they let me loose for the other two) must have softened me.

Except when he hits me with an unsigned blast that all but sizzles my desk varnish, I now regard A. Nony with indulgent fondness, and frequently with appreciation and respect.

Naturally, I wish he or she would oblige with a name, since a strict newspaper rule bars even the most interesting of unsigned messages from print.

To this I might add that a no less stern rule applies to the passing on of names given in confidence.

My most faithful friend among the A. Nony Mouses or mice has written to me three times a month, and sometimes oftener, since this column uttered its first cheep well over four years ago. If he ceased, I would worry about him.

Unlike most such correspondents, this pen-pal on rare occasions does sign a name.

But, Mr. X, rest easy—I wouldn't dream of revealing it!

Senate of Priests Share Bishop's Rule

By DESMOND BILL

Roman Catholic priests on Vancouver Island now have a bigger role than any other priests in North America in the government of their diocese.

Biship Remi J. De Roo, already known as one of the most progressive Canadian Catholic bishops, has committed himself to govern in future "by consensus" of his priests rather than by the traditional method of "directives and obedience."

He has decided to share his governing authority with a senate of priests representing the clergy of the Victoria diocese.

The diocese covers all of Vancouver Island and has a population of about 30,000 Catholics.

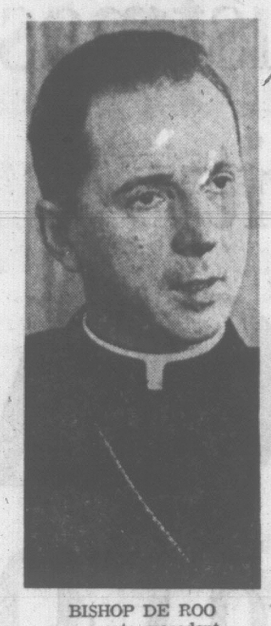
Bishop De Roo's commitment does not mean the diocese will be ruled by majority vote of the priests or that he has abdicated his role as bishop.

In effect, he has committed himself to act only if a majority of the senate goes along with him. He will not over-rule senate decisions. But also he is not necessarily bound to accept them.

In a move that is thought to be unprecedented in the Catholic Church in North America, Bishop De Roo has promised his priests, "I will not force a decision through the senate on my authority as bishop, unless it is a matter on which I am held in obedience.

"For example, the Second Vatican Council has decided on a renewal of the Church. If a majority of the senate were against renewal I would have to say, 'Sorry Fathers, we have to move. It is the will of the church.'

"But other than something like that, I am fully committed to acting in collaboration with the senate."



BISHOP DE ROO
. . . sets precedent

That council decided all dioceses should have a senate of priests but the Pope said the senate should have "only a consultative vote." Instead, Bishop De Roo has given the senate an actual role in the decision-making process.

He has decided to share his authority with what he calls the "presbyterate" — the whole body of priests in the diocese.

The senate replaces the old system of diocesan cousultors. These consultors were elected by priests and the bishop had to seek their advice on matters of diocesan government, but could ignore such advice if he wished.

What will happen if the senate makes a majority decision on an important matter and the bishop thinks the decision is wrong?

Answered Bishop De Roo: "Such a situation would be a challenge. If such a split of opinion were to occur it would show the situation had not sufficiently matured. We would all have to study the issue more deeply to discover the true welfare of the diocese. But the situation would be resolved in that manner, even if it took a long time, rather than by an arbitrary intervention of my authority."

Catholic bishops traditionally have been one-man rulers of their dioceses and have rarely hesitated in the past to use their authority. While bishops in recent years have generally become more responsive to the opinions of their clergy and laity, the significance of Bishop De Roo's move is that he has actually institutionalized this change.

The bishop will preside over the senate, which was elected by the diocesan priests and those in religious orders' although he will not vote.

One of the first issues before the senate is the formation of a pastoral council composed of two priests, two sisters and "a lot of laity."

The pastoral council, said Bishop De Roo, will be more than "the voice of the laity." It will work directly with the bishop but, in addition to a consultative role, it will be a means of initating action.

Employers Fire More Dockers For 'Slowdown'

More longshoremen were dismissed from work today.

At Cowichan Bay, 54 men were fired before noon.

But at Ogden Point, 34 men continued loading lumber aboard the Karpfanger.

Similar dismissals also occurred Friday at Cowichan Bay, and at Ogden Point 34 men were fired.

Firings at B.C. ports began Wednesday after employers charged a deliberate slowdown by dockers in support of striking foremen.

Meanwhile, Canadian Press reported that federal Labor Minister Jack Nicholson was to open talks today in Vancouver to try and settle the dispute.

HERE FOR GAME

The dock dispute, which has tied up about half the shipping on the B.C. coast, began last week when 190 foremen set up picket lines.

They sought recognition and bargaining rights but the companies said the foremen are part of management.

The foremen are members of Local 514 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Picket lines were not crossed by about 3,000 longshoremen until a court injunction late Monday ordered the pickets removed.

Work resumed Tuesday but employers said slowdown was in effect. The union blamed lack of proper and competent supervision by substitute foremen.

The Canada Labor Relations Board has twice rejected applications by the foremen for certification as a bargaining unit.

Meanwhile the B.C. Federation of Labour announced plans for a conference of union leaders to map support for the ILWU.

There was no indication what kind of support the federation plans to offer. The meeting will be held in the next few days.

Reward Offered To Nab Vandals

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors will pay for information leading to arrest and conviction where senseless damage takes place.

The move follows a wave of hooliganism involving off-street parking garages and other public facilities at Centennial and Bastion Squares.

Vandals also have caused heavy damage in Victoria cemeteries and parks.

The Chamber will post signs in suitable locations advising of the rewards. Victoria police have given their approval.

Former president of the Chamber, lawyer E. E. Pearlman, said strict conditions of payment would be required to ensure against exploitation.

President Courtney Haddock said the amount of the individual rewards would be related to the value of the damage in each case.

Report Louis Croaks Regarded as a Hoax

Louis, the brandy-swigging parrot, who is drinking his way through a fortune, was accused today of being an imposter.

The board of Royal Jubilee Hospital, which stands to benefit financially should anything happen to Louis, is looking into the charge.

However, the whole thing is believed to be a hoax.

The suggestion that the real Louis is dead came in a telegram to board chairman Alfred C. Wurtele from former Victorian producer-promoter Fred Hill.

Presently in Toronto appearing in his own production of "The Drunkard," Mr. Hill claimed he stole Louis in June 1964 and that the parrot died in September that year.

In a telephone interview today, Mr. Hill said he buried the parrot "in the backyard of a mansion."

However, friends of his in Victoria confirmed today the whole thing was a hoax and that Mr. Hill never was in possession of a parrot.

Said Mr. Wurtele: "The telegram is in the hands of the board directors."

Under the terms of a will left by Victoria Wilson, who died 17 years ago, Louis must die before the other two beneficiaries of her will, Royal Jubilee and the Red Cross, receive a penny.

It is estimated only $20,000 of her $60,000 estate now remains. Louis, who is 101, could live until he's 200.

AIRPORT ACCESS HIT

Improved access to Victoria airport and upgrading of Patricia Bay and Trans-Canada Highways, was asked by Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Friday.

Submissions, to be forwarded to the provincial government, are the result of study by the chamber's harbor and transportation group.

Group chairman George Farmer reported to directors on the need for a modern, more direct and plainly-marked access to the airport from Patricia Bay Highway and East Saanich Road.

Many persons find it hard to reach the airport at present because it is necessary to turn off the Pat Bay Highway on Canora Road, then Artesian Road, before reaching the airport road. This is especially difficult at night, Mr. Farmer said.

Warning Given Street Vandals

The city's senior magistrate today served a stern warning on would-be Christmas pranksters.

"I hope this won't be another one of those years when bunches of idiots go roaming the streets stealing and breaking Christmas tree lights," said Magistrate William Ostler to a young sailor charged with causing a disturbance early this morning.

"I give notice now that if there is more of that nonsense it will be firmly dealt with."

The magistrate fined John Pinberthy, 18, of CFB Esquimalt $50 after he pleaded guilty.

Court was told the youth was "making a good deal of noise and comment" and was seen unscrewing a light bulb from an outdoor Christmas tree on Douglas.

Ask The Times

Q. Why is the Cariboo spelled incorrectly? (The correct spelling of the animal is Caribou.) M.R.S.

A. Simply common usage, says a local man who has made a study of the province's early days. Ever since the gold strike there in 1862 it has been called "Cariboo." The miners of that day apparently originally misspelt the name.

SITE PROBLEM

Delay In School Worries Saanich

Saanich is "very concerned" about delays in the proposed vocational school for southern Vancouver Island, acting reeve Leslie Passmore said today.

He was commenting on statements by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant about difficulties in relocating a B.C. Hydro substation.

Coun. Passmore said "every effort" is being made by council to find an alternative substation site acceptable to both hydro and local ratepayers.

The provincial public works department has applied twice to rezone 21 acres on Quadra north of Beckwith and both applications have been turned down.

RESIDENTIAL AREA

The last application was earlier this month. Council agreed this particular location was a prime residential area.

Mr. Chant said Hydro has agreed to relinquish 12 acres near the proposed vocational school site at Burnside and Tillicum if the public works department will provide it with a site at least that large in another part of Saanich.

"Surprisingly, it's difficult to find an area in Saanich of a size suitable for a sub-station," he said.

Architects' plans cannot be drawn until it is known how much land will be available.

"You can only do a preliminary program until the site is a fact," said the minister.

Know-B.C. Tour Won't Stretch To Cover Expo

A suggestion that the Chamber of Commerce annual "know B.C. better" tour be diverted to Montreal next April for a trip around Expo 67 met opposition at a meeting Friday.

"Why take it out of the province?" asked Empress Hotel manager Leslie Parkinson.

Because of centennial year, someone suggested.

And directors turned the subject over to executive members for deliberation.

Official Mace Laid Away By Army Unit

The official mace of the 40th Technical Squadron, Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, will be laid up in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday morning.

The unit has now been disbanded.

The mace will be carried into the church by Major F. C. E. Roome, commander of the unit, and handed to Canon R. E. H. Howell, a former chaplin. It will then be presented to Dean Brian Whitlow for safe-keeping in the cathedral.

On the head of the mace is inscribed the present RCEME badge and others connected with the history of the unit. Red, gold and blue colors, interwoven in the lower part of the shaft, represent the Royal Canadian Engineers, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps and the Royal Canadian Ordance Corps.

Piggy Bank Theft

A piggy bank containing $40-$50 in waitress tips was taken from an apartment at 2733 Blackwood Friday.

City police said the bank, blue in color, was reported missing from a basement suite at 4 p.m.

CENTENARIAN Sidney Matthew cuts birthday cake while his niece, Mrs. Douglas E. Smith, 3081 Oakdowne Road, looks on.

'Matthews Never Die' Is Claim Of Pioneer on 100th Birthday

By HUMPHREY DAVY

A twinkle came to his eyes when asked if he was surprised at reaching 100.

"You know," he said, cocking his head, "there's a saying at St. Mawes in Cornwall that the Matthews never die."

English-born Sidney Matthew even survived the Point Ellice Bridge disaster in 1896 which took 55 lives.

And he has two sisters in their early 90s, Mrs. H. D. Knott and Mrs. Alfred Huxtable of Victoria.

SAW CANADA GROW

In the dining room at the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge 100 guests assembled Friday to celebrate his birthday.

But they were not only honoring a centenarian but also one of the few remaining Canadians of the old stock — the men who lived in an age when self-reliance was the philosophy of the day.

A former builder, Mr. Matthew is a man who has seen Canada grow.

He came to this country with his parents six years after Confederation. He was seven then and lived in Ontario where his father operated a sawmill.

He was 19 when the 1885 Northwest Rebellion broke out, 34 at the outbreak of the Boer War, 48 at the beginning of the First World War.

He came to British Columbia in 1890 when his family moved to Vancouver. His father became a contractor.

"Vancouver was just a little town then," he said. "There wasn't much to it."

Later, he followed his father to Victoria.

NEVER ILL

While he has never been seriously ill in his life, he has suffered many near-fatal accidents. The worst one was when the Point Ellice bridge collapsed.

Both he and his father were flung clear of the streetcar when it crashed through the bridge and plunged into the water. His father and some rescuers got him ashore.

In the First World War, he went to Britain to do his bit. He worked in a factory making parts for planes.

PLAYS PIANO

A religious man and a music-lover, he belonged to the first Salvation Army band organized in Vancouver and in Victoria. He still plays the piano.

At his party he didn't see why people should make such a fuss over a man who has reached 100. But he looked pleased when he received a message of congratulations from the Queen.

There were others too — from Prime Minister Pearson, Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, Premier Bennett and the city council.

Fouts, Symons Traded to Argos?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says the British Columbia Lions have traded defensive end Dick Fouts and halfback Bill Symons to Toronto Argonauts for the Canadian rights to halfback Dick Young.

Fouts is a five-year veteran with the Lions. Symons joined the club in mid-season this year after being cut by the Green Bay Packers.

Lions would have to get Young from the Vikings, and The Sun says "a popular theory" is that the B.C. club will attempt to trade halfback-flanker Willie Fleming for him.

OPENING TOUCHDOWN in today's Grey Cup football game at Empire Stadium in Vancouver is scored by Ottawa's Whit Tucker in opening minutes after gathering in long pass from quarterback Russ Jackson. Tucker also scored the eastern champion's second touchdown on another long heave. However, Saskatchewan remained right in the ball game with two touchdowns leaving clubs tied 14-14 at halftime.

Police Use Dogs To Halt Trouble

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said today that more than 330 persons were arrested Friday night and early today in connection with Grey Cup eve trouble.

They said that 180 persons alone were arrested in the downtown core of the city when an estimated 5,000 persons ran amuck.

Mayor William Rathie said the vast majority of the rioters were Vancouver people and not out-of-town fans here for today's Grey Cup football game.

LIT FIRES

During the melee, gangs of people of varying ages battled police, beat up bystanders, ripped down Grey Cup decorations, lit fires, smashed windows, and looted stores and cars.

Police cleared the bulk of the rioters early today by using 14 snarling police dogs. A similar Grey Cup riot in 1963 was controlled and stopped sooner by the earlier use of the dogs.

Mayor Rathie said the dogs were not called in until the last moment because of the vast crowd of innocent onlookers who police did not want to take the risk of injuring.

The dogs were controlled on long leashes and allowed to lunge forward at unruly elements in the crowd.

130 ON DRUNK LIST

In magistrate's court today, 130 persons were on the drunk list and 200 others faced charges of unlawful assembly and other counts resulting from Grey Cup eve.

Many of the drunks were released with a suspended sentence when the court was told they were arrested prior to the rioting.

Police said the jail was so full that a number of persons arrested were released on their own recognizance. But they were warned that if they did not appear for court today warrants for their arrest would be issued.

During the height of the riot, the mob pelted paddy wagons with beer bottles amid a rain of garbage and other missiles thrown from hotel windows and fire escapes.

Police blamed stabbings, beatings and car accidents in other parts of the city on the night's mood.

The crowd was drawn to the heart of the city by the first ever night-time Grey Cup parade, re-scheduled from the usual morning of the game in an effort to prevent rioting similar to that in 1963.

But the move failed and police complained that the night parade "drew just about every rowdy in the city into an area of a few blocks."

'PUNK ELEMENTS'

The crowd was singing and happy during the parade, watched by an estimated 150,000 persons, but what police called "punk elements" turned ugly after the last marching and mobile parade units passed.

They surged into the street at the scene of the 1963 riot and the battle began.

Police said later that they are preparing for more trouble tonight after the game.

"We will have the same number of men — about 200 — on duty and will use the same plans as we did Friday night," said Deputy Police Chief John Fisk.

CLOSE VOTE SEEN

By JOHN MIKA

The byelection campaign in sprawling Cariboo constiteuency is tougher than most to assess.

The riding is three times the size of Vancouver Island with far fewer voters than there are in Oak Bay.

It's impossible to survey all sectors in a few days in a riding where the voter density averages barely more than three to a square mile.

But the atmosphere of the byelection campaign is strongly reminiscent of the 1957 federal election which surprised everyone by rejecting an aging but apparently unbeatable Liberal government.

As then, there is a surface current running in the government's favor but there are numerous signs of a strong undercurrent that could dash it against the rocks Monday when the ballots are cast.

Almost everyone in the riding assumes that Attorney-General Robert Bonner will win — but not many are saying they will vote for him.

'ARROGANCE'

Instead, there is a general condemnation of government "arrogance"; for the byelection call itself; for running an outsider rejected in his own area; for a carrot-and-stick platform; for previously ignoring the riding's complaints even while it consistently returned Socreds since 1952.

There is a general lack of conviction in Mr. Bonner's repeated recitation of the imminent and vast economic developments just over the horizon.

Listeners are vaguely uneasy with the current dip in the riding's recent prosperity (only two weeks ago an entire shift of 50 workmen were laid off at a Williams Lake plywood plant and more are feared), and calls for financial restraint.

RESPECT FOR DENT

At the same time, there is a general respect for the New Democratic Party nominee, Hartley Dent, who—in a familiar Diefenbaker stance—bases his appeal entirely on a proven concern for ordinary people.

Even some Socred organizers, who are fiercely proud of the unique character of Cariboo residents, have exhibited an admiration for Mr. Dent that was only partly hidden.

Two of them told me how, as an Anglican minister, he drove around his sparsely-settled parishes on a motorbike, dressed against the cold in leather jacket, gauntlets and goggled helmet while spark-plugging the work that built five new churches.

Mr. Speare also was credited with this type of Cariboo individuality as an efficient but folksy hospital administrator—but it can't be inherited by Mr. Bonner in a three-week visit.

A very interesting aspect of the campaign is the inverse

AS TENSION MOUNTS

Jordan Arms Border Towns

JERUSALEM (UPI) — King Hussein, under pressure from rioters in his own country and extremists in other Arab nations, today ordered arms given to "frontline Jordanian villages on the border with Israel.

The 31-year-old king's actions came as fresh demonstrations against him were reported in the Jordanian sector of Jerusalem. According to reports, the anti-Hussein demonstrations broke out during the funerals for two youths reported killed in rioting Friday in the old city of Jerusalem.

The anti-Hussein riots which have swept the country since an Israeli "retaliatory" attack on three Jordanian villages Nov. 13 are backed mainly by Syrian and the Cairo-based Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

OVERTHROW URGED

Broadcasts in Damascus and Cairo and some Arab leaders denounced Hussein for allegedly taking a soft position toward Israel. They charged he withheld weapons from villagers on the border, failed to retaliate with force against the Israeli raiders and called on the Jordanian armed forces and people to overthrow Hussein.

Hussein has been forced to use his crack Arab legionnaires to quell riots in Jerusalem, Ramallah, Nablus, Hebron and other cities on the west bank of the Jordan River captured during the 1948 Arab-Israeli war.

Radio Amman reported that Hussein put into effect today a previously announced measure — the drafting of all Jordanian men between the ages of 18 and 40 to bolster the armed forces in event of further troubles with Israel.

Australian Voters Back War Policy

SYDNEY (Reuters) — The Liberal-Country coalition headed by Harold Holt received endorsement of its policy of sending troops to Viet Nam today when it was re-elected in Australian elections.

Incomplete returns under Australia's preferential voting systems indicated Prime Minister Holt had won an increased majority on the House of Representatives

INCREASES MAJORITY

Unofficial results with only two seats left to be decided showed the coalition parties with 79 seats in the 124-seat Parliament. The coalition has been in power for 17 years.

The Opposition Labor party, which opposed the Australian Viet Nam commitment, had 42. There was one Independent.

In the last Parliament the coalition had 71 seats — 52 Liberals and 19 Country Party members. There were 52 Labor members and one Independent.

About 95 per cent of the 6,000,000 eligible voters went to the polls. Voting is compulsory in Australia.

GIRL QUINTUPLETS BORN IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Quintuplet girls, all "beautiful, perfect babies," were born prematurely today to a pretty 22-year-old former kindergarten teacher and her law school husband.

A spoksman at Magee Women's Hospital said the babies' chances of survival were "about 10 per cent."

The quints, born 2½ months prematurely to Mrs. Patti Aranson, a small, attractive brunette, ranged in weight from one pound seven ounces to one pound 12 ounces. They were born within a 10-minute period between 2:41 a.m., EST, and 2:51 a.m.

The father, Michael, also 22, said his wife had taken "no drugs, no hormones" during her pregnancy.

Saskatoon Local Votes To Accept Airline Offer

SASKATOON (CP)—All 23 members of Local 714 of the International Association of Machinists today voted unanimously in favor of accepting a tentative agreement with Air Canada.

Union representative Jim Wasylciw said the men would return to work as soon as a back-to-work order is received and other locals ratify the agreement. He said Air Canada facilities here could be reactivated by Sunday.

BONN CRISIS ENDS

Major Parties Join Forces

BONN (CP) — Leaders of West Germany's two major political parties—the Socialists and the Christian Democrats—decided today to form a new government to replace that of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

Kurt Georg Kiesinger, the Christian Democratic candidate for chancellor, told reporters he hopes a new government can be formed next week. The deal is subject to the approval of the representatives of the two parties in the Bundestag.

The agreement was announced by Will Rasner, Christian Democratic floor leader in the Bundestag (lower House). Kiesinger and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, the Social Democrat leader, were at his side.

Brandt said he would inform Erich Mende, who as head of the Free Democratic party would become the leader of the only opposition to the new government.

Together the Socialists and the Christian Democrats would command 447 of the 496 votes in the Bundestag. The Free Democrats have the other 49.

Nothing was said about who would be the ministers in the new government. Formal negotiations will begin Monday. Meetings of the party delegations in the Bundestag have been called for Monday to give their approval to the deal made today by the leaders.

Kiesinger's leadership has been challenged by individual Socialists, in part because he was a member of the Nazi party and active propagandist for Adolf Hitler's reich.

It was not certain whether Brandt would take a cabinet job, or prefer to stay in Berlin.

Agreement Near: Smith

SALISBURY (CP) — Rebel Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia met British Commonwealth Secretary Herbert Bowden today and said afterwards he had fresh proposals to put aimed at solving the year-old crisis started when his all-white regime seized independence.

Smith said he was satisfied that if progress could be made in the next few days Britain would not have to take the issue to the United Nations. He said, to him, agreement was near on things that mattered.

THEY'LL WALK MILES FOR JUST CUP OF MILK

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

In Korea, milk is worth its weight in gold.

In the strife-torn country where last year the average income was less than $100, milk and other nourishing foods are at a premium.

Koreans will walk miles, do almost anything to obtain a cup or two of milk for themselves or their children.

Yet for Canadians to provide any number of Koreans with milk costs very little money, and less effort.

The Times Share With Asian Children Fund, and similar funds, give more fortunate Canadians the chance to aid Koreans with milk, barley, warm clothing and educational assistance.

Contributions to the fund may be sent, care of the Victoria Daily Times, or made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas Street.

A list of contributors, published daily in the paper, may be found on Page 2.

Holyoake Returned To Power

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—Prime Minister Keith Holyoake's National party swept back into power in New Zealand today with a net loss of one seat after a hard-fought campaign in which the country's involvement in the Viet Nam war became the major issue.

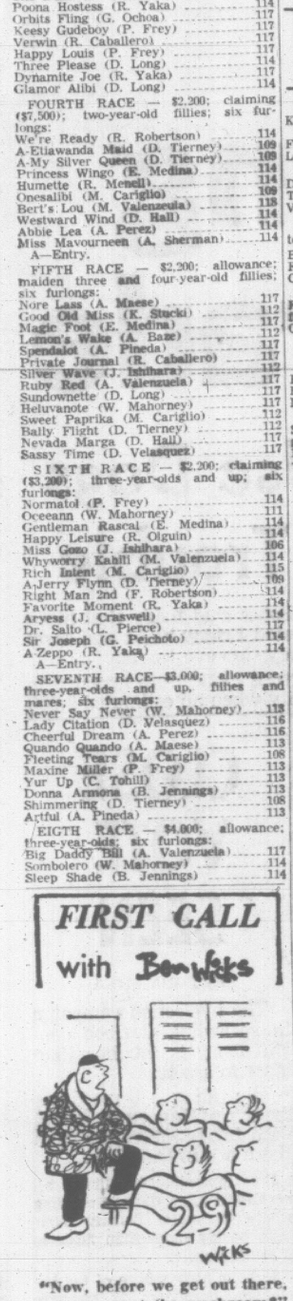
The Social Credit party, which patterns itself after its Canadian counterpart, elected one member, breaking the 23-year-old domination of Parliament by the National and Labor parties.

Unofficial figures at the conclusion of counting showed the National pary had elected 44 members to the 80-seat house, the Labor party 35, and the Social Credit 1.

In the previous Parliament the National Party held 45 seats and Labor 35.

Pollution Alert Lifted

NEW YORK (UPI)—An air pollution alert was lifted in the populous New York-New Jersey-Connecticut area today as rain and wind flushed away a week's accumulation of dirt and smoke particles fouling the air over the eastern seaboard.



"Now, before we get out there, anyone want the washroom?"

Probation Term For Student In Drug Case

A fourth-year University of Victoria student who last week pleaded guilty to possessing marijuana was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for two years Friday.

Kathleen Wendy Tobin, 20, of 2150 Cadboro Bay Road, had spent the past 10 days in jail awaiting sentence.

She was arrested Oct. 29 after an RCMP officer and Oak Bay policeman visited her apartment early in the morning and found a matchbox of the narcotic as well as nine cigarettes containing the drug in a paper bag in a closet.

A DISSERVICE

"Needless to say there are a number of laws which do not find favor with certain people," he said.

"And unfortunately many persons who do not approve of certain legislation, and who are influential persons who should know better, are quite vocal in their disapproval in a manner which is calculated to give comfort, support and encouragement to those who are inclined to disobey such laws and who admire and are impressed by the law's detractors.

In Vancouver, said the magistrate, where the narcotics problem is increasingly serious, magistrates have been expressing themselves forcibly on the contempt "so-called liberal thinkers" have voiced for narcotics legislation.

Of Miss Tobin, a senior student majoring in psychology and sociology, he said, "she now realizes one does not change the law by breaking it."

DETERRENT

The deterrent factor in sentencing was an important aspect, said the magistrate, but there was no evidence yet of a threatening situation locally involving drugs.

Each case must be decided on its own circumstances and he was convinced further imprisonment would do more harm than good in this instance.

Miss Tobin was placed on a $500 good behaviour bond for two years, a sentence that was not to be taken as a precedent, said the magistrate.

Before sentencing, Dr. Charles Gregory, a psychiatrist called by defence counsel Louis Lindholm, said he thought Miss Tobins' experiment with marijuana stemmed from an intellectual curiosity and possibly as a sought-after release from tension.

Because marijuana is the least addictive and least toxic, she probably thought it would be the least harmful to try, he said.

It is a mistake to treat heroin and marijuana in the same vein, said Mr. Lindholm.

"Isn't there a great danger that a person who experiments with marijuana might want to experiment with something else later on?" asked the magistrate.

Gifts Sought For Patients

Which is why the Canadian Mental Health Association has placed 29 bright red boxes in department and on shopping plazas here for Christmas presents for those who will spend Christmas in hospital.

Men's gifts and gifts for the teen-age group are often in short supply.

Game Farm Retained In Natural State

The 17-acre city-owned game farm at Beaver Lake will remain free of commercial development.

Victoria city council agreed Friday the property should be retained, at least for the present, in its wild state.

Discussions will continue with Saanich on the future of the property.

Ald. Robert Baird suggested the property be dedicated as a park to prevent any possibility of commerical development.

But Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow pointed out such a move would be committing all future city councils to a decision which could be regretted.

Ald. Edgelow stressed the property is not a park "and never has been."

"It's just a piece of property the city owns in Saanich," he added. "Before we do anything with it we should give serious consideration to its commercial value."

Ald. Hugh Stephen said he appreciated Ald. Bairds fears that commercial development might take place, but said nothing could be built on the property without the city's permission.

"The city is well protected," he said. "It is our land and we control its use."

Country character Mr. Dent spends most of his time walking house-to-house in urban subdivisions dressed in a business suit or attending meetings.

OVERCOME RESISTANCE

The Socred campaign is based almost entirely on two things.

Overcoming resistance to an "outsider" by the well-advertised forays into the hinterland and an organized concentration on Quesnel—with 30 per cent of the riding's 12,547 registered voters—which has traditionally favored the government.

The NDP campaign has introduced an entirely new technique to the riding with a vengeance.

About half of the 2,300 new listings on the voters list since the Sept. 12 election were put there as a result of an organized registration drive by the NDP and most of these can be expected to favor it.

The actual increment to the list was only 909 because some 1,400 redundant names have been scratched off.

The NDP has thrown in almost as many MLAs as the Socred cabinet ministers that have entered the campaign. Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin), for instance, spent more than a week touring remote reservations to speak for Mr. Dent among his fellow Indians.

10 PER CENT OF VOTE

The Indians have almost 10 per cent of the total vote and the intensive NDP drive among them may improve their traditionally low turnout enough to overcome the government oriented support they have shown in the past.

But the most dramatic difference in election tactics was initiated by a team of organizers—including the 21-year-old son of national NDP deputy leader David Lewis from the Vancouver-Burrard constituency who engineered the defeat of Socred whip Bert Price and former mayor Tom Alsbury Sept. 12.

With military precision, about 100 enthusiastic NDP workers under their direction have conducted the first comprehensive door-to-door canvass Cariboo has ever seen.

PERSONAL APPEALS

They have covered the urban polls—which account for more than half of the registered voters—three times, leaving campaign literature and a personal appeal for support at each home.

Just as the 1957 Conservative organization did, the NDP campaigners are working all-out right down to the wire. Their final canvass was scheduled to be carried out today and tonight will see the windup rally in Williams Lake with Mrs. Margaret (Ma) Murray speaking for Mr. Dent.

The Socreds, on the other hand, began slowing down personal efforts after last weekend when they felt Mr. Bonner's carpet-bagger tag was wearing out, and they peaked Wednesday night in Quesnel when Mr. Bennett gave one of his better performances.

SPENT $10,000

Both sides have used advertising extensively, but the Socred campaign is much heavier, and estimates suggest they have spent about $10,000 to the NDP $4,000.

There is a negative value to the organizational equations that favors the NDP.

Both have brought in from outside some of their best organizers, but only in the Socred camp are there visible signs of real friction between the "backroom boys" and the local constituency officers who sit out front as the ostensible decision-makers.

This influx of outsiders, coming on top of the resentment of Bonner that initially infected even the core of the Socred local group, has created great and possibly divisive strains within their effort.

The same situation appears to have had a different pact on the NDP local group, which seems eager to have help now it sniffs the tantalizing odours of a victory feast after years of humble pie.

Returning officer E. G. Woodland said this has been the most discussed election in the riding since he took on the post in 1952—and he says it is due to the NDP house blitz more than any other factor.

EXCITEMENT

"There's a great deal of excitement and I think the turnout will go to 70 per cent if there is no blizzard," he said. It was slightly over 60 per cent Sept. 12.

There are three other candidates but none are considered serious contenders.

Strongest of these is Liberal Lee Skipp, a well-known lawyer, who is expected to push the party's Sept. 12 popular vote from 10 per cent to 15 per cent, perhaps as high as 1,500 ballots.

His increase is expected to come mainly from the 55 per cent share obtained by Mr. Speare 2½ months ago.

The Free Trade Party candidate, Ladner lawyer-farmer Gerard Geoeujon, is expected to chalk up an "oddball vote" of several score at the most.

Independent Richard Mullins, a Williams Lake teacher who arrived from Australia two years ago and has personally attacked Mr. Speare for "betrayal" by resigning the seat, is not expected to do much better than the more colorful Mr. Ggoeujon.

The NDP obtained about 35 per cent of the vote—a major increase—when Mr. Dent ran for the first time in the general election this fall.

The concensus is that simple self-interest will push a smaller majority, however reluctant, behind the government candidate because he is a cabinet minister and because Mr. Bennett might take vengeance if his team's "home run hitter" is struck out.

But this is a different ball game than the one between the Speare and Dent teams a few weeks ago.

There are a lot of new ballot-holders and more of them are expected to turn out this time because it's a crucial game.

The NDP have used a new and potentially powerful strategy while there's a certain amount of snappishness in the Socred dugout where some feel the owners should never have ordered the contest with a substitute star.

The NDP undoubtedly still is the underdog, but if it can increase its popular vote in Cariboo by more than 5 per cent—boosting it over the 40 mark—the other factors may give it a close win.

Seven Contest Saanich Seats

At least seven persons will seek the four vacancies on Saanich council in the Dec. 10 municipal elections.

Latest nomination to be filed is from Coun. Edward Lum, chairman of the municipal parks and recreation committee.

Other candidates are: Couns. Harold Todd, Leslie Passmore, Alan Newberry and Lionel Speller, Douglas Brown and Raymond Hayes.

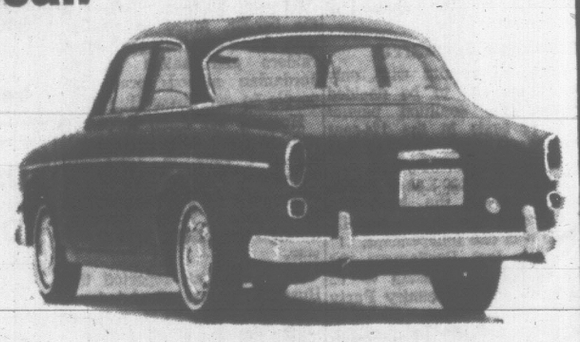
So you've actually got your wife convinced that you save money by trading cars every two or three years.

You rascal.



Why don't you cut that out.

There are cars that will hold up longer than two or three years, as you well know.

A Volvo will hold up quite a bit longer than two or three years.

In Sweden, where there are no speed limits on the highways and over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads, Volvos are driven an average of eleven years.

Keep a Volvo just six years and you'll make out. That'll give you three years to pay for it, three years to put money in the bank after you've paid for it.

A Volvo will give you something else you may never have experienced before: performance and economy. Volvos run away from every other compact in their class...yet deliver over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

And if you're concerned about having a six year old car sitting in the driveway, don't be. Your neighbors won't notice its age any more than you will. Volvos aren't given a new look every year. So you're not stuck with an older look every year.

Besides, your neighbors won't be wondering why you have a six year old car in the driveway.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, NOV. 26, 1966—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

We have come to the time of the year when night pulls down early and dark, and a traffic hazard always with us becomes acute.

This is the lightless bicycle.

It is a menace even to the most careful driver, an outlaw of the roads. Fail to spot it, and there's an excellent chance of becoming an involuntary child - slayer.

It may reveal its presence by the dimmest of glimmers from a muddy rear reflector, or if your night vision is sound, you may manage to spot the moving shadow. If such a machine has never come within a whisker of involving you in a crackup, you are luckier than most.

There is no excuse for the lightless bicycle—absolutely none. Yet, despite safety drives, police appeals and occasional juvenile court appearances, it is still with us.

The fault for this situation lies where it always has. This is with parents so ignorant, so uncaring or so cheap as to permit their children to expose themselves to risks that a slight expenditure would minimize.

However, since these are unlikely to change their ways, we should take the matter out of their hands by urging corrective action on our lawmakers.

I think we should have a law forbidding the sale of any bicycle, new or used, that is not equipped with an approved light.

This suggestion does not stem from a wish to add yet more laws to a load already cumbersome. But live and healthy children are infinitely preferable to hurt or dead ones.

The anti-fluoridationists are stirring busily about once more, and this week brought yet another salute from one of these tireless dissenters.

Like those that preceded it this year, last year, and so on back, it is from my staunch old friend, A. Nony Mouse.

There was a time when I held strong views about unsigned epistles, but the act of producing a column five days a week (they let me loose for the other two) must have softened me.

Except when he hits me with an unsigned blast that all but sizzles my desk varnish, I now regard A. Nony with indulgent fondness, and frequently with appreciation and respect.

Naturally, I wish he or she would oblige with a name, since a strict newspaper rule bars even the most interesting of unsigned messages from print.

To this I might add that a no less stern rule applies to the passing on of names given in confidence.

My most faithful friend among the A. Nony Mouses or mice has written to me three times a month, and sometimes oftener, since this column uttered its first cheep well over four years ago. If he ceased, I would worry about him.

Unlike most such correspondents, this pen-pal on rare occasions does sign a name.

But, Mr. X, rest easy—I wouldn't dream of revealing it!

In the mail today an important-looking envelope containing a royalty cheque based on the United Kingdom sales of a book over a six-month period.

With agent's 10 per cent commission deducted, the figure is 59 cents.

Since the average novel has a selling life of about six months, and this one was published in the early sixties, I'm not kicking.

However, I am going to frame that cheque at the risk of throwing my agent's accounts out of kilter, and show it to every beginning writer who tells me he intends to go free-lancing.

Not in an attempt to dissuade him, mind, but as a reminder that the rewards of endeavor in that particular field can be slim almost to vanishing point.

Or, sometimes, even slimmer!

Senate of Priests Shares Bishop's Rule

By DESMOND BILL

Roman Catholic priests on Vancouver Island now have a bigger role than any other priests in North America in the government of their diocese.

Biship Remi J. De Roo, already known as one of the most progressive Canadian Catholic bishops, has committed himself to govern in future "by consensus" of his priests rather than by the traditional method of "directives and obedience."

He has decided to share his governing authority with a senate of priests representing the clergy of the Victoria diocese.

The diocese covers all of Vancouver Island and has a population of about 30,000 Catholics.

Bishop De Roo's commitment does not mean the diocese will be ruled by majority vote of the priests or that he has abdicated his role as bishop.

In effect, he has committed himself to act only if a majority of the senate goes along with him. He will not over-rule senate decisions. But also he is not necessarily bound to accept them.

In a move that is thought to be unprecedented in the Catholic Church in North America, Bishop De Roo has promised his priests, "I will not force a decision through the senate on my authority as bishop, unless it is a matter on which I am held in obedience.

"For example, the Second Vatican Council has decided on a renewal of the Church. If a majority of the senate were against renewal I would have to say, 'Sorry Fathers, we have to move. It is the will of the church.'

"But other than something like that, I am fully committed to acting in collaboration with the senate."

BISHOP DE ROO
. . . sets precedent

That council decided all dioceses should have a senate of priests but the Pope said the senate should have "only a consultative vote." Instead, Bishop De Roo has given the senate an actual role in the decision-making process.

He has decided to share his authority with what he calls the "presbyterate" — the whole body of priests in the diocese.

The senate replaces the old system of diocesan cousultors. These consultors were elected by priests and the bishop had to seek their advice on matters of diocesan government, but could ignore such advice if he wished.

What will happen if the senate makes a majority decision on an important matter and the bishop thinks the decision is wrong?

Answered Bishop De Roo: "Such a situation would be a challenge. If such a split of opinion were to occur it would show the situation had not sufficiently matured. We would all have to study the issue more deeply to discover the true welfare of the diocese. But the situation would be resolved in that manner, even if it took a long time, rather than by an arbitrary intervention of my authority."

Catholic bishops traditionally have been one-man rulers of their dioceses and have rarely hesitated in the past to use their authority. While bishops in recent years have generally become more responsive to the opinions of their clergy and laity, the significance of Bishop De Roo's move is that he has actually institutionalized this change.

The bishop will preside over the senate, which was elected by the diocesan priests and those in religious orders' although he will not vote.

One of the first issues before the senate is the formation of a pastoral council composed of two priests, two sisters and "a lot of laity."

The pastoral council, said Bishop De Roo, will be more than "the voice of the laity." It will work directly with the bishop but, in addition to a consultative role, it will be a means of initating action.

Employers Fire More Dockers For 'Slowdown'

More longshoremen were dismissed from work today. At Cowichan Bay, 54 men were fired before noon.

But at Ogden Point, 34 men continued loading lumber aboard the Karpfanger.

Similar dismissals also occurred Friday at Cowichan Bay, and at Ogden Point 34 men were fired.

Firings at B.C. ports began Wednesday after employers charged a deliberate slowdown by dockers in support of striking foremen.

Meanwhile, Canadian Press reported that federal Labor Minister Jack Nicholson was to open talks today in Vancouver to try and settle the dispute.

HERE FOR GAME

The dock dispute, which has tied up about half the shipping on the B.C. coast, began last week when 190 foremen set up picket lines.

They sought recognition and bargaining rights but the companies said the foremen are part of management.

The foremen are members of Local 514 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Picket lines were not crossed by about 3,000 longshoremen until a court injunction late Monday ordered the pickets removed.

Work resumed Tuesday but employers said slowdown was in effect. The union blamed lack of proper and competent supervision by substitute foremen.

The Canada Labor Relations Board has twice rejected applications by the foremen for certification as a bargaining unit.

Meanwhile the B.C. Federation of Labour announced plans for a conference of union leaders to map support for the ILWU.

There was no indication what kind of support the federation plans to offer. The meeting will be held in the next few days.

Reward Offered To Nab Vandals

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors will pay for information leading to arrest and conviction where senseless damage takes place.

The move follows a wave of hooliganism involving off-street parking garages and other public facilities at Centennial and Bastion Squares.

Vandals also have caused heavy damage in Victoria cemeteries and parks.

The Chamber will post signs in suitable locations advising of the rewards. Victoria police have given their approval.

Former president of the Chamber, lawyer E. E. Pearlman, said strict conditions of payment would be required to ensure against exploitation.

President Courtney Haddock said the amount of the individual rewards would be related to the value of the damage in each case.

AIRPORT ACCESS HIT

Improved access to Victoria airport and upgrading of Patricia Bay and Trans-Canada Highways, was asked by Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Friday.

Submissions, to be forwarded to the provincial government, are the result of study by the chamber's harbor and transportation group.

Group chairman George Farmer reported to directors on the need for a modern, more direct and plainly-marked access to the airport from Patricia Bay Highway and East Saanich Road.

Many persons find it hard to reach the airport at present because it is necessary to turn off the Pat Bay Highway on Canora Road, then Artesian Road, before reaching the airport road. This is especially difficult at night, Mr. Farmer said.

Report Louis Croaks Regarded as a Hoax

Louis, the brandy-swigging parrot, who is drinking his way through a fortune, was accused today of being an imposter.

The board of Royal Jubilee Hospital, which stands to benefit financially should anything happen to Louis, is looking into the charge.

However, the whole thing is believed to be a hoax.

The suggestion that the real Louis is dead came in a telegram to board chairman Alfred C. Wurtele from former Victorian producer-promoter Fred Hill.

Presently in Toronto appearing in his own production of "The Drunkard," Mr. Hill claimed he stole Louis in June 1964 and that the parrot died in September that year.

In a telephone interview today, Mr. Hill said he buried the parrot "in the backyard of a mansion."

However, friends of his in Victoria confirmed today the whole thing was a hoax and that Mr. Hill never was in possession of a parrot.

Said Mr. Wurtele: "The telegram is in the hands of the board directors."

Under the terms of a will left by Victoria Wilson, who died 17 years ago, Louis must die before the other two beneficiaries of her will, Royal Jubilee and the Red Cross, receive a penny.

It is estimated only $3,000 of her $60,000 estate now remains. Louis, who is 101, could live until he's 200.

Warning Given Street Vandals

The city's senior magistrate today served a stern warning on would-be Christmas pranksters.

"I hope this won't be another one of those years when bunchs of idiots go roaming the streets stealing and breaking Cristmas tree lights," said Magistrate William Ostler to a young sailor charged with causing disturbance early this morning.

"I give notice now that if there is more of that nonsense it will be firmly dealt with."

The magistrate fined John Pinbethy, 18, of CFB Esquimalt $50 after he pleaded guilty.

Court was told the youth was "making a good deal of noise and comment" and was seen unscrewing a light bulb from an outdoor Christmas tree on Douglas.

Ask The Times

Q. Why is the Cariboo spelled incorrectly? (The correct spelling of the animal is Caribou.) M.R.S.

A. Simply common usage, says a local man who has made a study of the province's early days. Ever since the gold strike there in 1862 it has been called "Cariboo." The miners of that day apparently originally misspelt the name.

SITE PROBLEM

Delay In School Worries Saanich

Saanich is "very concerned" about delays in the proposed vocational school for southern Vancouver Island, acting reeve Leslie Passmore said today.

He was commenting on statements by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant about difficulties in relocating a B.C. Hydro substation.

Coun. Passmore said "every effort" is being made by council to find an alternative substation site acceptable to both hydro and local ratepayers.

The provincial public works department has applied twice to rezone 21 acres on Quadra north of Beckwith and both applications have been turned down.

RESIDENTIAL AREA

The last application was earlier this month. Council agreed this particular location was a prime residential area.

Mr. Chant said Hydro has agreed to relinquish 12 acres near the proposed vocational school site at Burnside and Tillicum if the public works department will provide it with a site at least that large in another part of Saanich.

"Surprisingly, it's difficult to find an area in Saanich of a size suitable for a sub-station," he said.

"It has delayed completion of a definite site for the vocational school."

Architects' plans cannot be drawn until it is known how much land will be available.

"You can only do a preliminary program until the site is a fact," said the minister.

Know-B.C. Tour Won't Stretch To Cover Expo

A suggestion that the Chamber of Commerce annual "know B.C. better" tour be diverted to Montreal next April for a trip around Expo 67 met opposition at a meeting Friday.

"Why take it out of the province?" asked Empress Hotel manager Leslie Parkinson.

Because of centennial year, someone suggested.

And directors turned the subject over to executive members for deliberation.

Official Mace Laid Away By Army Unit

The official mace of the 40th Technical Squadron, Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, will be laid up in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday morning.

The unit has now been disbanded.

The mace will be carried into the church by Major F. C. E. Roome, commander of the unit, and handed to Canon R. E. H. Howell, a former chaplin. It will then be presented to Dean Brian Whitlow for safe-keeping in the cathedral.

On the head of the mace is inscribed the present RCEME badge and others connected with the history of the unit. Red, gold and blue colors, interwoven in the lower part of the shaft, represent the Royal Canadian Engineers, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps and the Royal Canadian Ordance Corps.

Piggy Bank Theft

A piggy bank containing $40-$50 in waitress tips was taken from an apartment at 2733 Blackwood Friday.

City police said the bank, blue in color, was reported missing from a basement suite at 4 p.m.

CENTENARIAN Sidney Matthew cuts birthday cake while his niece, Mrs. Douglas E. Smith, 3081 Oakdowne Road, looks on.

'Matthews Never Die' Claim Of Pioneer on 100th Birthday

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A twinkle came to his eyes when asked if he was surprised at reaching 100.

"You know," he said, cocking his head, "there's a saying at St. Mawes in Cornwall that the Matthews never die."

English-born Sidney Matthew even survived the Point Ellice Bridge disaster in 1896 which took 55 lives.

And he has two sisters in their early 90s, Mrs. H. D. Knott and Mrs. Alfred Huxtable of Victoria.

SAW CANADA GROW

In the dining room at the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge 100 guests assembled Friday to celebrate his birthday.

But they were not only honoring a centenarian but also one of the few remaining Canadians of the old stock — the men who lived in an age when self-reliance was the philosophy of the day.

A former builder, Mr Mathew is a man who has seen Canada grow.

He came to this country with his parents six years after Confederation. He was seven then and lived in Ontario where his father operated a sawmill.

He was 19 when the 1885 Northwest Rebellion broke out, 34 at the outbreak of the Boer War, 48 at the beginning of the First World War.

He came to British Columbia in 1890 when his family moved to Vancouver. His father became a contractor.

"Vancouver was just a little town then," he said. "There wasn't much to it."

Later, he followed his father to Victoria.

NEVER ILL

While he has never been seriously ill in his life, he has suffered many near-fatal accidents. The worst one was when the Point Ellice bridge collapsed.

Both he and his father were flung clear of the streetcar when it crashed through the bridge and plunged into the water. His father and some rescuers got him ashore.

In the First World War, he went to Britain to do his bit. He worked in a factory making parts for planes.

PLAYS PIANO

A religious man and a music-lover, he belonged to the first Salvation Army band organized in Vancouver and in Victoria. He still plays the piano.

At his party he didn't see why people should make such a fuss over a man who has reached 100. But he looked pleased when he received a message of congratulations from the Queen.

There were others too — from Prime Minister Pearson, Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, Premier Bennett and the city council.
